If a bill should be passed by the House and returned to the Senate without amendments, or if amended, and the amendments should be agreed to, it shall then be turned over to the Joint Committee on Enrolled Bills. In the case of a House bill on second reading if the same be amended, the amendment or amendments shall be noted in full in typewriting on slips of paper, and attached to the bill at the proper place by the Clerk before the bill is returned to the House, and all amendments shall appear in the Senate Journal.

42. When a bill or resolution of the House of Delegates is passed or rejected by the Senate, the fact of its passage or rejection, with the bill or resolution, shall be communicated to the House of Delegates.

Messages

43. Messages may be introduced in any stage of business except when a question is being put by the presiding officer, while the yeas and nays are being called by the Clerk, or while the ballots are being counted.

Passage of Bills and Joint Resolutions

44. When a bill or joint resolution is put upon its passage, the President shall propound the question, "Shall the bill (or joint resolution as the case may be) pass?" On the passage of every bill or joint resolution the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, and be entered on the Journal. When the bill is on a second reading, and the question is upon striking out, the President shall propound the question: "Shall these words be stricken out?"

Motions

45. When the question is pending, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, for the previous question, to lie on the table, to postpone indefinitely, to adjourn the question to a different day, to commit or amend, which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are herein arranged.

46. On the first reading of a bill, a motion to reject the bill shall be in order.

Adverse Report by Committee

47. If a committee shall have reported adversely to a bill, the President, immediately after the report of said committee is read shall put the question: "Shall the bill be rejected?", which question shall have precedence over all motions, except a motion to adjourn.

Reconsideration of Vote

48. The question being once determined must stand as the judgment of the Senate, and cannot during the session be drawn again into debate unless reconsidered, and it shall be in order to reconsider any vote only within two legislative days next after the one upon which such vote was taken. A motion to reconsider shall be in order only when made by a Senator who voted with the prevailing side, and when the vote was not taken by yeas and nays all Senators will be conclusively presumed to have voted with the prevailing side.

49. When motions are made for reference of the same subject to a select committee, and to a standing committee, the question in reference to the standing committee shall be first put.

Division of the Question

50. If the question in debate contains several points, any member may have the same divided; but on motion to strike out and insert, it shall not be in order to move for a division of the question, but the rejection of a motion to strike out and insert one proposition shall not prevent a motion to strike out and insert a different proposition; nor prevent a subsequent motion to simply strike out; nor shall the rejection of a motion simply to strike out prevent a subsequent motion to strike out and insert.

51. In filling blanks, the largest sum and the longest time shall be first put.

Previous Question

52. There shall be a motion for the previous question, which being ordered by a majority of the members present, if a quorum, shall have the effect to cut off all debate and bring the Senate to a direct vote upon the immediate question or questions on which it has been asked and ordered. The previous question may be asked and ordered upon a single motion, a series of motions, or may be made to embrace and authorize motions and amendments and include the bill to its engrossment and third reading and then, on renewal and second of said motion, to its passage or rejection. It shall be in order pending a motion for or after the previous question shall have been ordered on its passage, for the President to entertain and submit a motion to commit with or without instructions to a standing or select committee; and a motion to lay upon the table shall be in order on the second and third reading of a bill.

A call of the Senate shall not be in order after the previous question is ordered, unless it shall appear upon an actual count by the President that a quorum is not present.

All incidental questions or orders arising after a motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether an appeal or otherwise, without debate.

Yeas and Nays

53. When the yeas and nays are ordered, or a call of the Senate is directed, the names of the members shall be called in alphabetical order.

54. The yeas and nays on any question shall, at the desire of one-tenth of the members present, be entered on the Journal and any member may enter any protest on the Journal upon the determination of any question. After the yeas and nays shall have been taken, and before they are counted or entered on the Journal, the Clerk shall read over the names of those who voted in the affirmative and those who voted in the negative, at which time any member shall have the right to correct any mistake committed in enrolling his name.

55. When a bill or joint resolution passed by the Senate shall be amended by the House of Delegates, the question on agreeing to the bill or joint resolution, as amended, shall be again voted on by yeas and nays in the Senate, and the result entered upon its Journal. In all such cases the affirmative vote of a majority of all the members elected to the Senate shall be necessary.—(Const., art. 6, sec. 31.)

56. In all elections of officers which may take place in the Senate the vote of a majority of all the members elected to the Senate shall be necessary.

57. In all elections of officers which may take place in the Senate the vote shall be viva voce, and be entered upon the Journal.—(Const., art. 6, sec. 44.)

Executive Session

58. When nominations shall be made in writing by the Governor to the Senate, a future day shall be assigned, unless the Senate unanimously direct otherwise, for taking them into consideration.

59. When acting on the nominations of the Governor, the Senate shall be cleared of all persons except the Clerk, his assistants, the Sergeant-at-Arms and Doorkeeper, and all such officers shall be sworn to secrecy.

60. All confidential communications made by the Governor to the Senate and all proceedings thereon, shall be by the members thereof kept secret until the Senate shall, by unanimous affirmative vote of the members present, remove the injunction of secrecy. When an executive session of the Senate has been dissolved, the result of its action upon any executive nomination considered therein shall be forthwith certified to the Governor in a formal communication signed by the President and attested by the Clerk.

61. All information and remarks touching the character or qualification of any person nominated by the Governor to office, shall be kept secret. The legislative proceedings and the executive proceedings of the Senate shall be kept and recorded in separate books.

Constitutional Amendment

62. When an amendment to be proposed to the Constitution is under consideration, the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected to the Senate shall not be requisite to decide any question for amendments, or extending to the merits, being short of the final question.

Adjournment

63. When the Senate adjourns each day, it shall stand adjourned to 2 o'clock P. M. the next day, unless the Senate otherwise direct.

64. When the Senate adjourns each day, every member shall keep his seat until the President leaves the chair.

Parliamentary Practice

65. In all cases not provided for by the Rules of the Senate or the Joint Rules of the Senate and House of Delegates, the Senate shall be governed by the practice in the House of Representatives of the United States.

Suspension of Rule

66. No standing rule or order of the Senate shall be rescinded without one day's notice being given of the motion therefor and no rule shall be suspended except by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate present.

Withdrawal of Bills from Committee

67. Any bill, resolution or business may, by a vote of the majority of the members present, be withdrawn from the committee to which it had been referred or be taken from the table, and placed upon the regular or special calendar of the Senate in such order of business as the Senate may direct.

2. In the election of officers by the House, the vote shall be given viva voce, and a majority of the whole number of votes given, a quorum being present, shall be necessary to elect. If, upon any vote, there be no election, the person having the lowest number of votes shall be dropped, and any votes thereafter given to such person shall not be taken into the counting to affect the result in any way. But if two or more have the lowest and equal number of votes, they may be voted for again. No question before the House, or in committee of the whole, shall be voted on by ballot.

DUTIES AND RIGHTS OF THE SPEAKER

When two or more members arise at the same time, he shall name the one entitled to the floor.

Questions of Order

6. The Speaker shall decide all questions of order subject to an appeal to the House when demanded by any ten members. He may speak to questions of order in preference to other members, and may make the concluding speech on any appeal from his decision, notwithstanding, he may have before spoken on the question; but no other member shall speak more than once on such appeal without leave of the House.

In all such cases the members present may take such measures to prevent a repetition of such misconduct, either by the infliction of censure or such other penalty, as may be authorized by law, on the parties thus offending, as the House may deem best.

Presiding Officer in Absence of Speaker

8. The Speaker may designate by an appointment in writing entered upon the Journal of the House, any member to perform the duties of the chair for a period not exceeding three consecutive legislative days, but for no longer period, except by special consent of the House, and the member so designated shall be during the time for which he is designated, vested with all the powers and duties conferred by these rules, or by law, upon the Speaker. The Speaker shall have the right to call any member to the chair to perform the duties of Speaker but such substitution shall not extend beyond an adjournment.

When the yeas and nays are taken the Speaker's name shall be called last.

Examination of Journal

15. It shall be the duty of the Speaker to examine the Journal of the House, daily, before it is read and cause all errors and omissions therein to be corrected.

RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF MEMBERS

Absence from the House

24. No member shall absent himself from the service of the House unless he have leave, or be sick and unable to attend, but any member who conscientiously believes that the seventh day of the week ought to be observed as the Sabbath shall be excused from attending upon the House on that day.

Every Member to Vote

25. Every member present when a question is put, or when his name is called, shall vote unless he is immediately and particularly interested therein, or the House excuses him. A motion to excuse a member from voting must be made before the House divides, or before the call of the yeas and nays is commenced, and it shall be decided without debate, except that the member making the motion may briefly state the reason therefor.

Members Shall Be in Places When Voting

26. While the yeas and nays are being taken every member shall be in his seat, and during the session of the House no person other than a member shall occupy the chair of a member.

Quorum

27. A majority of all the members elected to the House shall be necessary to proceed to business; seven members may adjourn, and ten members may order a call of the House, send for absentees, and make any order for their censure or discharge. On a call of the House, the doors shall not be closed against any member until his name shall have been called twice.

When Less Than Quorum Present

28. In case a number less than a quorum of the House shall convene, they are hereby authorized to send the Sergeant-at-Arms, or any other person or persons by them authorized, for any and all absent members as the majority of such members shall agree, at the expense of such absent members, respectively, unless such excuse for nonattendance shall be made as the House, when a quorum is convened, shall judge sufficient; and, in that case, the expense shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the House. This rule shall apply to the first meeting of the House, at the legal time of meeting, as well as to each day of the session after the hour has arrived to which the House stood adjourned.

Taking Members Into Custody

29. No member of the House shall be taken into custody by the Sergeant-at-Arms, on any question of complaint of breach of privilege, until the matter is examined by the Committee on Elections and Privileges, and reported to the House of Delegates, unless by order of the Speaker of the House of Delegates.

Punishment of Members

30. The House of Delegates may punish its own members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected thereto, expel a member, but not twice for the same offense.—(Const., art. 6, sec. 25.)

Providing for Undisturbed Transaction of Business

31. The House of Delegates may punish, by imprisonment, any person not a member, for disrespectful behavior in its presence; for obstructing any of its proceedings, or any of its officers in the discharge of his duties, or for any assault, threat or abuse of any member for words spoken in debate; but such imprisonment shall not extend beyond the termination of the session.—(Const., art. 6, sec. 25.)

ORDER AND DECORUM IN DEBATE

Recognition and Decorum

32. When a member is about to speak in debate or deliver any matter to the House, he shall rise in his place and respectfully address the presiding officer as "MR. SPEAKER," and, upon being recognized, shall proceed, confining himself to the question under debate, avoiding all personalities and indecorous or disrespectful language.

When a member arises and addresses the Chair, the Speaker may recognize him by name; but no member in debate shall designate another by name.

Recognition by the Chair

33. When two or more members shall rise at the same time, the Speaker shall name the one who is to speak first, and his decision shall be final and not open to debate or appeal. However, in all other cases the member who shall rise first and address the Chair shall be first recognized.

Mover of Question to Have Preference in Debate

34. No question shall be debated until it has been propounded by the Speaker, and then the mover of the question shall have the right to open and close the debate thereon.

Member Out of Order

35. When any member, in speaking or otherwise, transgresses the rules of the House, the Speaker shall, or any member may, call him to order; in which case the member so called to order shall immediately sit down, but may be permitted, with leave of the House, to explain; and the House shall, if appealed to, decide the case, but without debate. If there be no appeal, the decision of the Chair shall be submitted to; if the decision be in favor of the member so called to order, he is at liberty to proceed; if the decision be against him, and the case requires it, he shall be liable to the censure of the House, or such other punishment as the House may properly impose.

Calling to Order for Words Spoken in Debate

36. If a member be called to order for words spoken in debate, the person calling him to order shall repeat the words excepted to and they shall be taken down at the Clerk's table. And no member shall be held to answer, or be subjected to the censure of the House, for words spoken in debate, if any other member has spoken or other business has intervened after the words were spoken and before the exception to them was taken.

Decorum During Debate

37. While the Speaker is putting a question, ascertaining the result, or addressing the House, no one shall walk out of or across the House; and when a member is speaking, no one shall engage in conversation or pass between him and the Speaker.

Limitation on Debate

38. No member shall speak except in his place, and not more than twice on a question, except by leave of the House. And if a question be pending at the time of an adjournment and is renewed on the succeeding day, no member who shall have spoken twice on the preceding day shall be permitted again to speak without leave of the House. The House by majority vote may limit debate on any question.

Members Not to Be Disturbed While Speaking

39. No one shall disturb or interrupt a member who is speaking, without his permission, except to call to order if he be transgressing the rules.

Speaking Before Negative is Put

40. When the Speaker is putting the question, any member who has not spoken before to the matter may speak to the question before the negative is put.

PUTTING QUESTIONS AND VOTING

Putting Question; Division

41. All questions shall be put distinctly in this form, to-wit: "As many as are in favor [as the question may be] say 'Aye'," and after the affirmative vote is expressed, "As many as are opposed say 'No'." If the Speaker be in doubt as to the result, or if a division is called for by any member, the House shall divide. Those in the affirmative of the question shall first rise from their seats and be counted, and afterwards those in the negative. The count may be made by the Speaker, or, if he so directs, by the Clerk, or two members, one from each side, to be named for that purpose by the Speaker. When the result is ascertained the Speaker shall rise and state the decision of the House. Such vote shall not be printed in the Journal unless the yeas and nays are called for by not less than nine members of the House prior to the announcement of the decision by the Speaker.

Yeas and Nays

42. On the passage of every bill and joint resolution, and when the yeas and nays on any question are called for by one-tenth of those present, the Speaker shall direct the roll to be called, and every member present shall answer "Aye" or "No" when his name is called, unless excused. Before the result is announced the Clerk shall read to the House the names of those who voted in the affirmative, and then those who voted in the negative, at which time any member may correct a mistake committed in taking down his vote. The result shall then be announced, and the yeas and nays entered on the Journal, but if the House so orders, the announcement of the result and the entry of the yeas and nays upon the Journal may be postponed to the succeeding day, with liberty to absent members at any time before the result is announced by the Speaker, to appear and vote "Aye" or "No," in the presence of the House; and any member may, in the presence of the House, change his vote before the result is announced. The Journal shall also show those absent and not voting.

Upon calls of the House, in taking the yeas and nays, the names of the members shall be called alphabetically, except the Speaker shall be called last.

Pairs

43. Members may pair on any question by filing a signed statement of the same with the Clerk, who shall read the same to the House before the vote is taken. A blank form of pair for use of members shall be provided by the Clerk. No pair shall be recognized unless made in person by the member signing the same, nor unless one or both of the parties thereto are absent.

Division of Question

44. Any member may call for a division of any question before the vote thereon is taken, if it comprehend propositions in substance so distinct that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition will remain for the decision of the House, but the member calling for the division of a question shall state in what manner he proposes it shall be divided. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible, but a motion to strike out being lost, shall preclude neither amendment nor motion to strike out and insert.

Calling of Yeas and Nays

45. No member or any person shall visit or remain by the Clerk's table while the yeas and nays are being called.

Tie Vote Loses Question

46. In all cases when the House is equally divided, the question shall be lost.

Verification of Vote

47. When a question upon which the yeas and nays have been taken has prevailed or failed by not more than five votes, the Speaker may, upon request of five members, order a verification of the vote. During such verification, no member shall change his vote unless it was erroneously recorded, nor may any member not having voted cast a vote. A verification must be called for immediately after a vote is announced and before any other business has intervened.

Explanation of Vote

48. No member shall be allowed to make any explanation of his vote during the taking of the yeas and nays; but after the roll has been called and the vote announced, any member may explain his vote and the explanation shall be recorded in the Journal if he requests it. The Speaker may limit the time allowed members for explaining votes.

When Members Not to Vote

49. Any member who has a personal or private interest in any measure or bill proposed or pending before the House shall disclose the fact and not vote thereon.

Voting by Machine

49-a. A voting machine may be used in taking the yeas and nays on any question, for quorum calls and for determining the result when a division is demanded. When a vote is to be taken on the voting machine the Speaker shall announce the question to be voted upon and direct the Clerk to prepare the machine. The Clerk shall then sound the gong which shall be notice to all members to vote. After reasonable time has been given all members to vote the Speaker shall ask the question "Have all members voted?" vote himself, if the vote being taken is upon a question on which he is required to vote, and then direct the Clerk to close the machine and ascertain the result. As soon as this is done, the Clerk shall hand the record of the vote to the Speaker and he shall promptly announce the result. No vote may be changed after it has been recorded.

No member shall vote for another member, nor shall any person not a member cast a vote for a member. In addition to such penalties as may be prescribed by law, any member who shall vote or attempt to vote for another member may be expelled as a member of the House or punished in such other manner as the House may determine. If a person not a member shall vote or attempt to vote for any member, he shall be barred from the floor of the House for the remainder of the session and may be further punished in such manner as the House may deem proper, in addition to such punishment as may be prescribed by law.

All other rules governing voting and the taking of the yeas and nays, insofar as applicable, shall apply to taking votes by means of the voting machine.

MOTIONS

Stating the Question

50. When a motion is made, it shall be stated by the Speaker; or, being in writing, it shall be passed to the desk and read aloud by the Clerk before debate.

Form of Motion

51. Every motion, except subsidiary or incidental motions, shall be reduced to writing, if the Speaker or any member desires it; but this exception shall not apply to motions to amend.

Withdrawal of Motions

52. After a motion is stated by the Speaker or read by the Clerk, it is deemed to be in possession of the House, but may be withdrawn at any time before a decision or amendment, unless the previous question has been ordered, in which case it can only be withdrawn by leave of the House.

Order and Precedence of Motions

53. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received except:

1. To adjourn.
2. To lay on the table.
3. For the previous question.
4. To postpone to a day certain.
5. To go into a Committee of the Whole on the pending question immediately.
6. To commit to a Committee of the Whole.
7. To commit to a Standing Committee.
8. To commit to a Select Committee.
9. To amend.
10. To postpone indefinitely.

These several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are arranged. A motion to strike out the enacting clause of a bill shall have precedence of another motion to amend; and if carried, the bill is rejected.

Motion to Adjourn

54. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order, except when the House is voting, or while a member is addressing the House, or when no business has been transacted since the motion to adjourn has been defeated.

Motions Not Debatable

55. The following motions shall be decided without debate, and shall not be amended:

1. To adjourn.
2. To fix the time to which the House shall adjourn.
3. To lay on the table.
4. For the previous question.
5. To suspend the constitutional rule requiring bills to be read on three several days.
6. To recess.

Motions Not in Order

56. No motion directing the appropriation or payment of money shall be in order.

Effect of Indefinite Postponement

57. When a question is postponed indefinitely, it shall not be again acted on during the session.

Motion to Reconsider

58. A motion to reconsider any question may be made by any member who voted with the majority, or in case of a tie vote, by any member. This motion shall be made on the same or next succeeding legislative day of the House. Such a motion, if seconded, shall take precedence of all other questions, except the consideration of a conference report or a motion to adjourn, and unless by motion postponed until some future time shall be acted upon at once. A motion to reconsider shall not be withdrawn without leave of the House, and if the House decides to reconsider, any member may thereafter call the subject up for consideration. A motion to reconsider a question, having been put and lost, shall not be renewed.

Debate on Motions to Reconsider

59. Debate shall be allowed on a motion to reconsider only when the question which it is proposed to reconsider is debatable. Where debate upon a motion to reconsider is in order, no member shall speak more than once nor for a longer period than three minutes.

Reconsideration of Question Requiring More Than Majority Vote

If a sufficient number arise, the previous question shall be thereby seconded, and the question shall then be put in this form, "Shall the main question be now put?" If this question be decided in the affirmative by a majority of the members voting, a quorum being present, it shall have the effect of cutting off all debate and bringing the House to a direct vote upon the immediate question or questions upon which it has been asked and ordered, except when the motion applies to the main question, the member in charge of the measure under consideration, shall have five minutes to close the discussion before the vote is taken; and when the motion applies to an amendment the person proposing the amendment shall have three minutes to close the discussion on the amendment. Should the previous question be decided in the negative, the House shall proceed with the matter before it as though the previous question had not been moved.

When a member moves the previous question he shall specifically state in his motion whether it shall apply to the main question and the amendments or to the amendment or amendments only.

The previous question shall not be admitted in the Committee of the Whole.

If a committee to which a bill has been referred reports that the same ought not to pass, the Speaker shall immediately propound the question, "Shall the bill be rejected?" If this question is decided in the negative, the bill shall be disposed of in the same manner as if reported favorably.

Upon any bill there may be a motion to dispense with the Constitutional rule, in order that the bill may be read twice or three times on the same day, and upon the first or second reading of any bill there may be a motion to dispense with the Constitutional rule in order that the bill may, upon such reading, be read by its title: Provided, That in all cases there shall be three readings on each bill, and that an engrossed bill shall be fully and distinctly read.—(See Const., art. 6, sec. 29.)

Bills—First Reading

103. The first reading of a bill shall be for information; and if opposition be made to it, the question shall be, "Shall the bill be rejected?" If no opposition be made, or if the question to reject be lost, it shall be regarded as ordered to its second reading, unless the House otherwise specially directs. On the first reading of a bill, it may at any stage of the reading be rejected on motion.

Bills—Second Reading

104. No bill shall be put upon its second reading until the same shall have been printed and delivered to the members of the House at least one day previous to such reading, unless in case of emergency.

Amending and Engrossing Bills

On the second reading of a bill on the demand of any two members, it shall be read section by section for amendment, and when the amendments as may be moved are disposed of, the question, unless the House otherwise orders, shall be, if a House bill, "Shall the bill be engrossed and ordered to the third reading?" If a House bill shall be ordered to its engrossment and third reading, and amendments have been made thereto, the type from which the bill was originally printed shall be changed to conform with the amendments. The bill shall then be reprinted and shall be the engrossed bill, and shall be designated as such. If no amendments are made the bill as originally printed may be ordered to its third reading and shall become the engrossed bill, and shall be designated as such. All House bills ordered to their engrossment and third reading shall be jacketed and engrossed with their number, title, by whom introduced, and if the bill is finally passed, the date of its passage and the signature of the Clerk. If a House bill is passed by the Senate and returned to the House without amend-

In the case of a Senate bill on second reading, if the same be amended by the House and passed on as amended, the amendment or amendments shall be noted in full on slips of paper in typewriting and attached to the bill at the proper place by the Clerk before the bill is returned to the Senate, and all the amendments shall also appear in the House Journal.

When a proposed amendment to the Constitution is under consideration, the vote of a majority of the members present shall be sufficient to decide an amendment thereto or any collateral or incidental questions thereto short of the final question.

[NOTE: Joint resolutions are used only for amendments to the State Constitution and to ratify amendments to the Federal Constitution. Such resolutions do not have to be submitted to the Governor for his approval.]

(2) Concurrent Resolutions: Concurrent resolutions shall be used for the purpose of expressing the sentiments of the Legislature, for authorizing expenditures incidental to the sessions and business of the Legislature, for agreeing upon adjournments beyond the constitutional limitation, for creating special joint committees, for raising a joint assembly and other inferior and incidental purposes of legislation, and such other purposes as the Legislature may deem proper. The adoption of such resolutions must be concurred in by both houses.

(3) House Resolutions: These simple resolutions shall be used for expressing the will or order of the House on matters in which the concurrence of the Senate is not necessary. A House resolution shall be proper to express the sentiments of the body, to authorize expenditures from its contingent fund, for agreeing upon any question, and for all incidental purposes pertaining to the organization and work of the House.

Introduction of Resolutions

109. All resolutions to be introduced in the House shall be filed with the Clerk not later than two hours prior to the convening of the session at which they are to be introduced. They shall be presented in triplicate and copies shall be for the same purpose as that of bills. When the proper order of business is reached, the Clerk shall proceed in the same manner as if they were introduced from the floor. This rule does not deny a member the right to introduce a resolution from the floor in case of urgency. The different classes of resolutions shall be numbered by the Clerk and entered in full in the Journal.

Action on Resolutions

110. All joint resolutions shall be referred to the appropriate committee, and when any other resolution is presented, containing no reference of the subject thereof to a committee, it shall lie over for one day, to come up under the ninth order of business unless a majority of the House orders otherwise.

PETITIONS

111. All petitions, remonstrances, memorials and other papers addressed to the House shall be filed by the member with the Clerk prior to the convening of the House. When in the regular order of business the time is reached for presenting petitions or any such papers, the Clerk shall read a list of those on file, giving the member's name presenting same and a brief resume of the contents thereof, and the same shall be referred to the committee of the member's selection unless otherwise ordered by the House. Each member, upon filing any such petition, remonstrance or other paper, shall endorse thereon his name, and if not so endorsed it shall not be received. The Journal shall show the name of the member presenting such papers, a brief resume of the contents thereof, and the disposition made of same.

No bill shall be amended on third reading, except by unanimous consent of the members present. Amendments to resolutions other than joint resolutions shall be in order at any time the same are being considered. Committee amendments shall be subject to amendment and shall be disposed of before any other amendments are in order.

Reading and Stating

115. Amendments shall be read by the Clerk and stated by the Speaker before being acted upon.

By Striking Out Enacting Clause

116. A motion to amend by striking out the enacting clause of a bill shall have precedence over another motion to amend, and, if carried, the bill or resolution is rejected.

Amendment to an Amendment

117. A motion to amend a pending amendment may be received, but until it is disposed of no other motion to amend will be in order. But pending such amendment, a motion to amend in the nature of a substitute, and a motion to amend that substitute, may be received, but shall not be voted upon until the original matter is perfected.

Amendment to Have Precedence Over Substitute

118. If a substitute for a bill or resolution be offered, a motion to amend the original bill or resolution shall have precedence.

Motion to Amend to Have Precedence Over One to Strike Out

119. If a motion be made to strike out part of a bill or resolution, a motion to amend the part proposed to be stricken out shall have precedence.

Filling Blanks

120. In filling blanks, the largest sum and longest time proposed shall be first put, and the question shall be put on names in the order they were nominated.

No Amendment by Way of Rider

121. No amendment by way of rider shall be received to any bill after engrossment.

Agreeing to Senate Amendments

122. When a House bill or House joint resolution shall be amended by the Senate, the question on agreeing to the bill or resolution as amended shall be again voted on by yeas and nays, and the result entered on the Journal, and in such a case the affirmative vote of a majority of the members elected to the House shall be necessary.—(Const., art. 7, sec. 31.)

Amendment by Section

123. If a bill is being considered section by section, only amendments to the section under consideration shall be in order. After all sections have been considered separately, the whole bill shall be open for amendment except that an amendment seeking to strike out matter previously inserted and containing substantially no new proposition shall not be in order.

Amending Titles

124. After the passage of a bill or joint resolution, amendments to its title may be offered when the title is read for approval.

Amendments to Senate Bills

125. Any Senate bill or resolution may be amended in the same manner as a House bill or resolution. If a Senate bill or resolution is amended the same shall be noted by the Clerk on the jacket containing same before it is reported to the Senate.

After the reading of a Senate amendment to a House bill or resolution the question shall be, "Will the House concur in the Senate amendment?" But it shall be in order to move that the House concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment; or that the House refuse to concur and ask the Senate to recede.

If the Senate shall refuse to concur in a House amendment to a Senate bill or resolution, the following motions shall be in order and shall be privileged in the order named: First, That the House recede; Second, That the House insist and ask for a committee of conference; Third, That the House adhere.

Amendments to Be Printed in Journal

126. All amendments proposed, unless withdrawn, shall be printed in the Journal.

Speaking on Amendments

127. On an amendment being moved, a member who has spoken to the main question may speak again to the amendment.

JOURNAL

Clerk to Keep

128. The Clerk of the House, under the direction of the Speaker, shall keep a full and correct Journal of the proceedings.

Approval and Correction

129. When the Journal has been read to the end that any mistake made in the entry may be corrected, if no objection is made, it shall stand approved; but if objection be made, the first question of the House shall be to dispose of the same, and when such objections are disposed of and the Journal corrected, as the House may order, it shall stand as approved.

Printing Official Copies

130. After the printed Journal has been approved and fully marked for correction, the type from which it was printed shall be changed in accordance therewith. From the type so corrected shall be printed the number of copies required by law for the regular bound volumes of the Journal, which shall be properly indexed. In addition thereto six copies shall be printed on 6x9 heavy-weight bond paper, with a certificate at the end thereof, certifying that the same is the official Journal of the House and the same shall be signed by the Speaker and Clerk. Such printed Journal shall be the official record of the House. They shall be bound in flexible binding, and bear the imprint on the back, "Official Journal of the House of Delegates of West Virginia," with designation of regular or special session, as the case may be, and the year. After being signed by the proper officers, two of these copies shall be retained in the office of the Clerk, and one copy shall be lodged in the office of the Governor, one with the Secretary of State, one with the Department of Archives and History, and one with the Clerk of the Senate.

Journal to Be Printed Daily

131. It shall be the duty of the Clerk to furnish a copy of each day's proceedings of the Journal to the printer, to be printed and distributed without delay.

Inserting Motions in Journal

132. Every written motion made to the House shall be inserted in the Journal with the name of the member making it, unless it be withdrawn on the same day it is submitted.

CHANGE OR SUSPENSION OF RULES

Rescinding or Amending Rules

133. All propositions to amend or rescind any standing rule or order of the House shall be by resolution and be at once referred, without debate, to the Committee on Rules, and shall be reported therefrom within two days. Any such resolution may be adopted by a majority vote, a quorum being present.

[NOTE: The power to make its rules of procedure is given the House under Sec. 24, Art. 6 of the Constitution.]

Suspension of Rules

134. These rules shall not be suspended, except by a vote of at least two-thirds of the members present. Unless there be a unanimous consent for the suspension of rules, the vote shall be determined by yeas and nays.

[NOTE: The motion to suspend the rules is usually preceded by a member requesting unanimous consent of the House to do a particular thing. If no one objects the House is deemed to assent, and what is desired is allowed accordingly. If objection is made, then the member may move that the rules be suspended for the specific purpose or object he has in view. A motion to lay on the table may not be applied to a motion to suspend the rules. (Hind's Precedents, Sec. 5405.)]

Manual and Rules

135. On any question of order or parliamentary practice where the rules of the House or the joint rules of the House and Senate are silent or inexplicit, Jefferson's Manual and the Digest of the Rules and Practices of the House of Representatives of the United States Congress shall be considered as authority.

[NOTE: Jefferson's Manual was prepared by Thomas Jefferson for his own guidance as President of the United States Senate in the years he was Vice-President, from 1797 to 1801. The House of Representatives, in 1837, by rule which still exists, provided that the provisions of the Manual should "govern the House in all cases to which they are applicable and in which they are not inconsistent with the standing rules and orders of the House." The Manual is regarded by English parliamentarians as the best statement of what the law of Parliament was at the time Jefferson wrote it. (House Manual and Digest), 70th Congress, 1st Sess., Sec. 278.]

The Speaker is charged with the enforcement of this rule and it shall be the duty of any member, officer or employee of the House to inform the Speaker of any violation of this rule.

Newspaper Correspondents

138. (a) Any person accorded the privilege of a newspaper correspondent must be the telegraphic correspondent of a daily newspaper, or of a recognized press association, who is not engaged in any department of the state government, or in any other business, or must be the official reporter of a Charleston daily newspaper; and no more than one representative of each newspaper shall be admitted to the press tables or press gallery at one time.

(b) All applications for admission to the press gallery or press tables must be made to the Speaker. Such applications shall state the name of the newspaper, its location, times of publication, and be signed by the applicant.

(c) The Speaker shall verify the statements made in such application, and if the application is approved by him, he shall issue a correspondent's card, signed by him.

(d) The correspondents shall not visit the members in their seats during the session of the House, and shall abide by such rules and regulations as may be adopted by the Rules Committee of the House.

(e) The card issued by the Speaker must be presented when required by any Sergeant-at-Arms. It shall not be transferable. The transfer or loan of such card to any one shall be followed by its cancellation and the withdrawal of all its privileges from the correspondent so offending.

(f) The gallery or press tables allotted to newspaper correspondents shall be for their exclusive use, and persons not holding correspondents' cards shall not be entitled to admission thereto.

Lounging Prohibited in the Hall of the House

139. It shall be the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms to prevent all persons not connected with the Legislature from assembling in the halls at any time when the House is not in session for the purpose of lounging or loafing. For the purpose of enforcing this rule, the Sergeant-at-Arms or his assistants shall be in attendance at all times, and the persistent neglect or disregard of this rule shall be cause for dismissal by the Speaker, or removal.

Peddling Prohibited

140. No person shall be permitted to hawk, peddle or offer for sale any article of traffic at any time within the hall of the House; and it shall be the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms to strictly enforce this rule.

Regulating Use of Halls

141. The Speaker shall have power to regulate the use of the halls and stairways of the part of the Capitol building used by the House for refreshments and like purposes when the Legislature is in session.

Oaths

142. The Speaker or Clerk shall have authority to administer any oaths required by the business of the House.

Janitors

143. The janitors appointed for or assigned to the House shall, under direction of the Speaker, have care of the House chamber, committee rooms and halls of the House and keep the same in a neat and proper condition at all times.

JOINT RULES OF THE SENATE AND HOUSE OF DELEGATES

(Regular Session, 1941)

Joint Assembly

1. Whenever there shall be a joint assembly of the two houses, a brief account of the proceedings shall be entered upon the Journal of each House, except in the joint assembly for counting votes for state officers.

[NOTE: It is the custom to hold joint assemblies in the House Chamber and they are presided over by the Speaker. In such sessions the Clerk of the House acts as Clerk, assisted by the Clerk of the Senate. The President of the Senate is given a seat to the right of the Speaker and seats are arranged for the members of the Senate.]

Joint Assembly to Open and Publish Election Returns

2. As soon as the Senate, being organized, is informed that the House of Delegates is ready to proceed, as provided by section three of article seven of the Constitution, to open and publish the returns of the elections for state officers, the Senate, preceded by its president and other officers, shall repair in a body to the hall of the House of Delegates. Upon their arrival the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Delegates shall announce the presence of the Senate. The President of the Senate shall then address the Speaker of the House, stating that a majority of the Senate have assembled in the hall of the House of Delegates to be present at the opening and publishing of the returns of the elections for State officers, held on the..... day of..... The Speaker of the House of Delegates shall invite the President of the Senate to a seat upon his right, and the other members of the Senate and officers thereof to take seats assigned them, and after announcing that a majority of the House of Delegates is present, shall then open and publish the returns of said election, proceeding by counties in alphabetical order, the Clerks of the two houses each taking down the returns as announced by the Speaker, to be entered upon the Journal of the House; and when completed and estimated the Speaker shall announce the votes received by each person voted for, for each of said offices, and those receiving the largest number of votes shall be by him declared duly elected; and the Senate shall then return to its hall; and if any two or more candidates for any of said offices have an equal and the highest number of votes for the same office, the two houses shall immediately proceed to choose one of such persons for said office by a joint vote, as provided by Section 3 of Article VII of the Constitution.

Disagreement and Conference

3. Whenever a measure of one house is amended in the other and the house in which it originated shall refuse to concur in the amendment, the house amending the measure may either insist or recede therefrom. But when a measure originating in one house is amended in the other, the house in which it originated may amend such amendment and a motion therefor shall take precedence of a motion to concur. If said house refuses to concur, the other house may either recede from or insist upon its amendment, and a motion to recede shall take precedence of a motion to insist. The motion to lay on the table or to postpone indefinitely shall not be in order in respect to the motion to recede from or to insist.

A motion to recede having failed shall be equivalent to the adoption of a motion to insist and shall be so entered upon the Journal. A motion to insist being decided in the negative, shall be equivalent to the adoption of a motion to recede and shall be so entered upon the Journal. If the motion to insist prevails, the house so insisting shall request a committee of conference on the subject of disagreement, and shall appoint a committee therefor. The other house may thereupon appoint such committee. Unless a different number is agreed upon, such conference committee shall consist of five members from each house.

Such committee shall consider and report upon only the subject matter of the amendment or amendments which were in disagreement, with necessary consequential changes. The committee shall meet at a convenient time, to be agreed upon by their chairmen, and having conferred freely, shall report to their respective houses the result of the conference. In case of agreement, the report shall be first made, with the papers referred accompanying it, to the house which refused to concur, and there acted upon; and such action, with the papers referred, shall be immediately reported by the clerk to the other house. In case of disagreement, the papers shall remain with the house in which the measure originated. If an agreement is reached, the report shall be made and signed in duplicate by at least a majority of the conferees from each house, one of the duplicates being retained by the conferees of each house.

Messages Between the Houses

4. When a message is sent by one house to the other, it shall be announced at the door of the house to which it is sent, by the Doorkeeper thereof, if it be in session, and then be respectfully communicated to the presiding officer by the person by whom it may be sent, but no message shall be received during a call of the roll. But the Clerk of one house may communicate a message to the Clerk of the other after adjournment, and any message so sent shall be received by the house to which it is sent whenever it may be in session.

Introduction of Bills

5. No bill, other than an appropriation bill, shall be introduced in either house after the fiftieth day of the session unless permission to introduce the bill be given by a concurrent resolution, setting out the title of the bill, and adopted by a two-thirds vote of all the members of each house present and voting.

One House to Notify Other of Rejection of Bill

6. When a bill or resolution passed in one house is rejected in the other, notice thereof shall be sent to the house in which the same shall have been passed.

Record of Bills

7. The Clerks of the two houses shall keep separate records or registers, in which shall be recorded every action taken by the Senate and House on each bill and resolution.

Clerks to Endorse Bills

8. The Clerks of the two houses shall endorse on each bill a statement of any action taken by their respective bodies.

Notice to Be in Writing

9. Notice to either house of the action of the other shall be in writing, signed by the Clerk of the house giving such notice.

Each House to Have Control of Own Printing

10. Each house may order the printing of bills, resolutions, reports, and other documents without the consent of the other.

Joint Committees

11. Joint standing committees of the Senate and House shall be appointed as follows:

(1) Joint Committee on Enrolled Bills—To consist of five members from each house.

(2) Committee on Joint Rules—To consist of the presiding officers and two members of each house, to be appointed by the presiding officers.

(3) Such other joint committees as may be provided for by concurrent resolutions. A bill or resolution referred to a joint committee may be recalled from such committee by the house in which it originated.

Engrossed Bills to Be Filed with Clerk of House

12. All engrossed bills passed by, and joint and concurrent resolutions adopted by, both houses shall be filed with the Clerk of the House to be kept with the rolls of the Legislature and to be used by him in printing and publishing the acts of the Legislature.

Joint Committee on Enrolled Bills

13. The Joint Committee on Enrolled Bills shall consist of five members of the Senate and five members of the House of Delegates, to be appointed by the presiding officer of each house, whose duty it shall be to compare carefully all bills and joint resolutions passed by both houses, with the enrollment thereof, and to correct any errors or omissions they may discover and to make reports to their respective houses from time to time, of the correctly enrolled bills or joint resolutions. It shall be in order for the Joint Committee on Enrolled Bills to report at any time.

Printing Enrolled Bills

14. After a bill has been passed by both houses, the type from which it was originally printed shall be corrected as to any typographical errors that may not previously have been corrected and to include any amendments that may have been made by either house since the last printing of the bill. After the type has been so corrected, two hundred copies of the bill shall be printed (except charter bills, of which only twenty-five of each shall be printed). Twelve of these copies shall be on seven and one-fourth by ten bond paper, twenty-pound basis of at least fifty per cent rag content for the use of the Joint Committee on Enrolled Bills, one of which copies, when properly authenticated, shall become the Enrolled Bill, and the remainder shall be on twenty-pound basis, sulphite bond paper. From these copies all judges shall be furnished enrolled bills as provided for in section fourteen, article one, chapter four of the code.

Authentication of Enrolled Bills

15. Enrolled Bills shall be authenticated by the signature of the chairman of the House Committee and the chairman of the Senate Committee, composing such Joint Committee on Enrolled Bills, but in the absence of such chairman another member of the committee may act in his stead, and they shall require all bills and joint resolutions before such authentication to be free from interlineations or erasures and destroy any previous enrollment containing any interlineations or erasures. A certificate, showing in which house the bill originated and when it takes effect, signed by the Clerks of the two houses, shall be endorsed on the bill. After enrolled bills and joint resolutions are authenticated as aforesaid, they shall be signed by the Speaker of the House and by the President of the Senate.

Presenting Bills to Governor

16. After a bill shall have thus been signed in each house, it shall be presented by the said committee to the Governor, for his approval. The said committee shall report the day of presentation to the Governor, which time shall be entered on the Journal of each house.

Record of Enrolled Bills

17. It shall be the duty of the Committee on Enrolled Bills to keep a record book of all bills presented to the Governor for his approval. The title and number of each bill presented to the Governor shall be entered in this book, and when a bill is presented to him, the date presented and the signature of the Governor, showing receipt of same, shall be entered at the side of each title.

Action of Governor on Bills

18. Every bill disapproved by the Governor shall be returned by him to the house in which it originated, with his objections thereto, unless the Legislature shall, by its adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State within five days after said adjournment.

Every bill approved by the Governor shall, within five days after it is presented to him, be filed in the office of the Secretary of State and the fact of said approval communicated by the Governor to the house in which said bill originated.

Every bill which shall be neither approved nor disapproved by the Governor shall immediately, after the expiration of five days from the time it is presented to him, be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, who shall forthwith engross thereon a certificate to the following effect: "I certify that the foregoing act, having been presented to the Governor for his approval, and not having been returned by him to the house of the Legislature in which it originated within the time prescribed by the Constitution of the State, has become a law without his approval," and shall date and sign the same. The Governor shall notify the house in which the bill originated of each bill becoming a law without his approval.

Upon each bill returned to either house of the Legislature with the objections of the Governor, the Clerks of the Senate and House of Delegates shall engross the action, if any, of their respective houses on the reconsideration and passage of said bill, and sign the same.

Joint Meetings of Committees

19. Whenever any bill has been referred by the Senate to one of its standing committees, and the same or like bill has been referred by the House to one of its committees, the Chairmen of the respective committees, when in their judgment the interest of legislation or the expedition of business will be better served thereby, may arrange for a joint meeting of their committees for the consideration of such bill. All joint committee meetings shall be presided over by the chairman of the Senate committee.

What Shall Be Printed in the Journal

20. The following shall always be printed in the Journal of each house:

(a) Messages from the Governor and messages from the other house, the titles of all bills and the title and text of all resolutions.

(b) Every vote taken by yeas and nays in each house, and a brief statement of the contents of each petition, memorial, or paper presented to each house.

(c) A true and accurate account of the proceedings of each house.

Manner of Printing the Journal and Bills

21. In printing the daily Journal of the proceedings of each house there shall be printed at the top of each page, except the first, the date of the Journal and on the last page of each day's Journal shall be printed the calendar for the next day.

At the top of the first page of each bill, preceding the title and number thereof, there shall be printed the name of the person by whom or the committee by which it was introduced and the date of introduction; and at the top of each page, except the first, shall be printed the number of the bill.

Use of Legislative Halls and Offices

22. Permission to use, other than for statutory purposes, either Legislative chamber or offices used by the two houses, may be granted by the President of the Senate or Speaker of the House as the case may be. During legislative sessions, the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate shall have power to regulate the use of the halls and stairways of the parts of the capitol building used by their respective houses, for any purpose whatsoever.

Resolutions

23. Resolutions requiring concurrent action may originate in either house, and shall be of two kinds, namely:

Joint Resolutions: These resolutions shall be used for proposing amendments to the State Constitution and for ratifying amendments to the Federal Constitution. Joint resolutions shall be adopted as provided in section two, article fourteen of the Constitution.

Concurrent Resolutions: Such resolutions shall be used for all purposes not covered by joint resolutions as defined above.

Suspension of Joint Rules

24. No Joint Rule shall be suspended, except by a two-thirds vote of each house, and unless there be unanimous consent, such vote shall be taken by yeas and nays.

CONSTITUTIONAL

Declaration of Independence

United States Constitution

Constitution of West Virginia

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

MADE BY THE ORIGINAL THIRTEEN STATES IN CONGRESS
AT PHILADELPHIA

UNANIMOUSLY ADOPTED JULY 4, 1776

When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume, among the Powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security.—Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present king of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these States. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his assent to laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accomodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing, with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused, for a long time after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the State remaining, in the meantime, exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners: refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies without the consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the military independent of and superior to the civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing taxes without our consent:

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury:

For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offenses:

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies:

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our government:

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection, and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is, at this time, transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun, with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes, and conditions.

In every state of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms: our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injuries. A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attention to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations; which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our separation, and holds them, as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America, in general Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that, as free and independent States, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent States may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

But in chusing the President, the Votes shall be taken by States, the Representation from each State having one Vote; A quorum for this Purpose shall consist of a Member or Members from two-thirds of the States, and a Majority of all the States shall be necessary to a Choice. In every Case, after the Choice of the President, the Person having the greatest Number of Votes of the Electors shall be the Vice President. But if there should remain two or more who have equal Votes, the Senate shall chuse from them by Ballot the Vice President.]

*This paragraph has been superseded by amendment XII.

ARTICLE I

Relations to the Government of the United States

1. The State of West Virginia is, and shall remain, one of the United States of America. The Constitution of the United States of America, and the laws and treaties made in pursuance thereof, shall be the supreme law of the land.

Internal Government and Police

2. The government of the United States is a government of enumerated powers, and all powers not delegated to it, nor inhibited to the States, are reserved to the States or to the people thereof. Among the powers so reserved by the States is the exclusive regulation of their own internal government and police; and it is the high and solemn duty of the several departments of government, created by this Constitution, to guard and protect the people of this State from all encroachments upon the rights so reserved.

Continuity of Constitutional Operation

3. The provisions of the Constitution of the United States, and of this State, are operative alike in a period of war as in time of peace, and any departure therefrom, or violation, thereof, under the plea of necessity, or any other plea, is subversive of good government, and tends to anarchy and despotism.

Representatives to Congress

4. For the election of representatives to congress, the State shall be divided into districts, corresponding in number with the representatives to which it may be entitled; which districts shall be formed of contiguous counties, and be compact. Each district shall contain, as nearly as may be, an equal number of population, to be determined according to the rule prescribed in the Constitution of the United States.

ARTICLE II

The State

1. The territory of the following counties, formerly parts of the Commonwealth of Virginia, shall constitute and form the State of West Virginia, viz:

The counties of Barbour, Berkeley, Boone, Braxton, Brooke, Cabell, Calhoun, Clay, Doddridge, Fayette, Gilmer, Grant, Greenbrier, Hampshire, Hancock, Hardy, Harrison, Jackson, Jefferson, Kanawha, Lewis, Lincoln, Logan, Marion, Marshall, Mason, McDowell, Mercer, Mineral, Mingo, Monongalia, Monroe, Morgan, Nicholas, Ohio, Pendleton, Pleasants, Pocahontas, Preston, Putnam, Raleigh, Randolph, Ritchie, Roane, Summers, Taylor, Tucker, Tyler, Upshur, Wayne, Webster, Wetzel, Wirt, Wood and Wyoming. The State of West Virginia includes the bed, bank and shores of the Ohio River, and so much of the Big Sandy River as was formerly included in the Commonwealth of Virginia; in all territorial rights and property in, and jurisdiction over the same, heretofore reserved by, and vested in, the Commonwealth of Virginia, are vested in and shall hereafter be exercised by the State of West Virginia. And such parts of the said beds, banks and shores as lie opposite, and adjoining the several counties of this State, shall form parts of said several counties respectively.

[All of the territory of West Virginia was taken from the Commonwealth of Virginia and in the first constitution forty-four of the above named counties were designated as forming the State of West Virginia, and in addition the counties of Berkeley, Hampshire, Hardy, Jefferson, Morgan and Pendleton were to be admitted should the constitution be adopted by a vote of the people of the districts comprising the counties. The districts adopted the constitution and these six counties became a part of the State.

[The Senate is now composed of thirty-two, and the House of Delegates of ninety-four members.]

Senators and Delegates—Terms of Office

3. Senators shall be elected for the term of four years, and Delegates for the term of two years. The Senators first elected shall divide themselves into two classes, one Senator from every district being assigned to each class; and of these classes, the first to be designated by lot in such manner as the Senate may determine, shall hold their seats for two years, and the second for four years, so that after the first election, one-half of the Senators shall be elected biennially.

Every district shall elect two Senators, but where the district is composed of more than one county, both shall not be chosen from the same county. After every such census, the Legislature shall alter the Senatorial Districts, so far as may be necessary to make them conform to the foregoing provision.

[There are now sixteen senatorial districts, as provided by Acts of 1937, Ch. 128.]

Senatorial Districts Designated

5. Until the Senatorial Districts shall be altered by the Legislature as herein prescribed, the counties of Hancock, Brooke and Ohio, shall constitute the first Senatorial District; Marshall, Wetzel and Marion, the second; Ritchie, Doddridge, Harrison, Gilmer and Calhoun, the third; Tyler, Pleasants, Wood and Wirt, the fourth; Jackson, Mason, Putnam and Roane, the fifth; Kanawha, Clay, Nicholas, Braxton and Webster, the sixth; Cabell, Wayne, Lincoln, Boone, Logan, Wyoming, McDowell and Mercer, the seventh; Monroe, Greenbrier, Summers, Pocahontas, Fayette and Raleigh, the eighth; Lewis, Randolph, Upshur, Barbour, Taylor and Tucker, the ninth; Preston and Monongalia, the tenth; Hampshire, Mineral, Hardy, Grant and Pendleton, the eleventh; Berkeley, Morgan and Jefferson, the twelfth.

Provision for Delegate Representation

Since the general election of 1916, the House of Delegates has consisted of ninety-four members, each county having at least one member. See Ch. 30, p. 270, Acts 1915, Regular Session.]

Delegate Apportionment After Census

7. After every census the Delegates shall be apportioned as follows: The ratio of representation for the House of Delegates shall be ascertained by dividing the whole population of the State by the number of which the House is to consist and rejecting the fraction of a unit, if any, resulting from such division. Dividing the population of every Delegate District, and of every county not included in a delegate district, by the ratio thus ascertained, there shall be assigned to each a number of Delegates equal to the quotient obtained by this division, excluding the fractional remainder. The additional Delegates necessary to make up the number of which the House is to consist, shall then be assigned to those Delegate Districts, and counties not included in a Delegate District, which would otherwise have the largest fractions unrepresented; but every Delegate District and county not included in a Delegate District shall be entitled to at least one Delegate.

Designation of Delegate Districts

8. Until a new apportionment shall be declared, the counties of Pleasants and Wood shall form the first Delegate District, and elect three Delegates; Ritchie and Calhoun the second, and elect two Delegates; Barbour, Harrison and Taylor the third, and elect one Delegate; Randolph and Tucker the fourth, and elect one Delegate; Nicholas, Clay and Webster the fifth, and elect one Delegate; McDowell and Wyoming the sixth, and elect one Delegate.

[There are now no delegate districts, each county having at least one member.]

9. Until a new apportionment shall be declared, the apportionment of Delegates to the counties not included in Delegate Districts, and to Barbour, Harrison and Taylor counties, embraced in such districts, shall be as follows:

To Barbour, Boone, Braxton, Brooke, Cabell, Doddridge, Fayette, Hampshire, Hancock, Jackson, Lewis, Logan, Greenbrier, Monroe, Mercer, Mineral, Morgan, Grant, Hardy, Lincoln, Pendleton, Putnam, Roane, Gilmer, Taylor, Tyler, Upshur, Wayne, Wetzel, Wirt, Pocahontas, Summers and Raleigh counties, one Delegate each.

To Berkeley, Harrison, Jefferson, Marion, Marshall, Mason, Monongalia and Preston counties, two Delegates each.

To Kanawha County, three Delegates.

To Ohio County, four Delegates.

[Many changes have been made in this apportionment. Kanawha County, the largest in population, now has eight delegates.]

Arrangement of Senatorial and Delegate Districts

10. The arrangement of the Senatorial and Delegate Districts, and apportionment of Delegates, shall hereafter be declared by law, as soon as possible after each succeeding census, taken by authority of the United States. When so declared they shall apply to the first general election for members of the Legislature, to be thereafter held, and shall continue in force unchanged, until such Districts shall be altered, and Delegates apportioned, under the succeeding census.

Additional Territory May Be Admitted Into State

11. Additional territory may be admitted into, and become part of this State, with the consent of the Legislature and a majority of the qualified voters of the State, voting on the question. And in such case provision shall be made by law for the representation thereof in the Senate and House of Delegates, in conformity with the principles set forth in this Constitution. And the number of members of which each house of the Legislature is to consist, shall thereafter be increased by the representation assigned to such additional territory.

No person who may have collected or been entrusted with public money, whether State, county, township, district, or other municipal organization, shall be eligible to the Legislature, or to any office of honor, trust, or profit in this State, until he shall have duly accounted for and paid over such money according to law.

Senators and Delegates Not to Hold Civil Office of Profit

15. No Senator or Delegate, during the term for which he shall have been elected, shall be elected or appointed to any civil office of profit under this State, which has been created, or the emoluments of which have been increased during such term, except offices to be filled by election by the people. Oath of Senators and Delegates

16. Members of the Legislature before they enter upon their duties, shall take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of the State of West Virginia, and faithfully discharge the duties of Senator (or Delegate) according to the best of my ability;" and they shall also take this further oath, to-wit: "I will not accept or receive, directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing, from any corporation, company, or person for any vote or influence I may give or withhold, as Senator (or Delegate), on any bill, resolution, or appropriation, or for any act I may do or perform as Senator (or Delegate.)" These oaths shall be administered in the hall of the house to which the member is elected, by a Judge of the Supreme Court of Appeals, or of a Circuit Court, or by any other person authorized by law to administer an oath; and the Secretary of State shall record and file said oaths subscribed by each member; and no other oath or declaration shall be required as a qualification. Any member who shall refuse to take the oath herein prescribed, shall forfeit his seat; and any member who shall be convicted of having violated the oath last above required to be taken, shall forfeit his seat and be disqualified thereafter from holding any office of profit or trust in this State.

Members of Legislature Privileged from Civil Arrest

17. Members of the Legislature shall, in all cases except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during the session, and for ten days before and after the same; and for words spoken in debate, or any report, motion or proposition made in either house, a member shall not be questioned in any other place.

Time of Assembly of Legislature

Under the provisions of Senate Joint Resolution No. 3, adopted February 12, 1919, and ratified at the general election in 1920, the section was amended to read as follows: "All sessions of the Legislature other than extraordinary sessions, shall continue in session for a period not exceeding fifteen days, from date of convening, during which time no bill shall be passed or rejected, unless the same shall be necessary to provide for a public emergency, shall be specially recommended by the Governor and passed by a vote of four-fifths of the members elected to each house; whereupon, a recess of both houses must be taken until the Wednesday after the second Monday of March following. On reassembling of the Legislature, no bills shall be introduced in either house without a vote of three-fourths of all the members elected to each house taken by yeas and nays. The regular session shall not continue longer than forty-five days after reconvening, without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected to each house." Vote on the amendment: For ratification, 160,929; against ratification, 122,744; majority, 38,185.

The Senate shall choose, from its own body, a President; and the House of Delegates, from its own body, a Speaker. Each House shall appoint its own officers, and remove them at pleasure. The oldest delegate present shall call the House to order at the opening of each new House of Delegates, and preside over it until the Speaker thereof shall have been chosen and have taken his seat. The oldest member of the Senate present at the commencement of each regular session thereof shall call the Senate to order, and preside over the same until a President of the Senate shall have been chosen and have taken his seat.

27. Laws shall be enacted and enforced, by suitable provisions and penalties, requiring sheriffs, and all other officers, whether State, county, district or municipal, who shall collect or receive, or whose official duty it is or shall be to collect, receive, hold or pay out any money belonging to, or which is, or shall be, for the use of the State or of any county, district, or municipal corporation, to make annual account and settlement therefor. Such settlement, when made, shall be subject to exceptions, and take such direction, and have only such force and effect, as may be provided by law; but in all cases such settlement shall be recorded, and be open to the examination of the people at such convenient place or places as may be appointed by law.

Third: The second part shall be designated "General Appropriations," and shall include all other estimates of appropriations.

The Board of Public Works shall deliver to the presiding officer of each House the budgets and a bill for all proposed appropriations of the budgets clearly itemized and classified; and the presiding officer of each House shall promptly cause said bill to be introduced therein, and such bill shall be known as the "Budget Bill." The Board of Public Works may, before final action thereon by the Legislature, amend or supplement either of said budgets to correct an oversight or in case of an emergency, with the consent of the Legislature by delivering such an amendment or supplement to the presiding officers of both Houses; and such amendment or supplement shall thereby become a part of said budget bill as an addition to the items of said bill or as modification of or a substitute for any item of said bill such amendment or supplement may affect.

The Legislature shall not amend the budget bill so as to create a deficit but may amend the bill by increasing or diminishing the items therein relating to the Legislature, and by increasing the items therein relating to the judiciary, but except as hereinbefore specified, may not alter the said bill except to strike out or reduce items therein: Provided, however, That the salary or compensation of any public officer shall not be increased or diminished during his term of office; and such bill when and as passed by both Houses shall be a law immediately without further action by the Governor.

(1) Every such appropriation shall be embodied in a separate bill limited to some single work, object or purpose therein stated and called herein a supplementary appropriation bill; (2) each supplementary appropriation bill shall provide the revenue necessary to pay the appropriation thereby made by a tax direct or indirect, to be laid and collected as shall be directed in said bill unless it appears from such budget that there is sufficient revenue available; (3) no supplementary appropriation bill shall become a law unless it be passed in each House by a vote of a majority of the members present, and the yeas and nays recorded on its final passage. Each supplementary appropriation bill shall be presented to the Governor of the State as provided in section fourteen of article seven of the Constitution and thereafter all the provisions of said section shall apply.

Nothing in this amendment shall be construed as preventing the Legislature from passing in time of war an appropriation bill to provide for the payment of any obligation of the State of West Virginia within the protection of section ten of article one of the Constitution of the United States.

Sub-Section D—General Provisions

First: If the "Budget Bill" shall not have been finally acted upon by the Legislature three days before the expiration of its regular session, the Governor may, and it shall be his duty to issue a proclamation extending the session for such further period as may, in his judgment, be necessary for the passage of such bill; but no other matter than such bill shall be considered during such extended session except a provision for the cost thereof.

Second: The Board of Public Works for the purpose of making up its budgets shall have the power, and it shall be its duty, to require from the proper State officials, including herein all executive departments, all executive and administrative officers, bureaus, boards, commissions and agencies expending or supervising the expenditure of, and all institutions applying for state monies and appropriations, such itemized estimates and other information, in such form and at such times as said board shall direct. The Board of Public Works may provide for public hearings on all estimates and may require the attendance at such hearings of representatives of all agencies, and all institutions applying for state monies. After such public hearings, it may, in its discretion, revise all estimates except those for the legislative and judiciary departments, and for the public schools as provided by law.

Third: The Legislature may, from time to time, enact such laws, not inconsistent with this section, as may be necessary and proper to carry out its provisions.

Fourth: In the event of any inconsistency between any of the provisions of this section and any of the other provisions of the Constitution, except amendments thereto heretofore made and ratified by the people, the provisions of this section shall prevail. But nothing herein shall be construed as preventing the Governor from calling extraordinary sessions of the Legislature, as provided by section seven of article seven, or as preventing the Legislature at such extraordinary sessions from considering any emergency appropriation or appropriations.

If any item of any appropriation bill passed under the provisions of this section shall be held invalid upon any ground, such invalidity shall not affect the legality of the bill or of any other item of such bill or bills.

The effect of the amendment was to strike out the following at the end of the original section: "The Secretary of State shall be appointed by the Governor, State Superintendent of Free Schools, Auditor, Treasurer, nor Attorney in office, unless sooner removed, until the expiration of the official term of the Governor by whom he shall have been appointed." For the vote on the adoption of the amendment, see note following section 2.]

He shall accompany his message with a statement of all money received and paid out by him from any funds, subject to his order, with vouchers therefor; and at the commencement of each regular session, present estimates of the amount of money required by taxation for all purposes.

Extraordinary Legislative Sessions

7. The Governor may on extraordinary occasions convene, at his own instance, the Legislature; but when so convened it shall enter upon no business except that stated in the proclamation by which it was called together.

8. The Governor shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, (a majority of all the Senators elected concurring by yeas and nays) appoint all officers whose offices are established by this Constitution, or shall be created by law, and whose appointment or election is not otherwise provided for, and no such officer shall be appointed or elected by the Legislature.

How Bills Become Laws

14. Every bill passed by the Legislature shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the Governor. If he approve, he shall sign it, and thereupon it shall become a law; but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the House in which it originated, which House shall enter the objections at large upon its journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, a majority of the members elected to that House agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by a majority of the members elected to that House, it shall become a law, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor. But in all such cases, the vote of each House shall be determined by yeas and nays to be entered on the journal. Any bill which shall not be returned by the Governor within five days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Legislature shall, by their adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall be filed with his objections in the office of the Secretary of State within five days after such adjournment, or become a law.

Whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of Governor before the first three years of the term shall have expired, a new election for Governor shall take place to fill the vacancy.

Vacancies in Other Executive Departments

17. If the office of Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer, State Superintendent of Free Schools, or Attorney General, shall become vacant by death, resignation, or otherwise, it shall be the duty of the Governor to fill the same by appointment, and the appointee shall hold his office until his successor shall be elected and qualified in such manner as may be prescribed by law. [The amendment of this section was proposed by House Joint Resoution of February 15, 1901 (Acts 1901, p. 460) and ratified at the general election in 1902. The only change in the original section was the insertion of the words "Secretary of State" in the first line and by substitution of the words "prescribed" for the word "provided." For the vote on the adoption of the amendment, see note following section 2 of this article.]

18. The subordinate officers of the Executive Department and the officers of all the public institutions of the State, shall, at least ten days preceding each regular session of the Legislature, severally report to the Governor, who shall transmit such report to the Legislature; and the Governor may at any time require information in writing, under oath, from the officers of his department, and all officers and managers of State institutions, upon any subject relating to the conditions, management and expenses of their respective offices.

Salaries of Officials

19. The officers named in this article shall receive for their services a salary to be established by law, which shall not be increased or diminished during their official terms, and they shall not, after the expiration of the terms of those in office at the adoption of this amendment, receive to their own use any fees, costs, perquisites of office, or other compensation, and all fees that may hereafter be payable by law, for any service performed by any officer provided for in this article of the Constitution, shall be paid in advance into the State treasury.

[This section, prior to amendment, read as follows: "The Governor shall receive for his services a salary of twenty-seven hundred dollars per annum and no additional emolument, allowance or perquisite shall be paid or made to him, on any account. Land Entry Prohibited

2. No entry by warrant on land in this State shall hereafter be made.

Forfeited Lands

3. All title to lands in this State heretofore forfeited, or treated as forfeited, waste and unappropriated, or escheated to the State of Virginia, or this State, or purchased by either of said States at sales made for the non-payment of taxes and become irredeemable, or hereafter forfeited, or treated as forfeited, or escheated to this State, or purchased by it and become irredeemable, not redeemed, released or otherwise disposed of, vested and remaining in this State, shall be, and is hereby transferred to, and vested in any person (other than those for whose default the same may have been forfeited or returned delinquent, their heirs or devisees), for so much thereof as such person has, or shall have had, actual continuous possession of, under color or claim of title for ten years, and who, or those under whom he claims, shall have paid the State taxes thereon for any five years during such possession; or if there be no such person, then to any person (other than those for whose default the same may have been forfeited, or returned delinquent, their heirs or devisees), for so much of said land as such person shall have title or claim to, regularly derived, mediately or immediately from, or under a grant from the Commonwealth of Virginia, or this State, not forfeited, which but for the title forfeited would be valid, and who, or those under whom he claims has, or shall have paid all State taxes charged or chargeable thereon for five successive years, after the year 1865, or from the date of the grant, if it shall have issued since that year; or if there be no such person, as aforesaid, then to any person (other than those for whose default the same may have been forfeited, or returned delinquent, their heirs or devisees), for so much of said land as such person shall have had claim to and actual continuous possession of, under color of title for any five successive years after the year 1865; and have paid all State taxes charged or chargeable thereon for said period.

But if, for any one or more of such five years, the owner of such land, or of any undivided interest therein, shall have been charged with state, county and district taxes on any part of such land, such part thereof, or undivided interest therein, shall not be forfeited for such cause. And any owner of land so forfeited, or of any interest therein, at the time of the forfeiture thereof, who shall then be an infant, married woman, or insane person, may, until the expiration of three years after the removal of such disability, have the land, or such interest, charged on such land books, with all state and other taxes that shall be, and but for the forfeiture would be, chargeable on the land, or interest therein, for the year one thousand eight hundred sixty-three, and every year thereafter, with interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum, and pay all taxes and interest thereon for such years, and thereby redeem the land or interest therein: Provided, That such right to redeem shall in no case extend beyond twenty years from the time such land was forfeited.

[This section, prior to its amendment, read as follows: "It shall be the duty of every owner of land to have it entered on the land books of the county in which it, or a part of it, is situated, and to cause himself to be charged with the taxes thereon, and pay the same. When for any five successive years after the year 1869, the owner of any tract of land containing one thousand acres or more, shall not have been charged on such books with State tax on said land, then by operation hereof, the land shall be forfeited and the title thereto vested in the State. But if, for any one or more of such five years, the owner shall have been charged with State tax on any part of the land, such part thereof shall not be forfeited for such cause. And any owner of land so forfeited, or of any interest therein at the time of the forfeiture thereof, who shall then be an infant, married woman, or insane person, may, until the expiration of three years after the removal of such disability, have the land, or such interest charged on such books, with all State and other taxes that shall be, and but for the forfeiture would be, chargeable on the land, or interest therein for the year 1863, and every year thereafter with interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum; and pay all taxes and interest thereon for all such years and thereby redeem the land or interest therein: Provided, Such right to redeem shall in no case extend beyond twenty years from the time such land was forfeited."

The amendment as set forth above was proposed by House Joint Resolution No. 4, adopted January 22, 1934 (Acts Second Ex. Sess. 1933, p. 583) and was ratified at the general election in 1934. Vote on the amendment: For ratification, 257,090; against ratification, 177,796; majority, 79,294.]

CHARITABLE

WEST VIRGINIA CHILDREN'S HOME

Elkins

Superintendent: Mrs. Eugenia D. Morris, ($150 per month). Financial Secretary: Marie L. Harris. Inmates: 77.

West Virginia Children's Home, located in the City of Elkins, was established by an act of the Legislature and constructed at a cost of $20,000. Formally opened in 1911. In 1935, $68,500 was appropriated for the second unit. Serves as a home for mentally retarded girls. Erected on a 20-acre tract, the institution owns a total of 147 acres. All meat, milk, vegetables and poultry consumed in the home are raised on the farms. The girls receive regular schooling, religious and occupational training.

WEST VIRGINIA COLORED CHILDREN'S HOME

Huntington

Superintendent: W. B. Fox, ($150 per month). Financial Secretary: Nello Reynolds. Inmates: 36.

West Virginia Colored Children's Home, located in the City of Huntington, was incorporated in 1900 as West Virginia Normal and Industrial School for Colored Orphans. Purchased by the State in 1911 at which time name was changed to West Virginia Colored Orphans' Home. The name was later changed to West Virginia Colored Children's Home. For some years the institution was supported by private contributions raised by the general manager and friends and by income from the boarding hall and farm. In 1903 the Legislature made a yearly appropriation of $1,500 and in 1910 this was raised to $3,000. The purpose of this institution is to provide for colored orphans under the age of 16 and such other children of like age that may be surrendered by their parents in case the latter be invalid, to be kept, maintained, educated and trained until they can be placed in foster homes. Provisions have been made for pupils in the institution completing high school work to attend West Virginia State College or Bluefield State Teachers College.

WEST VIRGINIA HOME FOR AGED AND INFIRM COLORED MEN AND WOMEN

McKendree

Superintendent: W. R. Franklin, M. D., ($150 per month). Secretary: Bernice Ware. Patients: 79.

The West Virginia Home for Aged and Infirm Colored Men and Women, now located at McKendree, was established by an act of the Legislature in 1923. The institution was established in Charleston and in December 1928 was moved to Huntington. Overcrowded conditions and other reasons made it necessary to move the institution again, and on September 13, 1941, it was moved to McKendree, and is now occupying the buildings and grounds of what formerly was McKendree Emergency Hospital. The present location is three and one-half miles from Prince, and 15 miles from Beckley, on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, which runs parallel with the New River. There is sufficient accommodation for 90 inmates. Purpose is to furnish home and comfort for unfortunate old people. Religious and social programs are provided and those physically able are given odd jobs in and around the institution. The home is maintained by the State, with each county paying a monthly fee for each person it sends to the home.

WEST VIRGINIA TRAINING SCHOOL

St. Marys

Superintendent: O. L. Quillen, M. D., ($275 per month). Financial Secretary: Ralph Higgins. Inmates: 76; (100 on waiting list).

West Virginia Training School, located three miles north of St. Marys on State Route 2, was established in 1921 by an act of the Legislature. The farm contains 694 acres and is an ideal location for the institution. The purpose of the institution is the treatment, training and readjustment of mentally defective children. Because of the limited capacity of the institution, admissions are restricted to boys between the ages of 7 to 14, inclusive.

CORRECTIONAL

WEST VIRGINIA

(PERTINENT FACTS ABOUT THE STATE)

DESCRIPTION OF THE STATE

West Virginia became a State in 1863 after separating from Virginia at the time of the Civil War. It is bounded on the north by Ohio, Pennsylvania and Maryland; on the south by Virginia and Kentucky; and on the West by Kentucky and Ohio. West Virginia has been termed "the most northern southern state, the most eastern western state, the most western eastern state and the most southern northern state."

It is essentially mountainous, the Appalachian Range having several spurs therein. Its western parts drain into the Ohio River and its eastern portions drain into the Potomac. The climate is moderate.

The State is the largest coal-producing State in the Union and ranks high in the production of petroleum, natural gas, iron ore, iron and steel products, glass and glassware, chemicals and chemical products. The Kanawha Valley now is recognized as the Nation's chemical center.

West Virginia produces more hardwood than any other State, excepting Arkansas, and has vast timber wealth, including yellow poplar, birch, ash, oak, spruce, hemlock and walnut. Chief agricultural products are wheat, corn, oats, hay, potatoes, tobacco, apples, peaches, plums and grapes.

Although it is believed that some white settlers crossed the Potomac and located on or near the site of Shepherdstown as early as 1719, Morgan Morgan is credited with being the first white man to build a permanent home in this State, near Bunker Hill, Berkeley County, in 1726. Out of the groups of French and English settlers and the struggle between them, came the French and Indian War, and the first armed conflict on West Virginia soil. Dunmore's war followed, in which the pioneers took part, and the battle of Point Pleasant, most important on record for West Virginians, was hailed as the first battle of the Revolution. That battle took place at the mouth of the Great Kanawha River in 1774. In the Revolutionary War that followed, no region sent more men to the East under Washington and his sub-commanders, or did more valiant defense of the "back door" of the embryonic United States, than did the men from West Virginia.

The Civil War, which brought about the separation of western Virginia from the mother State, saw the men of West Virginia in the middle of the fighting. The first battle of the conflict between the States was fought at Philippi, in Barbour County, and the famous John Brown "Insurrection" took place at Harper's Ferry. The State provided leaders on both sides. General Thomas J. ("Stonewall") Jackson, brilliant Confederate leader and the most prominent West Virginian of them all, hailed from Lewis County, while the State contributed to the Union Generals Lightburn, Kelley and Harris.

The State's mountains, forests and streams offer attractive recreational facilities. There are two national forests (Monongahela and George Washington), in addition to numerous State parks that offer cabins and facilities to the public.

White Sulphur Springs, in Greenbrier County, is world famous. The year 1941 saw it converted from a spa, however. Shortly after the United States entered the War, representatives of enemy nations were concentrated there, awaiting return to their home countries. On September 1, 1942, it again came under Federal control, to be used as a hospital and sanitarium for Americans wounded in the War.

Principal institution of learning in the State is West Virginia University. Other State-owned colleges are Marshall, Fairmont, West Liberty, West Virginia Institute of Technology, Concord, Glenville, Potomac State, and West Virginia State and Bluefield, the latter two Negro. Principal private and denominational colleges are: Alderson-Broadus, Beckley, Bethany, Davis and Elkins, Morris Harvey, Salem and Wesleyan.

CAPITOL BUILDING

West Virginia's Capitol Building, one of the most beautiful in the Nation, was completed in February, 1932, at a cost of $9,491,180.03. (Picture on page viii.)

Made up of three wings, the main one of which faces the Great Kanawha River, the building covers 16 acres of ground and has 333 rooms. Floor space is 535,000 square feet. The Building contains 10,300,000 cubic feet. Exterior of the building is Indiana buff limestone and interior is Imperial Danby Vermont marble. Nearly 5,000 tons of steel went into the construction. The dome, covered with 22½ carat gold leaf, is 300 feet high.

Other interesting facts about the building are:

Chandelier in dome weighs 4,000 pounds, has 15,000 candle power, and is suspended 180 feet above floor by a gold chain 54 feet long.

Rug in Governor's reception room weighs 1,809 pounds and measures 26 by 60 feet.

Chandeliers in House and Senate chambers each are made up of 10,000 separate pieces of rock crystal.

Bronze doors on porticos weigh 2,800 pounds each.

THE GREAT SEAL AND COAT-OF-ARMS OF WEST VIRGINIA

The Great Seal and Coat-of-Arms of West Virginia, adopted by the Legislature on September 26, 1863, was designed by Joseph H. Diss Debar, of Saint Clara, Doddridge County, who served as Commissioner of Immigration under Governor Boreman and who was a member of the Legislature of 1864. (See obverse of Great Seal on front cover.)

The seal design is described in full detail by the following report of the legislative committee on suggestions and designs submitted by the designer.

"The disc of the Great Seal is to be two and one-half inches in diameter; the obverse to bear the legend, 'The State of West Virginia,' the constitutional designation of our Republic, which with the motto, 'Montani Semper Liberi—Mountaineers always free'—is to be inserted in the circumference. In the center a rock with ivy, emblematic of stability and continuance, and on the face of the rock the inscription, 'June 20, 1863', the date of our foundation, as if graven with a pen of iron in the rock forever. On the right of the rock a farmer clothed in the traditional hunting garb, peculiar to this region, his right arm resting on the plow handles, and his left supporting a woodman's axe, indicating that while our territory is partly cultivated, it is still in the process of being cleared of the original forest. At his right hand a sheaf of wheat and a cornstalk on the left hand of the rock, a miner, indicated by a pick-axe on his shoulder, with barrels and lumps of mineral at his feet. On his left on anvil, partly seen, on which rests a sledge hammer, typical of the mechanic arts, the whole indicating the principal pursuits and resources of the State. In front of the rock and the hunter, as if just laid down by the latter and ready to be resumed at a moment's notice, two hunters' rifles, crossed and surmounted at the place of contact by the Phrygian cap, or cap of liberty, indicating that our freedom and liberty were won and will be maintained by the force of arms.

"The reverse of the Great Seal is to be encircled by a wreath composed of laurel and oak leaves, emblematic of valor and strength, with fruits and cereals, productions of the State. For device, a landscape. In the distance, on the left of the disc, a wooded mountain, and on the right a cultivated slope with the log farmhouse peculiar to this region. On the side of the mountain, a representation of the viaduct on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in Preston County, one of the great engineering triumphs of the age, with a train of cars about to pass over it. Near the center a factory, in the front of which a river with boats, on the bank and to the right of it nearer the foreground, a derrick and a shed, appertaining to the production of salt and petroleum. In the foreground a meadow with cattle and sheep feeding and reposing, the whole indicating the leading characteristics, productions and pursuits of the State at this time. Above the mountain, etc., the sun merging from the clouds, indicating that former obstacles to our prosperity are now disappearing. In the rays of the sun the motto 'Libertas et Fidelitate'—Freedom and Loyalty—indicating that our liberty and independence are the result of faithfulness to the Declaration and the National Constitution."

The Constitution of West Virginia, Article II, Section 7, provides that: "The present seal of the State, with its motto 'Montani Semper Liberi,' shall be the Great Seal of the State of West Virginia, and shall be kept by the Secretary of State, to be used by him, officially as directed by law."

The reverse of the Great Seal has not been in use in recent years.

WEST VIRGINIA STATE FLAG

The present design for the West Virginia State Flag was adopted by the Legislature on March 7, 1929. The proportions are the same as those of the United States ensign.

The field is pure white, upon the center of which is emblazoned in proper colors the coat-of-arms of the State, upon which appears the date of the admission of West Virginia into the Union and the motto "Montani Semper Liberi."

Above the coat-of-arms of the State of West Virginia there is a ribbon lettered, "State of West Virginia," and a wreath of rhododendron maximum in proper colors is arranged appropriately around the lower part thereof. The field of pure white is bordered by a strip of blue on four sides.

THE STATE FLOWER

The rhododendron, or big laurel (rhododendron maximum), was named as the official State Flower under the provisions of a joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of West Virginia on January 23, 1903, during the administration of Governor Albert Blakeslee White. (Picture of rhododendron on page 178.)

AGRICULTURE

THE FARMER GOES TO WAR

By W. C. HANDLAN
In charge, Public Relations,
West Virginia Department of Agriculture

Entrance of the United States into the war found the West Virginia farmer already enlisted in the greatest program of agricultural production ever undertaken at any time in any land. The machinery was already in operation. It was only a matter, in West Virginia, of converting a fully powered "defense" plant composed of some 100,000 farms to one of war.

It was no coincidence that Agriculture was ready. Congressional approval of the lend-lease plan in April, 1941, had made it obvious to farm leaders that, peace or war, the Nation's farms would have to operate at capacity, so far as many commodities were concerned, during the season of 1942. Plans were drawn, goals established, and surveys made in every state to determine if farms could be geared to a production schedule which would support an improved program of nutrition in the United States, make the United States' growing armed forces the "best fed" in the world, and permit at the same time the shipment of heavy supplies to Britain, under the lend-lease act.

Surveys generally were concluded the latter part of November, 1941. In West Virginia, approximately 90 per cent of all farm families were consulted, either directly or indirectly, and informed as to the production situation for 1942. The response was promising.

Only a few days after the completion of the survey the Japs bombed the United States Naval Base at Pearl Harbor.

Fully aroused, the West Virginia farmer trained his sights on a record-breaking volume of production for 1942; and as winter changed to spring, and spring to summer, it became apparent that he would hit the target dead center, barring unforeseen accidents.

Meanwhile, war brought about changes in the 1942 farm program. The American farmer was called upon to supply not only Britain, but Russia and China as well. Engaged in an unprecedented production effort, the farmer found himself faced by troublesome war-born problems. Nationally, he was hampered first by shortages of labor, of new machinery and of transportation. In West Virginia, bolstered by a backlog accumulated over a period of years, lack of new machinery and of transportation did not shape up as a critical problem in 1942; and only in the commercial apple orchards of Jefferson and Berkeley counties and in the tomato growing areas of Morgan county was the labor situation acute. Elsewhere farm labor was spotty, chief sufferers being dairy farmers who lost experienced hands to the selective service or to industry and were hard put to it to find qualified replacements.

As the United States became an active participant in the war, almost without exception every public agency having to do with farming and the farmer suspended normal operations and directed all efforts toward advancing the war program. Commissioner of Agriculture J. B. McLaughlin put the State Department of Agriculture on a war basis previously planned and, without slighting any part of the department's program as directed by law, arranged to place greater emphasis on marketing, transportation of farm products and other things related to the new status. The College of Agriculture and the Agricultural Experiment Station went on a war footing. Likewise the Extension Division. The USDA Defense Board became overnight the USDA War Board, and with the cooperation of the State Agricultural Planning Committee, representing all public farm agencies in the State, organized wartime guidance for the farm program in nearly every county. As the first year of war passed the half-way mark, West Virginia farm leaders appeared well organized for the effort on the home front, and the battle of production was well on its way to being won by the farmers themselves.

The question is asked as to the importance of West Virginia's agricultural participation in World War II. What products from West Virginia will find their way to Army camps and to Naval bases, or into lend-lease shipments?

The answer is that comparatively little production from West Virginia farms will move beyond the State's own borders. Milk produced in West Virginia and marketed through evaporating plants may find its way into direct wartime usage. Apples from West Virginia orchards are earmarked for Army use by the quartermaster corps. Some meat animals from West Virginia pastures may reach the armed forces and the civilian populations of America's allies.

The bulk of West Virginia production, however, will go to supplying domestic requirements, particularly in the State's industrial areas, thus lifting a heavy burden from the national transportation system and permitting demands of the armed forces and those of the lend-lease program to be furnished from the agricultural middle west and from other areas where necessary commodities are produced in commercial volumes.

This does not mean that West Virginia's agriculture is a minor industry. Far from it. In 1941, gross farm income in West Virginia was $79,553,000. A return of that size for the agricultural industry ranks farming very close to the top among West Virginia's business enterprises.

A story of the farmer's participation in the first year of the war would not be complete without reference to some of the campaigns planned to help reach major objectives in the wartime farm program.

A 1942 "Victory Garden" program touched not only every farm in West Virginia but in addition was productive of an estimated 200,000 vegetable gardens of varying sizes in rural, suburban and even in urban areas.

Food conservation programs were effective in every county, the objectives being the preservation, by canning, drying and storage, of all possible food supplies for use by farm families and the families of non-farm gardeners during the winter and into the spring of 1943. An improved nutrition was also the aim of a State-wide campaign, based on a survey which showed West Virginia families consuming substantially less of many farm commodities than the requirements of good health dictated.

Repair of farm machinery to keep existing equipment in service was one of the first undertakings of the wartime farm program. This was based on necessity, since manufacturers of farm machinery were restricted as to volume of new equipment they could turn out while being authorized to increase the volume of manufactured repair parts.

Marketing came in for special emphasis as the summer of 1942 drew on. A new development was a farmers' market for Pocahontas, Greenbrier, Summers and Monroe counties, established at Lewisburg with the cooperation of the State Department of Agriculture. Other public farm markets operated at Wayne, Buckhannon and elsewhere with the support of the State Department of Agriculture.

Farm labor problems came in for study by, and action from, a State-wide committee which set up sub-committees in nearly every county as a means of assembling reports and dealing with a situation which caused concern in many areas as harvest time was reached. A major activity of the State Farm Labor Committee was an all-out enrollment of harvest hands, undertaken in the Eastern Panhandle to meet requirements of the 1942 apple harvest.

Recognition of the seriousness of the farm labor situation came from two public agencies not essentially concerned with Agriculture originally. The United States Employment Service designated a State farm placement supervisor in West Virginia to direct a wartime farm labor service, and listed farming as one of the vital industries for which man-power must be found. The Work Projects Administration in West Virginia likewise set up a farm placement program under direction of special personnel. Under WPA regulations, workers are laid off public work projects immediately if their services are requested by farmers, providing only that working conditions on the farms are safe and the wage rate is comparable with that prevailing for farm labor in the community where the help is required.

From the public school system came substantial help for farmers in spring and fall with the adoption of what is known as a work-experience program. Under the work-experience program, pupils of suitable qualifications are permitted to remain out of school on specified days without being counted absent, to help with spring planting on the farms of their parents or neighbors, or to assist with the harvest.

Veterinarians, those representing State and United States Departments of Agriculture as well as private practitioners, are enrolled in a program intended to protect the State's extensive livestock industry which, in 1941, netted $36,635,000 in cash to West Virginia farmers.

The State Office of Civilian Defense designated an assistant coordinator in charge of Agriculture and assembled material from British and Hawaiian sources on the handling of livestock during an air raid, and on steps to be taken should supplies of livestock feed, or standing crops or pasture, be contaminated by poison gas.

Support of the farmers' market for eggs, a vital wartime commodity, brought West Virginia producers into direct contact with the operation of the national war program during the late spring and early summer of 1942. West Virginia farmers, as their contribution to imperative production, were asked to produce seven per cent more eggs in 1942 than the year before. In return the United States Department of Agriculture agreed to support the price of eggs on the market so that the farmer would not sustain a heavy loss through the mounting cost of poultry feed and other supplies. Arrival of the so-called "flush" season for eggs in the spring of 1942 saw prices in rural areas crash to low points seriously threatening the farmers' livelihood. With the cooperation of the State Department of Agriculture, other public agencies and interested businessmen and farmers, the Agriculture Marketing Administration, a unit of the United States Department of Agriculture, set up three buying points for eggs in the State, with the result prices leveled off at a point where the producer could operate without loss.

Officials believed that farms could be used for other things than growing crops. To meet an emergency, Commissioner of Agriculture McLaughlin invited Army air officials and the Civil Aeronautics organization to make use without cost of a level unobstructed pasture on his Putnam county farm, approximately 1000 by 5000 feet, as an emergency landing field, to serve until a new airport could be secured for the Charleston area. It was suggested that farmers in other areas might be able to lend the use of parts of their farms for the same purpose. Action on the offer had not been taken by authorities as this was written.

Looking forward to 1943 and a second year of wartime agriculture, West Virginia farmers generally were preparing for a harder time of it. The transportation problem, from farm to market, would be aggravated unless some prompt solution was forthcoming to the tire and gasoline situation. Farm labor would be more scarce, as the selective service and industry made a greater drain on available supplies. Farm machinery which held up during 1942 might not survive another season, and replacements were doubtful.

And yet, the West Virginia farm family is not prepared to quit. Many of them have sons and brothers in the armed forces. All of them realize that the war on the home front must be pushed as vigorously as the fighting on the actual battle lines. As evidence of the spirit of the times, a 1942 mid-summer labor survey showed that approximately nine per cent of all farm labor was being done by women.

We'll do the best we can, West Virginia farm families say, with what we've got. And judging by progress made in the first year of the war, the "best" will be very good, indeed.

FISHING STREAMS AND SPECIES

(Compiled by J. W. Heslen, Jr., Fish Technician, Conservation Commission)

For the benefit of anglers who desire information relative to stocked fishing streams and nearest towns in which hotel accommodations can be found, the following list has been prepared. Numerous other streams and tributaries other than these listed have received substantial stockings of fish. These, however, are the largest, most important and probably the most capable of supporting extra heavy angling pressure. It must be understood that the order in which they are listed does not indicate the number of fish placed in the stream, or the anglers chances of catching fish. Fishing in any of these streams does not necessarily indicate that the Conservation Commission promises the limit of fish to each fisherman. This is intended merely as a guide.

EDUCATION

EDUCATION IN WEST VIRGINIA, 1941-42

By W. W. TRENT
State Superintendent of Schools

Within the school year 1941-42, education in West Virginia attained the highest level in the history of the State. The educational and professional preparation of administrators and teachers was higher than any previous year. The average daily attendance compared with enrollment was unusually high. In addition to the regular courses, a number of new courses were offered and many wartime activities were carried through successfully. The devotion of teachers and the interest manifested by them in their work contributed toward making the year a successful one.

The gross enrollment in the schools for the year was 500,831. Of that number, 342,325 were in the elementary schools; 37,040 in the junior high schools; 112,246 in the three, four, and six-year high schools; and 9,220 in the colleges. The average daily attendance by schools was: Elementary, 270,255; junior high schools, 29,657; three, four, and six-year high schools, 95,153.

The high schools numbered 271. Of these, 17 were three-year schools; 75, four-year; and 179, six-year. Of these three, four, and six-year high schools, only 23 had enrollments of fewer than 100 pupils and only 6 had an enrollment of fewer than 50. Fifteen schools had an enrollment of more than 1,000 pupils each. The largest school enrolled 1,900 pupils. More than half the pupils in the State attended schools enrolling more than 550 pupils.

The number of junior high schools maintained for the year was 99. Of these, 17 enrolled fewer than 100 pupils; only two had fewer than 50. More than half of the junior high schools enrolled more than 500. Transportation made these schools possible. Through consolidation, the elimination of most of the small and expensive schools made available schools large enough to offer a fairly rich program of studies.

The total cost of the public elementary and high schools for the year 1941-42 was approximately $31,000,000. Toward this amount, the State contributed $15,437,285. The counties through taxes and miscellaneous receipts contributed the remainder. The per capita cost for the year based on net enrollment was $67.28; on average daily attendance, $75.50.

Highly Trained Teaching Staffs

The number of teachers employed in the elementary and high schools of the State was 16,119—in elementary schools, 10,073 white; 644 negro; total 10,717; in the high schools 5,028 white; 374 negro; total, 5,402. Of this number, 1,675 held masters' degrees; 6,641, bachelors' degrees; 6,610, normal school certificates; and 1,193 held certificates of lower grade. The percentage of teachers of the State holding standard normal certificates or higher was 92.6 which is the highest percentage in the history of the State. All county superintendents held bachelors' degrees with twelve semester hours of supervision and administration and had had five years' experience. All newly appointed assistant county superintendents and a large percentage of the holdovers had the same qualifications.

The minimum qualifications of high school teachers with the exception of a very few in the special subjects were bachelors' degrees with special training in the subject of their teaching field and the general art of teaching. Practically one-third of the high school teachers and practically all of the high school principals held masters' degrees from institutions approved to grant such degrees.

In addition to giving instruction in the regular courses, the schools gave instruction in extra-curricular activities and aided in a number of wartime programs. They directed activities of the boys and girls in the West Virginia Clubs in which there were enrolled 116,158. Of that number, 209 earned their Golden Horseshoe and were initiated into the order of the Knights and Ladies of the Golden Horseshoe. The number of pupils taking vocational subjects increased materially over the former year. Many of the industrial training shops were used by the Federal government for classes in "Trade and Industrial Training for National Defense." Others were used for courses in Nutrition, First Aid, and Home Economics. Within the year the elementary teachers working through committees prepared handbooks on Intermediate Reading and on Practical Arts; gave instruction in First Aid; assisted in the sale of stamps and bonds; and gave instruction for air raids.

The number of books in the libraries of the schools was increased materially. Reports show that there were at the end of the year in the elementary schools approximately 1,193,725 books; in the high schools 755,144.

Adults Rehabilitated

Within the year, 1,566 adult citizens applied to the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation for service. Of that number, 1,185 were surveyed and 321 placed in permanent employment at standard wages. A total of $60,362.02 was spent during the year. On the basis of those placed, the amount expended per person rehabilitated was $188.04.

During the year approximately 133,000 pupils were transported safely to and from school in 1,173 buses. The outstanding features of school transportation in West Virginia were school ownership of buses; driver selection and training; inspection of buses; and safety and economy of operation. Boards of education owned 1,109 of the 1,173 buses operated. All drivers were carefully selected and required to pass a written examination covering important facts relating to the operation of buses and to give practical demonstration of ability to drive before they were granted a driver's license. Three State-wide inspections of school buses were made within the year. Within the period of 1937-1941, inclusive, the county school systems bought 616 school buses with an actual saving of $260,279.22 below the standard retail price. Each school bus in use transported daily an average of 110 pupils.

At the beginning of the year 1941-42, the State inaugurated a program of teaching homebound crippled children with funds appropriated by the State. The amount appropriated for the year was $25,000; the amount expended, $22,502.10,—used for teachers' salaries and travel expense. The pupils served were those between the ages of six and 21, mentally qualified to benefit from instruction and who by reason of physical handicaps were unable to walk or be transferred to the public schools. Thirty-two counties participated in the program; 97 part-time teachers and nine full-time teachers were employed. They served 320 pupils. The counties having full-time teachers were: Cabell, Harrison, Mason, Kanawha, Ohio, Raleigh, Summers, Wood, and Wyoming; part-time teachers, Berkeley, Braxton, Fayette, Greenbrier, Hampshire, Hancock, Jefferson, Lewis, Logan, Marion, Mineral, Mingo, Monongalia, Monroe, Morgan, McDowell, Nicholas, Roane, Taylor, Tucker, Upshur, Wayne, and Wirt. All in all, the beginning was favorable. Children who had previously been left at home without instruction were given training. Many made unusual advancement. All were happy and appreciative of the instruction given.

Free Textbook Program Expanded

Prior to the school year 1941, the counties of the State were permitted to provide books for children whose parents in the judgment of the board were unable to purchase them. Beginning with 1941-42, the counties were permitted to use any money not used for dependent children for the purchase of free textbooks for other children. Many counties were thus enabled to provide additional books for one or more grades or one or more subjects. A few counties provided free textbooks for all children in the elementary schools. A few counties were able to supplement the $150,000 appropriated by the Legislature.

Throughout the year the Commission on Teacher Education of the American Council on Education gave aid to the institutions of higher learning in the State, private and public, in the development of a single curriculum intended to serve as a basis for granting the public school certificate valid in both the elementary and secondary schools. National consultants in the fields of English, social studies, and psychology, in cooperation with the faculties of the colleges of the State, worked under the direction of Dr. Charles E. Prall, Field Coordinator for the Commission on Teacher Education. The consultants visited a number of colleges and held a number of conferences. At the end of the year, the State Board of Education approved a course of study covering the first two years of the proposed four-year curriculum.

School System's Part in the War

Unusual and substantial advances were made through the services of the West Virginia Wartime Education Commission, designated by the State Superintendent and composed of 26 widely known educators who represented the State University, the colleges, high schools, junior highs, and elementary schools. The Commission met upon urgent calls for study and direct action on the State's educational problems in contributing to the successful prosecution of the war, and recommended:

1. The teaching of Red Cross First Aid to all children eleven years or older, beginning in September 1942, the manner of the instruction to be left to local option;
2. Work experience projects, in which pupils may be assigned as part of their school work to necessary duties at home and in the field, such as emergency assistance in cases of sickness or the harvesting of crops;
3. Provisional teaching certificates in the various branches good for a year's duration in order to fill the teacher vacancies caused by the absorption of men teachers into the armed forces; and
4. Additional instruction in physical fitness programs and the teaching of practical nursing, home care, nutrition, and safety, in accordance with the program of the U. S. Office of Education.

These recommendations and others of similar import were made by the Commission to the State Board of Education that ordered them to be put into effect immediately.

The work experience program is a decidedly new trend in practical education. It means that children will be taught how to live, as well as how to serve their country. The response of educators and teachers to this wartime program was gratifying.

Increased Emphasis on Vocational Training

The activities included in the program of vocational education for 1941-42 were modified to make direct contribution to the war effort. Teachers of vocational agriculture assisted farm boys and adult farmers in increasing production, in repairing farm machinery and equipment, in salvaging scrap rubber and metals, and in obtaining seeds, fertilizer and other needed farm supplies. Teachers of vocational home economics placed increased emphasis on health and nutrition and food production and preservation. Teachers in the day trade classes and part-time evening classes assisted youth and adult workers in preparing for positions in defense industries and increasing the efficiency of those already employed. Teachers in distributive education provided training for employees in service in the distributive occupations. Enrolled in the classes for vocational education for the year in regular day classes were 12,763 school boys and girls; in part-time classes, 4,850 youth and adults; and in evening classes, 5,699 adults. The total of those receiving systematic instruction in these programs was 23,312.

The entrance of the United States into the second World War placed an increased emphasis on the Program of Vocational Training for War Production Workers as operated by the State Board for Vocational Education in the State, with funds appropriated by Congress. Training was offered during the year through the following types of programs: Vocational training for war production workers, vocational education for out-of-school rural and non-rural youth, and vocational education for youth employed on NYA work projects. All of these programs had as a controlling purpose the training of workers for employment in industries essential to National Defense.

Training for War Production Workers

As of June 30, 1942, 26 centers operating under the Program of Vocational Training for War Production Workers offered a total of 243 courses, including sheet metal, welding, aircraft sheet metal, radio service and repair, motive equipment repair, machine tool operation, machine shop practice, electrical work, instrument maintenance and repair, drafting, patternmaking, foundry, aircraft engine mechanics, riveting, power sewing machine operation, precision lens grinding, and internal combustion engines, with a total net enrollment of 4,652. The centers included Arthurdale, Beckley, Benwood, Bluefield, Charleston, Clarksburg, Elkins, Fairmont, Hamlin, Huntington, Keyser, Logan, Martinsburg, Morgantown, Parkersburg, Point Pleasant, St. Marys, Sistersville, South Charleston, Webster Springs, Weirton, Wheeling, Williamson, West Virginia University, West Virginia Institute of Technology, and West Virginia State College. A total of 5,415 trainees were placed in various industries throughout the State and in bordering states.

A total of $1,029,868.73 was expended by the State during the fiscal year 1941-42 in the operation of this program. In addition to this amount, a total of $143,956.44 was expended for equipping new machine shops at Beckley, Bluefield, Clarksburg, Fairmont, Morgantown, Logan, Weirton, West Virginia Institute of Technology, and West Virginia State College, and for providing additional welding and machine shop equipment for other centers.

Out-of-School Rural and Non-Rural Youth Programs

At the close of June 30, 1942, 102 courses were being offered to trainees enrolled in the Out-of-School Rural and Non-Rural Youth Program. Courses in auto-mechanics, metal work, woodworking, and electrical work were offered in 33 counties. At the end of the fiscal year a total net enrollment of 1,325 was recorded, this being the highest in the 13 North Atlantic states and tenth highest in the United States. West Virginia led such states as New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio in enrollments. A total of $235,650.07 was expended during the fiscal year in the operation of this program.

A total of $111,459.91 was expended for courses given under the Program of Vocational Education for Youth Employed on NYA Work Projects. As of June 30, the program was in operation in eight counties with a total of 1,024 trainees enrolled.

Retirement Law in Effect

The State Retirement Law became effective June 4, 1941, and was put into operation this school year, 1941-42. The law recognizes three classes of teachers: Former teachers—those who had taught a total of 30 years prior to the effective date of the law; present teachers—all teachers under contract on that date; and new entrants—all persons entering the teaching profession for the first time after the effective date of the law and all teachers resuming teaching who were not employed on the effective date of the law. The total number of former teachers and teachers retiring during the year sharing in the retirement fund for the year, 1941-42, was 783. Of that number, 29 died within the year, leaving at the end of the year 754 sharing in the retirement system. The amount paid (July 1, 1941, to June 30, 1942, inclusive) to former teachers and present teachers retiring within the year was $348,714.54. Practically all of the present teachers elected to become regular members of the system. All newly employed teachers are required to become members of the system. The number of active members at the end of the year was 16,007; number of withdrawals during year, 61; and number of deaths, 8. The amount paid by present teachers to the retirement system was $802,421.69.

GEOLOGICAL AND GEOGRAPHICAL

THE FUTURE OF NATURAL FUELS IN WEST VIRGINIA*

By DR. PAUL H. PRICE

State Geologist

From the dawn of civilization until the 19th century, man's major fuel was wood, and future generations may return to this source of renewable fuel when our limited supplies of non-renewable fuels are exhausted.

Within the relatively short space of some 80 years man has developed gigantic industries devoted to the extraction from the earth of enormous quantities of fuels that required nature millions of years to form as stored sunlight. The extraction and utilization of these fuels have revolutionized modern industrial development. Since, however, these supplies are definitely limited, and since man will certainly exhaust these supplies in a relatively short time, it is only good business that we utilize them to their greatest possible advantage, and thus prolong the time until we must return to wood or some other fuel.

Authentic "firsts" in discovery, production, and utilization for most any natural product are hard to establish. I think, however, that we may give credit to Virginia for the first relatively important production of coal in the United States, but this from the Richmond area. To Pennsylvania belongs the credit for originating the petroleum industry, beginning with the historic Drake Well near Titusville in 1859; and West Virginia for the early development of the natural gas industry.

The first use of natural gas for manufacturing purposes in America was by William Tompkins in the Kanawha Valley, who in 1841 struck a large flow of gas in boring a salt well only a few hundred feet away from the "burning spring" that Washington had noted 66 years before, and piped the gas to his salt works to evaporate brine.

These early utilizations of coal, petroleum, and natural gas in America, however, were all meager, sporadic, and of little quantitative economic importance.

Rapid Rise in Development of Mineral Fuels

Coal mining developed slowly in West Virginia until in the 1860's. By 1870 the production had risen to 608,878 short tons; in 1880 to 1,829,844 tons; in 1890 to 7,394,654 tons, and in 1900 to 22,647,207 tons. The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad was built through West Virginia in 1873 and it was during that year the production in West Virginia showed its greatest proportionate increase. The Pocahontas field was opened in 1883 which gave further impetus to the State's rapid growth in production. The first world war created abnormal demands for coal which led to production development greater than a peace-time economy could support. Depressed markets and keen competition have led to extensive mechanization of mines and greater care in preparation. The war effort has again increased the demand for coal which will create production greater than peace-time economy likely can support.

In 1920, I. C. White divided the modern history of petroleum and natural gas into three epochs of about 20 years each.

A "first" (1862-83) he termed the epoch of mechanical invention in the production and transportation of petroleum. It was during this period that methods for deep drilling were perfected, and the fields of Pennsylvania were further developed; the extensions into Ohio and West Virginia not spreading far from the original developments. Transportation of oil through pipe lines and tank cars were introduced, and refining methods were extended and improved. Large gas wells were incidentally discovered in drilling for petroleum.

The second epoch beginning with 1883 was noteworthy in many respects. It marked the rise of the natural gas industry due to the general introduction of gaseous fuel into domestic use throughout the petroleum fields, and its extended use in the manufacturing industry. It was during this period (1885) that I. C. White successfully demonstrated the validity of the Anticlinal Theory of Hunt, Andrews, and Hoeffler, which he vitalized and regenerated for all time.

The third 20-year epoch was characterized especially by the large production and utilization of gasoline, brought about principally through the invention of the internal combustion engine and the general introduction of liquid fuel where available for locomotive, steamship, and other industrial purposes; the Diesel engine having done for heavy liquid fuels what the general internal combustion engine had done for gasoline.

Since White's classification, a fourth era may be added, a period of specialized technology in prospecting, producing, refining and processing oil and natural gas.

Development and Present Uses

West Virginia has been a large producer of coal, oil, and gas, and the major economy of the State has revolved about the production and use of these fuels.

Figure 1 (page 624) shows the production of bituminous coal, petroleum, and natural gas in West Virginia from 1863 to 1940 in billions of pounds. The production statistics of each of the fuels, bituminous coal, oil, and gas, were converted to pounds for purposes of comparison.

Statistics on the consumption of coal by states are not readily available, but since the yearly production of our State is 27.8 per cent of the total yearly production of the United States, these data on the consumption and utilization of bituminous coal in the country should be a fair index of the consumption of coal mined in the State.

Figure 2 (page 625) shows the tonnage of bituminous coal absorbed by the principal branches of consumption during 1940. A marked decrease has occurred during the past 25 years in the consumption of coal for colliery fuel, foreign bunkers, locomotive fuel, beehive coke, and foreign export. The decrease in the consumption of coal in the beehive ovens is offset by its increased use in by-product ovens, although the demands of the war have caused a rapid increase in beehive coke production. Technologic improvements in coal utilization since 1918 have been responsible for an appreciable reduction in the demand for coal for industrial purposes. Although the effect is cumulative, the changes have been taking place at a much lower rate in recent years. Electric power plants consumed 7.05 lbs. of coal per kilowatt hour in 1899, while they consumed only 1.37 lbs. of coal per kilowatt hour in 1940. Steam railroads reduced their coal consumption per ton-mile of freight service about 2 per cent in 1940. Increasing economy in the utilization of fuel, arising from improved heating equipment, has been supplemented by developments in insulation and building construction. Automatic stokers, weatherstripping, and insulating materials have combined to limit the aggregate demand of domestic and small industrial consumers, who comprise a large segment of the national market. This, however, is conservation in the best sense.

It can readily be seen from Figure 2 that the major use of coal is as a fuel prepared at the mine. The coke and manufactured gas industries convert coal into fuels that are more suitable for special uses than is the raw coal. It is from the by-products of these two industries that an economically large chemical and allied industry has been developed, but again a large percentage of the coal is converted into and used as a fuel. West Virginia manufactures very little gas, there being only a few small plants devoted to the sole purpose of gas manufacture. The coke industry in West Virginia is also very small compared to the quantities of coal produced for the coke industry. In 1940 West Virginia produced 34.6 per cent of the coal used by the by-product coke industry of the United States, however, she produced only 3.5 per cent of the coke. In 1936 West Virginia had four by-product plants in which there were 362 ovens; and nine beehive plants with 1,459 ovens.

Approximately 70 per cent of the coal charged into by-product ovens is converted to coke, the remainder is recovered as gas, ammonia, tar, benzol, and other products the relative values of which are shown in Figure 2. Of the coke oven gas produced in West Virginia, 10 per cent, 2,000,000 M. cubic feet, was sold to industry; 50 per cent was used in the steel or affiliated industries; 33 per cent in heating the coke ovens, and 7 per cent in boilers.

The production of crude petroleum in West Virginia had barely got under way in 1891 (Figure 1). In 1940 West Virginia produced 3,444,000 barrels of crude oil, while a total of 3,840,000 barrels of crude were run to stills in this state, or slightly more than the 1940 production. Considerable quantities were exported and imported.

The major refined products from crude petroleum run to stills are gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil, and lubricants. Statistics were not obtained of this industry in the state, but statistics of the Bureau of Mines show the national trend in the relative yields of these four products since 1904. There has been a large increase in the percentage yields of gasolines and fuel oils, a large decrease in the yields of kerosene, and an early percentage decrease in the yields of lubricants.

Natural gas is consumed almost entirely as a fuel, with very little refinement. Practically all of the gas produced in West Virginia is treated for the removal of gasoline, and quite a number of these plants are recovering ethane, propane, butanes, and pentanes. One chemical firm has six such plants in connection with natural gas gasoline plants in this State. Recently the gas coming from new discoveries in deeper horizons has contained objectionable quantities of sulphur compounds which required purification plants.

The only industry in which considerable quantities of natural gas are used as a raw material is the carbon-black industry, which in 1937 consumed 14 per cent of the production of natural gas in the United States. Although this industry was a major consumer of natural gas in the early development of the industry, there are no plants manufacturing carbon-black from natural gas today in West Virginia, our last plant being abandoned in 1930.

The major portion of the natural gas produced in the United States is consumed for domestic purposes. The industrial consumption consists of the gas required for field operations, the carbon-black industry, petroleum refineries, electric public-utility power plants, Portland cement plants; while other industries account for approximately one-third of the industrial consumption.

Figure 3 (page 625) shows recoveries to date, and estimated reserves of coal, oil, and gas in West Virginia in billions of pounds. West Virginia has produced 6,888 billions of pounds of bituminous coal, 114 billion pounds of oil, and 350 billion pounds of natural gas. Estimated recoverable reserves for West Virginia in billions of pounds are: Bituminous coal 151,000; oil 13; natural gas 150. The recoverable reserves with the large coal reserves, show that West Virginia will continue to be a large producer of these important fuels.

Physical Separation and Chemical Changes of Fuels

As produced, coal is a solid, oil is generally a liquid, and natural gas for the most part is a "permanent" gas; that is, non-condensable to a liquid or solid under the conditions generally prevailing in the production and consumption of the gas. The adaptability of any fuel for a particular use is dependent, and quite often to a high degree, on its physical state.

When a chemical change takes place in any material, that material or parts of it no longer have the original properties, but assumes entirely new ones. These new properties may especially adapt the new material to new and extensive uses, or may permit ready physical separation into a series of new marketable products. Chemical transformations are daily becoming more and more important to the fuel industry. As industry becomes more and more diversified, it demands more and more diversified fuels, each of which may vary within narrow limits.

Bituminous coal, even though it consists of a mixture of a very large number of substances, is not readily separated into a series of products by physical methods, but chemical changes can be brought about which will convert it into a large number of compounds. A very large percentage of the products obtained by the chemical changes being made in the coal is consumed as a bulk fuel; the two major fuels so prepared are coke and manufactured gas. From coke and gas manufacture a wide variety of by-products, including gases, liquids, and solids, may be refined having specific uses in numerous manufacturing industries, as well as being suitable for sale to the consuming public.

Crude petroleum can be refined by physical methods into a large number of satisfactory fuels. However, surplus stocks of certain refinery products as gas and fuel oils, and competition, together with an increasing demand for better anti-knock and fuel efficiencies, have encouraged the development of motor fuels through chemical change.

The fuel constituents of natural gas consist of the straight and branched chain saturated hydrocarbons; methane, ethane, propane, butanes, pentanes, hexanes, heptanes, octanes, and small amounts of higher boiling hydrocarbons; which can be separated from each other and marketed as gases and liquids. The liquefaction of natural gas has developed in West Virginia and is now successfully used to store natural gas.

Except in the manufacture of carbon black, chemical transformations of natural gas are limited in extent as compared to the total production of natural gas.

The interchangeability of the natural fuels; coal, oil, and gas, and their products, is of vital importance. In the domestic market these three fuels are already competitive, hence a shortage of one could soon be replaced by another. However, this would require radical changes in combustion equipment in a great many cases. Solid and liquid fuels can be converted to liquid fuels by hydrogenation. This latter process is only practical at present where supplies of crude petroleum are limited. Gaseous and liquid fuels can be partially converted to solid fuels, although this will probably never be necessary.

The technology of fuels has become so diversified that a carefully planned, properly financed, and skillfully executed research effort is not only desirable but a necessity to the continued development of the industry.

Future Trends

Rapid progress has been made during the last few years, but far greater developments will come during the next decade. Because of our large reserves of these all important raw materials, and because of the importance of these materials in the manufacture of synthetic products, West Virginia and other states possessing large reserves should have a bright future from an industrial point of view. We may expect many additional industries requiring these materials either as fuels or as raw materials for by-producing to locate near the source of supply.

COAL—Further mechanization in mining and preparation will continue to increase. Because of the different physical and chemical characteristics of the respective components of coal, and consequently their adaptability for special uses, further physical separation will become general practice. This field offers real possibilities for research. Because of the relatively greater reserves of coal than either of the other natural fuels, it will be substituted for them whenever it is practical and economically wise to do so. Liquid fuel can and will be successfully produced by hydrogenation from coals as the cost of its production equals that of their production from natural crude petroleum. The number of plants for the manufacture of synthetic products and especially artificial fabrics will increase.

PETROLEUM—The production of petroleum in West Virginia has been declining since 1900. A reverse of this trend is predicted in the near future. The production is expected to increase for two reasons, (1) Additional production from old fields by secondary recovery methods; (2) Discovery of some new fields from older and deeper horizons. Through chemical changes, crude petroleum and refinery products are being converted to resinous material, rubber substitutes, plastic solids, and chemicals such as ethylene glycol, ether, alcohol, acetone, and glycerol, and this trend will continue.

NATURAL GAS—While the production of natural gas in West Virginia had declined from its peak in 1917 to a low in 1932, a general increase has taken place since that time, due to discoveries in older and deeper horizons, and interest continues in deeper drilling, hence this rise is expected to continue. West Virginia gases are comparatively high in natural gas gasoline, and their percentage recovery should continue to increase. These gases are also relatively high in propane-butane fractions, which are becoming more in demand, not only as raw chemicals and solvents, but as fuels for the liquefied petroleum industry. While this latter industry has not reached large proportions in West Virginia because of the availability of other natural gases, it has taken on large proportions in areas where natural gas is not available, and the State will undoubtedly become more and more important as a source of these liquefied petroleum gases.

In concluding, I would say again that the future of the natural fuel industries in West Virginia should be very bright.

DEPTH AVAILABLE FOR NAVIGATION

(Data Furnished by the War Department—Revised to July 1, 1942)

Ohio River—Improvement of the Ohio River, as authorized by Congress in the River and Harbor Act of June 25, 1910, provides for a channel depth of 9 feet in the entire 981 miles of the river by the construction of locks and dams and open channel work. The system of locks and dams throughout the river provides a navigable depth of 9 feet at ordinary river stage. New dams of modern design have been completed near Hogsett, West Virginia (Gallipolis Lock and Dam), at Montgomery Island, 32 miles below Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and at Emsworth Locks 6.2 miles below Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Monongahela River, West Virginia and Pennsylvania—The existing project provides for improvement of the river by 13 locks and dams to afford slack-water navigation for its entire length from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, to one mile above Fairmont, a distance of 128 miles. The project is approximately complete and the controlling depth between Pittsburgh and Point Marion, Pennsylvania, 90.6 miles above the mouth is 9 feet, and above Point Marion 7 feet to the upper limits of the project.

Kanawha River, West Virginia—The existing project provides for the construction of 3 modern dams on the Kanawha River, with twin locks at London, Marmet and Winfield, and the Gallipolis lock and dam on the Ohio River, near Hogsett, West Virginia, to furnish a 9-foot navigable depth from the Ohio to a point 90.57 miles above the mouth. The dams at London and Marmet were completed in 1934, and the Winfield dam in 1937. The Gallipolis lock and dam was completed in October, 1937, thus making available a channel depth of 9 feet from the mouth of the river to the head of navigation.

Big Sandy River, West Virginia and Kentucky, Including Levisa and Tug Forks—The existing project provides for 3 locks and dams on the main river, and one lock and dam each on Levisa Fork and Tug Fork. The 3 locks and dams on the main river are now in operation, providing a slack-water depth of 6 feet from the Ohio river to Louisa, Kentucky, a distance of 27.2 miles. The Levisa Fork Lock and Dam No. 1 and the Tug Fork Lock and Dam No. 1 have not been operated for several years.

Tygart River Reservoir—The Tygart River Dam, located on the Tygart River 2¼ miles upstream from Grafton, as authorized by the Public Works Administration January 11, 1934, and approved by Congress in the River and Harbor Act of August 30, 1935, provides for a dam 1,880 feet long and 207 feet high for the storage of 290,000 acre-feet of water to control floods and aid navigation in the Monongahela River. The dam has been completed and is now in operation as a unit in the reservoir system for the protection of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and the upper Ohio Valley generally.

Bluestone Reservoir Project—This giant Federal public works undertaking was authorized by Presidential executive order in 1935 and approved by Congress under the Flood Control Act of 1936. Construction work did not get under way until early in 1942, however, when the Dravo Corporation of Pittsburgh, Pa., the principal contractors, started construction of the dam.

The project is expected to cost 30 million dollars when entirely complete. It is anticipated that the dam structure and part of the generating plant will be in operation by the summer of 1944. The reservoir project, designed by Army Engineers to provide flood control for the "war-industry" Kanawha and Ohio valleys, will also generate hydro-electric power for the TVA grid, and will aid navigation below the reservoir.

The dam will be 165 feet high and 2,060 feet long. The reservoir will serve a watershed drainage area of 4,565 square miles, and will provide a lake some 36 miles long. A water-head of 135 feet will be impounded behind the dam which is being built just outside the corporation limits of Hinton, on New River. The generating plant will have a capacity of 415 million kilowatt hours annually which is estimated to produce $900,000 in revenue each year.

*For the purpose of this report the amount sold in each County, through Stores and Agencies, is considered to be the quantity consumed. The figure per capita covering all sales (Sales at White Sulphur Springs Agency 151, Store No. 1-A Charleston, 9-A Wheeling, Drug Store Sales, Special Orders and Close Outs) was 1.487 gallons as against 1.319 gallons for the 1940-41 period—an increase of .168 gallons per capita. The per capita expenditure for the fiscal year was $9.75.

SPEED LIMITS

The speed limit for automobiles on open country highways in West Virginia is 45 miles per hour; on suburban streets, 25 miles per hour; and on city streets, 20 miles per hour. For the duration of the war, however, the motoring public is being asked to voluntarily accept a 35-mile-per-hour limit in order to conserve rubber.

An operator of a motor vehicle must be at least 16 years of age. The fee for a learner's permit is $1.00, and the fee for an operator's license is 75 cents. An operator's license expires four years from the date of issuance and may be successive periods of four years upon the payment of a fee of 75 cents for each such renewal.

TAXATION AND FINANCE

STATE TAXATION AND THE WAR EMERGENCY

By C. M. BAILEY
State Budget Director

A true test of the soundness of a state's fiscal structure is readily determined by the manner in which it measures up to the demands made upon it during a period of great national emergency such as now faces our citizens, both State and national. West Virginia's tax system, at the close of the first year of the Second World War has stood this test well.

State revenues, collected almost wholly from indirect sources, show a decided upward trend. In this respect West Virginia has fared better than many other states due largely to its valuable natural resources that are contributing so much to the defense effort. Gross sales tax imposts on manufacturing and coal mining are proving the most valuable source of these increased revenues. Next in importance is the tax on consumer purchasing followed closely by personal income tax returns due to increased employment and earning power.

Briefly presented the picture in comparative form is:

	1941	1942
Gross Sales Tax	$16,065,898.70	$19,335,822.26
Consumers Sales Tax	9,464,317.81	10,930,247.25
Beer Tax & Licenses	1,126,273.47	1,367,878.65
Insurance Tax & Certificates	1,004,138.55	1,066,586.44
Charter Tax	583,417.49	720,980.30
Income Tax	1,753,048.06	2,473,742.26
Inheritance Tax	1,678,564.10	516,221.30
Property Tax	195,408.38	128,250.71
Appropriation Fees	1,551,135.98	1,562,763.03
Miscellaneous Income	95,801.88	89,786.00
Business (Liquor) Profits	3,050,000.00	4,250,000.00
TOTALS	$36,568,094.40	$42,442,278.20

We should not be too hopeful that the upward trend in State revenues will continue. The tide may be reversed by priorities and shortages caused by the war. Gasoline taxes are already on the decline because of priorities on tires and tubes and gasoline rationing which has resulted in a sharp reduction of automobile traffic. Sales taxes on new cars have practically disappeared for the duration, and automobile license fees are already off approximately 30 per cent. There is a possibility, too, that liquor revenues may shrink because of limitations that would affect stocks and transportation. The severe impact of new federal taxes makes it necessary that our State exercise greater tax collecting efficiency so as to maintain current levels of collection even though the volume of business remains constant.

West Virginia had at the close of the fiscal year on June 30, 1942, an unencumbered cash balance in State operating revenues of $3,869,000, and this total is estimated to reach $7,000,000 by the close of the fiscal year on June 30, 1943.

Disposition of this surplus is a problem that bids fair to tax the best minds in both the executive and legislative branches of our government. The matter of proper fiscal reserves is the one great weakness in our fiscal structure. There is an implied, if not actual, inhibition in our Constitution on the matter of setting up reserves from surplus revenues in prosperous years to meet the proverbial

"rainy day" when State revenues decline. Due to the fact State revenue receipts are predicated primarily on business and not on the direct property tax, the need for such reserves is all the more pressing. Temporary methods for use of this surplus will not solve the problem.

A possible solution would be a Constitutional amendment which would permit the creation of needed reserves.

The State cannot at this time evade the problems of post-war financing. Lack of priorities on vital construction materials has led the Board of Public Works to abandon, for the duration of the war emergency, a rather extensive building program at many State schools and institutions which was provided for in contingent budget items by the 1941 Legislature. Should the war emergency continue over a period of years the need for this construction will be all the more pressing, and unless some of the surplus revenue now accumulating can be earmarked for this work the State may find itself unable to finance this program at a time when it will be essential in taking up the slack in a transition from a war-time to a peace-time basis, when the construction costs would be less burdensome.

WEST VIRGINIA TAXES

PROPERTY TAX

All real and personal property in the State of West Virginia is assessed at true and actual value under a Constitutional amendment which limits the amount of taxes that can be levied in any one year.

The aggregate of taxes assessed in any one year by all levying bodies shall not exceed 50 cents on each one hundred dollars' assessed valuation on Class I property; $1.00 on Class II property; $1.50 on Class III property; and $2.00 on Class IV property.

Class I property is all tangible personal property employed exclusively in agriculture, including horticulture and grazing; all products of agriculture (including livestock) while owned by the producer; all money and all notes, bonds, bills and accounts receivable, stocks and any other intangible personal property. Class II property is all property owned, used and occupied by the owner exclusively for residential purposes; all farms, including land used for horticulture and grazing, occupied and cultivated by their owners or bona fide tenants. Class III is all real and personal property situated outside of municipalities, exclusive of Classes I and II. Class IV property is all real and personal property situated inside of municipalities, exclusive of Classes I and II.

The maximum levy which each levying body can fix for the various classes are specified. To meet general expense purposes for the State fund general revenue, the Board of Public Works is limited to one cent on each and all classes of property. County courts, levying for general county current expense purposes, are limited to 9.4 cents on Class I property, 18.7 cents on Class II property and 37.5 cents on Classes III and IV property. For general current expenses of schools, boards of education are allowed 15.85 cents on Class I, 32.8 cents on Class II and 65.5 cents on Classes III and IV. Municipalities, for general current expenses, are allowed 8.75 cents on Class I property, 17.5 cents on Class II and 35 cents on Class IV property. The aggregate of taxes allowed to all levying bodies for meeting contractual indebtedness requirements of the State and other taxes is 15 cents on Class I, 30 cents on Class II, 45 cents on Class III and 60 cents on Class IV. Such taxes can be used for no other purpose than the one specified.

Public utility property is assessed by the State Board of Public Works and collectible by the State Auditor. Other property valuations are fixed by county assessors and the tax is collectible by the sheriff of each county, to be paid in equal installments—the first on or before November first of the year in which the assessment is made and the second on the first day of the following May. All taxes paid on or before the date due are subject to a discount of two and one-half per cent. An interest charge of nine per cent is added to all taxes when they become a month overdue.

Each county, board of education and municipality receives its proportionate share of taxes collected by the Auditor from public utility property located within a county or municipality.

Property exempt from taxation includes that belonging to the United States; that belonging exclusively to the State; that belonging exclusively to any county, district, city, village or town in this State, and used for public purposes; property used exclusively for divine worship; parsonages, and the household goods and furniture pertaining thereto; property belonging to colleges, seminaries, academies and free schools, if used for educational, literary or scientific purposes; cemeteries; property belonging to benevolent associations not conducted for private profit; property belonging to any public institution for the deaf, dumb or blind, or any hospital not held or leased out for profit; house of refuge, lunatic or orphan asylum; homes for children or for the aged, friendless or infirm not operated for private profit; property and equipment of fire companies; all property on hand for the subsistence of livestock; household goods to the value of $200, and dead victuals laid away for family use.

Annually, not later than July 5, each County Court must sit as a board of equalization and review, to correct the assessor's report, and to raise or lower valuations. Anyone may appeal to the County Court for a reduction in valuations. The Court, considering increases in valuations, must give the property owner at least five days notice.

POLL TAX

Applicable to every male resident over 21 years of age. Rate is $2 of which $1 goes into State school fund and $1 into the State road fund. The levy is collected by the county assessor or sheriff. It is due with personal property return.

PERSONAL INCOME TAX

The West Virginia Personal Income Tax Act as passed by the Legislature of 1935 and amended by the Legislatures of 1937, 1939 and 1941, respectively, requires that all residents must file an income tax return who have a gross income in excess of $1,000, if single, or $2,000, if married. All partnerships must file information returns disclosing the net income paid or payable to each partner and all estates and trusts are also required to file if their gross income exceeds $1,000.

Non-residents are required to file a return including only the income received from tangible properties located within the State or earnings received for services performed within the State of West Virginia. The personal exemption allowed a non-resident must be reduced to amounts that bear the same ratio to the full exemption provided for in the act as their gross income returnable under the act bears to the entire gross income for the taxable year.

The tax act is modeled after the Federal Income Tax Law, and in computing net income practically the same items may be deducted from the gross income as allowed by the Federal Government. In addition to the legal deductions which may be taken in arriving at the net income a taxpayer is allowed a personal exemption of $1,000, if single, or $2,000, if married; and if the taxpayer is the chief support of someone closely related to him by blood relationship, marriage or adoption, a credit of $300 is allowed for each dependent providing the dependent is less than 18 years of age or incapable of self-support due to mental or physical disability.

The tax on the taxable income shall be at the following rates:

- 1 per cent on 1st $1,000, or part thereof
- Plus 2 per cent on 2nd $1,000, or part thereof
- Plus 3 per cent on 3rd $1,000, or part thereof
- Plus 4 per cent on 4th $1,000, or part thereof
- Plus 5 per cent on 5th $1,000, or part thereof
- Plus 5½ per cent on 6th $1,000, or part thereof
- Plus 6 per cent of all in excess of 6th $1,000.

The State Tax Commissioner has the power to formulate rules and regulations relating to the act as are necessary to enforce its provisions of the act, providing same are not inconsistent with the act itself.

INHERITANCE TAX

A tax against recipients of property, such tax to be measured by the appraised value of the property acquired, upon acquisition by inheritance or a transfer in contemplation of death.

Rates are as follows: Lineal kin (wife, husband, child, stepchild or descendants of a living or deceased child per stirpes, or father or mother of decedent)—3 per cent on transfer up to $50,000, 5 per cent on next $100,000, 7 per cent on next $150,000, 9 per cent on next $200,000, 11 per cent on next $500,000 and 13 per cent on all in excess of $1,000,000; brother or sister (including half brother or sister)—4, 6, 8, 10, 14 and 18 per cent, corresponding to the same scale of transfers; beneficiaries further removed in blood relationship—7, 9, 11, 15, 20 and 25 per cent, corresponding to the same scale of transfers; beneficiaries of no blood relationship—10, 12, 14, 18, 24 and 30 per cent, on corresponding scale of transfers.

Property transferred to State, or to any county, school district or municipal corporation for public purposes is exempt from tax, as is any transfer of less than $100. An exemption of $15,000 is allowed on transfers to widows, and an exemption on $5,000 is allowed on transfers to others of lineal kinship. Property transfers in trust or for use solely for educational, literary, scientific, religious or charitable purposes are exempt, so long as property remains in State and all rentals, profits and proceeds are used exclusively in the State. The State Tax Commissioner makes assessment and collects the tax.

GENERAL CONSUMERS' SALES AND SERVICE TAX

The General Consumers' Sales and Service Tax Law, in effect since April 1, 1934, applies to all retail sales of tangible personal property consummated within the State and made by a purchaser for use or consumption or any other purpose, except for resale in its original form without change or processing, also to the furnishing of all services, except professional and personal services.

The rate of tax is measured by the bracket system and computed as follows: (1) On each sale, where the monetary consideration is from six cents to fifty cents, both inclusive, one cent; (2) On each sale where the monetary consideration is from 51 cents to one dollar, both inclusive, two cents; (3) On each 50 cents of monetary consideration or fraction thereof in excess of one dollar, one cent.

Individual sales of five cents or less are tax exempt; however, the purchase of two five cent articles at the same time is a taxable transaction.

The law explicitly exempts from the tax the following: Sales of gasoline; sales of gas, steam and water delivered to consumers through mains or pipes, and sales of electricity; sales of school books required to be used in any of the schools of this State; sales to the State, its institutions or subdivisions, and sales to the United States, including sales to agencies of Federal, State or local governments for distribution in public welfare or relief work; sales of motor vehicles which are titled by the State Road Commission; sales of bread, butter, eggs, flour, and milk, as food products, since the first day of July, 1941.

The law provides that a merchant shall collect the tax from the purchaser and further provides that the purchaser shall pay the tax to the merchant, and no compensation or profit is allowed for the collection of same.

A person liable for the tax must keep records, render under oath statements, make returns, and comply with the rules and regulations that the Tax Commissioner may, from time to time, prescribe. The tax is due and payable in monthly installments, on or before the fifteenth day of the month next succeeding the month in which the tax accrued.

The proceeds of the tax imposed by the law must be devoted to the support of the free schools, and be expended in such manner as may be provided by law.

The law operates under the merit system without the use of stamps or tokens and is administered at a cost of less than 1½ per cent of total collections. Very severe penalties are provided for a violation of the law, the maximum being a fine of $5,000 and two years confinement in the penitentiary.

BUSINESS AND OCCUPATION TAX

(Formerly Gross Sales Tax)

West Virginia has, since 1921, imposed a business and occupation tax in some form. This tax has been erroneously known as the "Gross Sales Tax" and this designation includes the privilege tax imposed on certain carrier corporations by the terms of Article 12-A, Chapter 11 of the Code of West Virginia, as well as the business and occupation tax imposed by the terms of Article 13 of said Chapter 11.

Business activities are classed and taxed, on a rate of $100, as follows:

Gross sales value of production: Coal, $1.30; sand, gravel or other mineral product not quarried or mined, $3.90; oil and blast furnace slag, $3.90; natural gas in excess of $5,000, $7.80; limestone or sandstone quarried or mined, and timber, $1.95; other natural resource products, $2.50.

Gross sales value of manufactured products: 39 cents.

Gross income of retailers, restaurants and others: 50 cents.

Gross income of wholesalers: 19½ cents.

Gross income: Street, interurban and electric railways, $1.30; electric light and power companies, (sales and demand charges, domestic purposes and commercial lighting), $5.20; water companies, $4.00; electric light and power companies, (all other sales and demand charges), natural gas companies and toll bridges, $3.90; all other public utilities (except telegraph and telephone companies, railways and other transportation companies), $2.60; contracting business, $2.00; amusement business, 65 cents; all other business, $1.00; rents, royalties, etc., (of corporations and associations only), $1.00.

Quarterly estimated returns are required if the annual tax liability exceeds $100. Returns are due 30 days after the end of the period, or, on annual returns, 30 days after the end of the year. Tax exemption is allowed at the rate of $2.08 per month.

The following rates are applicable under Article 12-A:

(a) Motor vehicle carriers, railroad car corporations, express companies: $1.50 on each $100 of gross intra-state income, and $1.50 on each $100 of pro-rated (to determine part derived from West Virginia business) net income from all business.

(b) (1) Telephone corporations: $2.75 on each $100 of gross intra-state income, and $2.75 on each $100 of pro-rated (to determine part derived from West Virginia business) net income from all business; (2) Telegraph corporations: $5 on each $100 of gross intra-state income, and $5 on each $100 of pro-rated (to determine part derived from West Virginia business) net income from all business.

(c) Pipe-line corporations: $3.50 on each $100 of gross intra-state income and $3.50 on each $100 of pro-rated (to determine part derived from West Virginia business) net income from all business.

(d) Persons or corporations, operating steamboats or other floating property: $2.50 on each $100 of gross intra-state income and $2.50 on each $100 of pro-rated (to determine part derived from West Virginia business) remaining gross income from all business.

(e) Railroad corporations: 50 cents on each $100 of assessed value of all property within the State of West Virginia, and $4 on each $100 of pro-rated (to determine part derived from West Virginia business) net income from all business.

To the normal rates imposed by Article 12-A there is added, in all cases, a sur-tax of 30 percent of the normal tax.

GASOLINE TAX

The State tax on gasoline sold in West Virginia is five cents per gallon, in addition to the Federal tax imposed. Measure of the tax is the gallonage produced, purchased sold or used in this State, and the tax is paid to the State Tax Commissioner not later than 30 days following the close of the month in which the gasoline was produced, sold or used.

The distributor may secure a refund of the excise tax on gasoline exported from West Virginia, or on losses by shrinkage and evaporation not to exceed one per cent of the gallonage handled during that month. A refund also is allowed on gasoline a distributor may lose due to fire, lightning, breakage or flood. Any person may secure a refund of the excise tax when the gasoline is purchased in quantities of 25 gallons or more at any one time and used to operate diesel engines, tractors and threshing machines for agricultural purposes, aeroplanes, railroads, in the production of natural resources or in the business of manufacturing, as a cleaning fluid in laundries or dry cleaning business, or as a motor fuel in motor boats, and is not used in whole or part upon the public highways or streets of this State.

All gasoline excise tax and license fees are to be used for the purpose of construction, reconstruction, maintenance and repair of roads, and for the payment of the interest and sinking fund on State bonds issued for road purposes.

AUTOMOBILE LICENSE TAX

A tax on the privilege of operating an automobile. Rates, based on the weight and classification of the vehicle, are as follows: Private passenger cars weighing 2,000 pounds or less, $11; for each additional 100 pounds in excess of 2,000 pounds, an additional 60 cents; private delivery cars of one-ton capacity or less, $15, rate increasing with ton capacity; motorcycles, $5; tractor rates varied; bus, one-thirtieth of one cent per passenger seat per mile, minimum $75, except for interstate traffic; taxicab, $75; trucks of one-ton capacity or less, $20, rate increasing with capacity. Tax is returnable to the State Road Commissioner on July 1.

CERTIFICATE OF TITLE TAX

A tax of two per cent of the value of a motor vehicle at the time of its certification with the State Road Commission. Value is defined as the actual amount paid by the purchaser for a new car, or the actual consideration involved in purchase or trade of a used car. All purchases of motor vehicles or changes in ownership must be certified by the State Road Commissioner, who collects the tax. Proceeds from the tax go into the State Road Fund, to be expended for maintenance and construction of secondary roads. Vehicles used only in interstate commerce are exempted.

INSURANCE TAX

A tax on insurance business written or renewed in West Virginia. The rate of tax is two per cent, assessed against the gross premiums received, less premiums returnable for cancellation, and including any so-called dividends on participating life insurance policies actually applies in reduction of premiums. The tax is returnable to the Insurance Commissioner, a title assigned to the State Auditor, on March 1, annually.

CHAIN STORE TAX

The Chain Store Tax Law became effective March 8, 1933, and has not been amended since that time. It requires a person, firm or corporation to secure a license for each store operated. The tax for one store is $2. If more than one store is operated under the same ownership the tax increases. The tax for the 76th store and each one thereafter is $250. A fee of 50 cents is charged for each license issued. The licenses are issued under the supervision of the State Tax Commissioner. The tax is placed in the General School Fund, and the fees are retained to defray the expenses of maintaining and operating the office where the licenses are issued.

BEER LICENSE AND BARREL TAX

This tax is levied and collected under the provisions of the Non-Intoxicating Beer Law passed by the Legislature in 1933 and amended in 1935 and 1937.

The barrel tax of $1.37½ for each 31 gallons is payable by the brewer on all beer manufactured and distributed in this State, and by the distributor on all beer purchased by him from outside the State.

The scale of license fees is as follows: Brewers, $500; distributors, $250; retailers, $100; clubs, $50; dining club or buffet cars, $10. In addition, brewers, distributors and retailers are required to furnish bond.

License may be revoked as a penalty for violation of the beer law.

CHARTER LICENSE TAX

A privilege tax on corporations doing business in the State. It is based on the capital stock of all incorporations and operates on a sliding scale. The fee ranges from a flat $20 minimum to $150 for corporations with capital stock ranging up to $200,000. For all over $200,000 and up to $1,000,000, the fee is $180 plus 20 cents for each additional $1,000 over $200,000; from $1,000,000 to $15,000,000 corporations, the fee is $340 plus 15 cents for each $1,000 over $1,000,000; and for all over $15,000,000, the fee is a flat $2,500. Foreign (out-of-state) corporations pay the same rate plus 50 per cent of the tax, with a minimum of $150. Assessment is made by the Secretary of State when certificate of incorporation is granted, and returns are made to the State Auditor. Educational, literary, agricultural, scientific, religious and charitable organizations are exempted, as are lodges.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE

By CARL G. BACHMANN
State Coordinator of Civilian Defense

Seven months after Pearl Harbor, an Army officer from Fort Hayes, witnessing in Wheeling a demonstration staged by 25,000 volunteers who had learned how to protect themselves in the event of invasion, reviewed the exhibition or coordination with these few direct comments:

"We can feel assured that the Army will not have to worry about the safety of the citizens and property of the Upper Ohio Valley. But let me warn you, our assurances will decay unless you maintain the education and strength of your organization that now stands."

The praises and the warning of that officer, while directed to a single area, are applicable to the entire State, for Civilian Defense in West Virginia has become a unified, coordinated State-wide movement—a machine that is steadily growing more efficient, more smooth and more precise as a result of a whole-hearted effort on the part of some 200,000 West Virginians.

West Virginia's progress in the matter of self-defense a half year after our Nation's entrance into World War II, is attributable in no small degree to the fact that this State was defense-conscious long before the first blow was struck.

As early as February 25, 1941, the program was in motion, with introduction in the West Virginia Legislature of House Bill No. 369, providing for a State Council of Defense and local Councils of Defense. That bill was enacted, and in accordance with its provisions, the West Virginia Council of Defense was created with Governor Matthew M. Neely as chairman, Colonel Louis A. Johnson as vice-chairman and Van A. Bittner, Howard M. Gore, Charles E. Hodges, Raymond Kenny, R. B. Marston and Ruth D. Noer as members.

Brigadier General C. C. Pierce, Adjutant General and State Director of Selective Service, was appointed Executive Director of the West Virginia office of Civilian Defense on July 1, 1941 and began the task of organizing Civilian Defense by calling upon county and municipal officials to organize their respective communities.

Pearl Harbor and the ensuing declaration of total war upon the Axis decreed that the program be accelerated and expanded immediately. General Pierce had laid a sound foundation, but the urgent need for a complete and separate organization to devote all its time to Civilian Defense was apparent. So, Governor Neely appointed an executive advisory committee composed of Judge E. B. Pennybacker of the Public Service Commission, as chairman; Colonel H. Clare Hess, Superintendent of State Police, as secretary, State Road Commissioner Ernest L. Bailey, Conservation Commissioner T. D. Gray, Public Assistance Director Raymond Kenny, Health Commissioner C. F. McClintic and Fire Marshal Fred B. Watkins, as members, and this writer as State Coordinator. On December 29, 1941, the State Office of Civilian Defense began functioning officially.

A staff was rapidly assembled. Able assistance was provided by the assignment of Major James P. Easley of the Fifth Corps Area as liaison officer to the State office. District supervisors were named and sent immediately into the field. The wheels were moving faster.

State leaders were called in to head the various departments. Fire Marshal Watkins became Chief of Fire Service; State Police Superintendent Hess became Chief of Police Service; W. Elliot Nefflin, prominent Legionnaire, became Chief of Wardens Service; Dr. McClintic became Chief of Emergency Medical Service; Road Commissioner Bailey became Chief of Public Works Service, and A. C. Spurr, president of the Monongahela System, became Chief of Emergency Utility Service.

Rationing of tires and tubes, automobiles, typewriters and sugar, a task eventually absorbed by the Office of Price Administration, also became the lot of the Office of Civilian Defense during the first five months of 1941, and a state-wide salvage program commanded the need for advice and help from other leading State officials.

Today, those leaders, practically every Federal and State department or agency, and individuals and organizations in every county and community in West Virginia are working together in one great effort to prepare West Virginia against any eventuality.

Taking many leaves from the book of Britain, written in blood and desperation, West Virginians, realizing that the civilian population must relieve the Nation's fighting forces of the responsibility of home defense, are determined that enemy bombs, if they ever do come, will cause the least amount of damage to their vital war industry plants and the least amount of suffering to their fellow-men. Seven months after Pearl Harbor, there is a sense of greater security. Citizens of the State drop their golf and bridge for classes in civilian protection; housewives and office workers alike are spending their extra hours learning first-aid and nursing; and the men are learning what to do with bombs, how to black-out entire counties and how to combat gas and fire. West Virginia has an army at home.

An important task ahead, in addition to perfecting home defenses, is the maintenance of the Civilian Defense spirit and energy that now exists. To accomplish that, morale must be kept on a high plane and West Virginians must remain impressed with the idea that sacrifice now means comfort and luxury in the years to come. We must keep in mind that we're fighting against a heartless, ruthless foe—a foe that is strong and better equipped than any military juggernaut ever to take the battlefield, and one that is determined to destroy this nation. That idiotic and almost treasonable idea that "It can't happen here" must be put away. Until that fateful Sunday in December of 1941, Hawaii was a peaceful island in the Pacific, safe we thought from the sound of the loudest cannon; and until 1942, talk of enemy submarines venturing to within a virtual stone's throw of our bathing beaches was ripe material for the imaginative novelists who herald a distant future. It HAS happened to us, because the foe has molded complete public discipline and loyalty, industrial efficiency and military genius into a formidable machine that guffaws at recognized limitations; and to successfully combat such a foe, we must more than match it in every respect. The soldier and the sailor on the scene of action can do only a part of the job. The rest depends on we civilians.

It was Kipling who said:

"It ain't the men or armaments, or the army as a whole, but the close cooperation of every bloomin' soul."

OFFICE OF PRICE ADMINISTRATION

WEST VIRGINIA STATE OFFICE

Headquarters: Charleston

September 1, 1942

The Office of Price Administration was established January 30, 1942, by the Emergency Price Control Act. Touching every business which buys or sells, it is charged with three basic duties: First, the prevention of inflationary increases in the prices of commodities, and in rents in defense rental areas; second, the rationing of commodities for civilian consumption; and third, the protection of consumer interests.

OPA was born at a time when war production demands had caused the prices of basic raw materials to rise 66 per cent since September, 1939; wholesale prices had increased 31 per cent, most of the increase occurring in a 12-month period; and retail prices of foods, clothing and house furnishings were up 25 per cent. Immediately coordinating War Price and Rationing Boards in the 55 counties of the State, OPA moved on April 28, 1942, to freeze the retail, wholesale and manufacturer's price of almost every commodity at highest March, 1942 levels. The charge for services connected with commodities was also fixed and rents stabilized in 323 defense areas. The few commodities now exempted may be covered by subsequent orders. On August 1, 1942, and for the duration, West Virginians, with the rest of the nation, were living in a practically complete price-ceiled economy. By mid-summer, 1942, the cost of living had shown a resultant slight decline, after 19 consecutive monthly increases beginning with November, 1940.

In the field of rationing, OPA's list of rationed articles in July, 1942, included automobiles, tires, tubes, gasoline, sugar, typewriters and bicycles. Gasoline rationing at the time applied only to the eight easternmost counties of the State where lack of transportation facilities made such rationing necessary.

WAR PRODUCTION BOARD

State Headquarters: Charleston

War Production Board has two principal duties to perform. It is a service organization designed to assist business and government in achieving a coordinated program of maximum war production; and it is designated to inform the various businesses as to priority rulings and to see that priority regulations are obeyed.

Manufacturers and producers whose facilities are not being used in war production are supplied with information and specifications on needed war materiel, and WPB further assists them in submitting a competitive bid for the needed product. WPB also conducts surveys of plants in which civilian production is being limited by priorities, lack of transportation or other emergency reasons. After having gained a knowledge of a plant's unused facilities, WPB is in position to suggest various items which are needed and which the plant can furnish. Thus, it facilitates and expands the production of needed items by enabling plants to continue or resume production; and it relieves the distressed situation of the management of the plants and of the labor they employ.

In the field of priorities, WPB serves as an information bureau. The field offices are kept supplied with the most up-to-date information concerning priorities, and manufacturers, jobbers and retailers are asked to submit priority questions and problems to the Board.

WAR SAVINGS STAFF

Headquarters: Parkersburg

The War Savings Staff for West Virginia was set up in September, 1941—a State-wide organization formed for the purpose of promoting the sale of War Savings Stamps and Bonds. As in practically every other state, office space, office equipment, fundamental supplies and even personnel was furnished by the Internal Revenue Department. In West Virginia, the Administrator for War Savings is the Collector of Internal Revenue, F. Roy Yoke. Governor Matthew M. Neely is Honorary Chairman of the State War Savings Committee, members of which represent the various business, industrial and social groups of the State.

Under the direction of the State Committee and its State Staff, an organization has been set up in each of the State's 55 counties. Result: The entire State is "War Bond conscious." Banks, post offices, theatres, hotels, retail stores, industrial plants and "sidewalk salesmen" are united in a drive to raise funds with which to finance America's war effort. By midsummer, 1942, West Virginia was doing its part in a manner that compared most favorably with the other states of the Nation.

PROMINENT WEST VIRGINIA MILITARY AND NAVAL LEADERS

Throughout the entire history of the United States of America there have been countless numbers of outstanding military and naval leaders who contributed their services to their country no less than have thousands of statesmen. Such individuals usually have chosen some branch of the armed forces which was to their liking and prepared themselves for a lifetime career in the military or naval service. Promotions and advancements in such a field of endeavor are slow, few and far between and are almost invariably won through merit.

Thus each State in the United States of America has its military and naval leaders and heroes as well as conspicuous statesmen, and to the former the many and weighty obligations are acknowledged by paying tribute to them in some manner. Usually national service medals are awarded them for outstanding accomplishments while in active service. Some states confer upon their native sons, who are recognized military or naval leaders, honorary titles and also present them with the highest medal of their State for distinguished service.

However, these more or less acts of formality are soon over and the honored leaders soon fade into the background and are almost forgotten—until the historian grasps the opportunity of sketching a biography of them. Following this theme and apropos of this time and place the citizens of West Virginia pause to recall and pay tribute to those outstanding sons who have represented the State in the very highest military circles in every war that the United States of America has been engaged, as well as the present gigantic struggle.

In this way the accomplishments of some of our best citizens, both past and present, are renewed. Included in this group of military and naval leaders is Secretary Newton Diehl Baker, although a statesman but who merits consideration accordingly, who served from March 7, 1916, until March 4, 1921, as Secretary of War under President Wilson. And there is Louis Arthur Johnson, a prime mover of America's preparedness program in his term as Assistant Secretary of War immediately preceding the outbreak of World War II, and who in recent months has been assigned to important diplomatic duties.

There are many West Virginians in the armed forces who will undoubtedly become prominent for their leadership and services before the present World War is ended.

R. WOODROW CASTLE.

AMERICAN REVOLUTION

CAPTAIN GEORGE MICHAEL BEDINGER. George Michael Bedinger was born December 10, 1756, in York County, Pa., of German parentage and while still a child his parents moved to Mecklenburg, (now Shepherdstown), (West) Va., along with many other German families. Like other young men of the day and age he was compelled to eke out a bare subsistence on the frontier amid Indian raids and natural adversities. Bedinger had no formal education or training but nevertheless won much acclaim and recognition as a ballad singer.

As a curious youth he joined Washington's Continental Army at Cambridge, Mass., at the outbreak of the American Revolution. After serving several enlistments he moved to Kentucky and joined Colonel John Bowman who had organized an expedition to go against the pugnacious Indians near Chillicothe, and was given the honor of serving as adjutant and also as quartermaster. The victory of the Colonial troops was far from satisfactory and adverse conditions forced a retreat with the Indians harassing the rear of the Army. In this phase of the campaign Bedinger proved his ability by leading a cavalry charge that dispersed the band of attacking red men. After this skirmish he returned to Virginia and went with a supply train to South Carolina in 1780.

Here he remained until the following year when he set out to join Washington's Army again. He is reported to have been present at Yorktown during the siege of General Cornwallis, but as incidents happened was compelled to leave before the actual surrender.

Returning home after the War, Captain Bedinger, together with James Rumsey, formed a partnership in the milling business. This type of activity, however, soon grew too monotonous for him and he again set out for Kentucky. The year 1791 found him accompanying General St. Clair on his expedition against the Indians in the Old Northwest Territory. Surviving this struggle he returned to Kentucky and shortly after the admission of that state into the Union he entered the political arena. During 1792 and 1794 he was elected to, and served in, the state legislature from Bourbon County, and at the inception of the century served from 1803 to 1807 in the lower house of the United States Congress. He died at his farm in Kentucky, December 8, 1843.

BRIGADIER GENERAL WILLIAM DARKE. In viewing the decades preceding the American Revolutionary War, the decade of the War and those immediately following, a complete panorama is not seen unless Brigadier General William Darke is included. This sturdy individual, whose birth-right is indigenous to America, was born near Lancaster, Pa., in 1736. At the early age of five his parents moved southward and crossed the Potomac River into present West Virginia and established a home in the rapidly rising settlement of Shepherdstown.

During his early years Darke was educated mainly in the school of experience which was the common school known to all on the frontier. When 19 years of age he was a member of the famed Virginia Provincials who joined General Sir Edward Braddock in 1755 on his march toward Fort Duquesne. After a miraculous escape from the defeat of General Braddock, Darke returned to his home town and spent the ensuing 15 years as an Indian fighter and protector of the frontier—an "occupation" in which he was well qualified and experienced.

The close of the French and Indian War brought increased Indian hostility toward the settlers in the Trans-Allegheny region. Suppression of this wave of savage warfare and massacre was effected by the brave band of colonials and Virginia riflemen that left Camp Union (Lewisburg, Greenbrier County) under General Andrew Lewis who proved their worth and showed their valor in gallant fighting that overwhelmed the Indians in the battle that followed at the confluence of the Kanawha and Ohio Rivers, which engagement is better known as the Battle of Point Pleasant and the end of Dunmore's War. Darke, then only a minor officer, was with this group of men who, from one point of view, "fired the first shot of the American Revolutionary War."

Darke joined the Continental Army at the outbreak of the American Revolution in 1775, and was soon promoted to rank of lieutenant-colonel. He saw much service under General George Washington, George Rogers Clark, and William Clark, and was present when Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown. At one time near Germantown the British were successful in taking him prisoner, but later released him and he immediately rejoined the Continental Army.

The post-Revolutionary days found Darke leading a battalion under General St. Clair in the Old Northwest Territory. This expedition was sent against the Indian strongholds still existing in this region and despite successful work and brilliant maneuvering by Colonel Darke the Indians succeeded in forcing St. Clair's shattered army into a hasty retreat. In the engagement Darke was severely wounded. In compensation for his services he was promoted to the rank of brigadier general.

Apart from the military activities of Brigadier General William Darke he is well remembered as represented Berkeley County, Va., in the Convention of 1788 which ratified the Federal Constitution. Afterwards he was elected to the General Assembly for several terms.

His last years were quietly spent on his farm near Shepherdstown. On November 20, 1801, he came to rest after a most colorful and exciting career. To commemorate him friends and fellow citizens named Darkesville, in Berkeley County, (West) Va., and Darke County, Ohio, in his honor.

MAJOR GENERAL HORATIO GATES. Horatio Gates was born at Maldon, Essex, England, in 1728. At an early age he became a military man and served under General Edward Cornwallis in Nova Scotia, in 1749-50. He accompanied General Sir Edward Braddock in 1755 when the latter was enroute to Fort Duquesne. Here he received a most severe wound and after convalescing proceeded to Fort Herkimer in April, 1758, and later served at Oneida, Philadelphia, Fort Ticonderoga, Fort Hunter, and Pittsburgh.

Leaving America in 1761 and participating in the conquest of Martinique, he returned to England in April 1762. Remaining there until late in 1772 he then left for America and took up land in Berkeley County, (West) Va. When the Revolution began Gates was commissioned in the Continental Army as an adjutant general and soon thereafter as brigadier general. His presence was noted at Cambridge where the Continental Army under General Washington was being organized. The following year, May 16, 1776, after untiring aid and never failing loyalty, Congress commissioned him a major general to command the Colonial troops in the Canadian department. Constant shifting of generals and leaders found General Gates at Ticonderoga in the early fall of 1777. At this crucial time and place the Colonial Army under Gates and British Army under General Burgoyne engaged in a battle that resulted in a great moral victory for the Colonial Army. This has since been known as the Battle of Saratoga, due largely to the Convention of Saratoga arranged on October 17, 1777, between the Colonials and British which was in essence terms of surrender arranged for the latter and as a beaten army was given the liberty of returning to England.

It was under Gates' command in the fighting near Freeman's Farm and Bemis Heights that the notorious traitor Benedict Arnold came into view.

For General Gates' distinctive service at Saratoga, Congress ordered a medal be struck in commemoration of his victory and to show appreciation to him. What immediately followed the Saratoga victory is not quite clear, but enough has been brought to light to show that affairs of a very disagreeable nature were dealt with among Gates, Washington, Congress, and military leaders of lesser importance. However, on October 22, 1778, he went to Boston to take command of the Colonial troops stationed there. During the ensuing year he remained at this place and utilized his time and energy in securing and sending out needed military stores.

On October 27, 1779, he was at Newport and reported to General Washington that the British had withdrawn from Rhode Island. From here he traveled to the Hudson where he joined Washington in December 1779. The following year Gates retired to his Virginia home, but Congress soon requested him to assume command of the Army in the southern department and he complied by setting out for Hillsboro, N. C., on July 19, 1780. The month of August records the fateful battle of Camden, S. C., between the British under Cornwallis and the Colonials under Gates. Many preceding adversities, mainly poor food and shelter, had not prepared Gates' army for a pitched battle and consequently the rout of the American Army ended in a major victory for the British. A Congressional investigation into General Gates' conduct was voted October 5, 1780, and in the meantime General Nathaniel Greene was sent to relieve him of his command which was effected at Charlotte on December 2. The same month the House of Representatives voted unanimously to partially exonerate Gates of his recent conduct due to his brilliant victory at Saratoga. On August 5, 1782, Gates demanded outright to be completely exonerated or court martialed, and to this Congress replied by repealing its order of October 5, 1780, and restoring him to such a command in the Army as Washington might deem pertinent. With Washington he served as second in command until the end of the War.

In 1790 General Gates left (West) Virginia and moved to New York. Here he served his new state one term in the legislature from 1800-01. At his home called "Rose Hill Farm" he died on April 10, 1806.

MAJOR GENERAL CHARLES LEE. A British citizen and subject by birth and nativity, Charles Lee was in his early years a very cosmopolitan and prudent man. Born in 1731 at Dernhall, Cheshire, England, he had every opportunity to attend school which he did at Bury St. Edwards and at a later date in Switzerland. Early in life he was serving as an ensign in his father's regiment and on May 2, 1751, was commissioned lieutenant. His first major encounter came in 1755, when he accompanied the Forty-fourth Regiment under General Braddock on his expedition toward Fort Duquesne across southwestern Pennsylvania. After this engagement he was sent to the Mohawk Valley, New York, was adopted into an Indian tribe, and married an Indian maiden. From his headquarters here he engaged in several conflicts and was severely wounded at Fort Ticonderoga in July 1758, which necessitated special transportation back to Long Island. Recuperating from his wound he rejoined his regiment and saw service at the capture of Fort Niagara and in the battle of Montreal. Shortly thereafter he returned to England.

While still in the British Imperial Army his adventures took him to Portugal where he won a commission as lieutenant colonel; from there he returned to England, left once more and arrived in Poland, traveled extensively in the Balkans and again set out for his home country. As soon as civil war broke out in Poland he hastened there to side with his friend, Stanislaus. After much scattered fighting in the Balkan countries he again left for England, then almost immediately went to France. During this period he was writing many critical manuscripts directed against the Tory party in England, and in this way found a burning desire to fight for freedom and liberty—even though the latter terms were but vagaries to him.

In 1773 Lee returned to America and in 1775 acquired land in Berkeley County, (West) Va. He contributed in 1774 a most stirring article entitled "A Friendly Address to All Reasonable Americans" to counteract the conciliatory efforts of many men like Dr. Myles Cooper. When the rift between the Colonies and England became an actuality Lee renounced his pay in the British Army and joined the Continental Army as second major general. General Lee saw service at the siege of Boston, and in defending the City of New York. He was ordered by the Continental Congress to proceed to Canada, but receiving a counter-order departed to fight the British in the South. Arriving and remaining at Williamsburg, Va., for a few months, he then set out for Charleston, S. C. Here Lee was not quite the success that he might have been due to his being over-cautious in regard to the defense of the city and in preparing adequate means for a retreat when the British should attack.

In the summer of 1776 General Lee was ordered to join the main Continental Army under General Washington which he did shortly before the battle of White Plains. While stationed at Philipsburg, New York, Lee made such errors and employed such biased and erroneous judgment, brought on undoubtedly by the harsh criticism of his superiors, that almost all faith and trust that had been placed in him was exploded. At his official station at Basking Ridge he wrote and dispatched many condemning letters concerning Washington for the latter's recent military reverses. On December 12, 1776, the British took him prisoner near his headquarters at Basking Ridge and returned him to New York City. After escaping trial as a deserter from the Imperial Army and traitor to England, Lee was placed in confinement for approximately one year.

While in British hands he assumed a different and somewhat exotic attitude toward the Revolution and later, when the famous "Lee's Plan" papers came to light, he was looked upon as a traitor to the Colonies. However, Lee was exchanged as a prisoner of war in 1778 and proceeded to York, Pa., at which place Congress was in session. His request to be restored to his former command was quite shocking to many of the members of Congress. Finally on May 20, 1778, he rejoined the Continental Army at Valley Forge just before setting out on the Monmouth campaign. General Lee wished to lead the attack at Monmouth and was granted permission to do so simultaneously with General Wayne, but before long, Lee's entire command was in full retreat. The timely arrival of Washington with the main body of troops saved the day. It was here that Lee's military career was cut short.

He was suspended from the Army for twelve months. After fighting a duel with General Anthony Wayne he returned to Virginia from where he bombarded Congress with disrespectful letters due to his demotion in the Army. He traveled to Philadelphia within a few years and died there on October 2, 1782. In spite of Lee's attitude, he still must be considered a Revolutionary soldier of some standing due to his outstanding service at the inception of the War.

BRIGADIER GENERAL DANIEL MORGAN. An American by birth Daniel Morgan was destined from the first to play a great role in the history of the American Colonies. He was born in Hunterdon County, N. J., of Welsh ancestry, and moved to near Shepherdstown, (West) Va., in 1753. From his earliest years as a young man he had a marked desire for military and scouting service. Accordingly in 1755, when General Sir Edward Braddock began his march toward Fort Duquesne, Morgan accompanied him as a teamster. He escaped the disastrous Braddock defeat, but at a later date was seriously wounded while on an Indian campaign.

Moving from Shepherdstown to Winchester in 1762 and engaging in farming and stock raising did not stop him from serving as a lieutenant in Pontiac's War and in the capacity of captain throughout Dunmore's War. When the call to arms was sounded for the American Revolution Morgan helped to organize a regiment of Virginia volunteers near Shepherdstown, known as Morgan's Riflemen, and as commander marched to join Washington at Cambridge, Massachusetts. His first encounter during the Revolution was with Arnold in the campaign against Quebec, and in the fierce fighting that occurred on December 31, 1775, he was captured. Before the end of 1776 he was exchanged as a prisoner of war and was at once put in command of a Virginia regiment as colonel.

While at the head of this particular regiment he rendered effective service against Burgoyne in 1777. His cooperation with General Gates in the battle of Saratoga was indispensable. In 1778 he joined General Washington's command in New Jersey where he served until June of the following year and upon becoming dissatisfied because of slowness on the part of Congress in making promotions in the Army he resigned. However, in September, 1780, he again enlisted his services with the Continental Army under Gates at Hillsboro, North Carolina, as brigadier general.

Crowning glory befell General Morgan at the battle of Cowpens where he completely defeated General Tarleton and his British Army. Through swift movements and forced marches Morgan rejoined General Greene before another British army under Cornwallis could intercept his line of march. After limited and scattered engagements General Morgan requested to be relieved of his command.

His military career ended in August, 1781, due to a break-down in his health and other approaching infirmities. At this time he returned to his farming and stock raising in Virginia, but in 1794 he served as a major general in helping to quell the Whiskey Insurrection in southwestern Pennsylvania. He served as a Federalist representative in Congress from 1797 to 1799. His death occurred at Winchester on July 6, 1802. Present Morgan County, West Virginia, was named in his honor.

CIVIL WAR—UNION

BRIGADIER GENERAL ISAAC HARDING DUVAL. Among the Union military leaders and heroes from present West Virginia, Isaac Harding Duval must be given serious consideration. He was born at Wellsburg, the present county seat of Brooke County, West Virginia, on September 1, 1824. A formal education was not to be provided this individual, and realizing this he attempted to become a self-educated man by extensive travel in the Western United States throughout the Rocky Mountain and Great Plains regions while still a young man.

The annexation of the Lone Star State, Texas, gave Duval an opportunity to visit various Indian tribes in the West as a member of a party acting as treaty and peace makers. He is also credited as being the first to command a company of United States soldiers across the wild and unknown Southwestern part of the United States from Texas to California, which was executed during the great gold rush of 1849. After his trip to California he made his way to Cuba where he almost met death while taking part in the famous Lopez insurrection.

Duval was placed in command of the First Virginia Infantry when the Civil War opened. During the fall of 1862 he was commissioned a colonel and given command of the Ninth Virginia Infantry, and with this group and in this capacity saw much service in the Valley of Virginia along with Generals Phil Sheridan and George Crook. At various times it became necessary for him to command different divisions of the United States Eighth Army Corps. The close of the War found him a brigadier general after having taken part in over 30 engagements in which he was twice wounded.

It was also General Duval who, at the surrender of General Lee, prevented General T. L. Rosser in a pitched battle near Staunton, Virginia, from moving westward so as to continue the fight and possibly the War.

Aside from military work General Duval rendered a splendid service in the State Senate after being elected in 1866. The following two years, from March 4, 1867 to March 4, 1869, he was adjutant general for the State of West Virginia. Subsequent to these offices he successfully served in Congress as a representative from the First West Virginia District. A lengthy term of office as Federal assessor of internal revenue and collector incapacitated him in no way, and he was still able and willing to serve his State, and in due time was given the opportunity by being elected in 1886 and 1888 to the House of Delegates of the West Virginia Legislature. He died July 10, 1902.

MAJOR GENERAL THOMAS MALEY HARRIS. Born at Harrisville, (West) Va., June 17, 1813, Thomas Maley Harris was destined to become an important figure in the history of his State. After attending the public schools, he took up teaching at a seminary in Parkersburg, (West) Va., then moved to Glenville, Gilmer County, to establish his practice as a physician.

When the fury of the Civil War broke forth, Dr. Harris returned to his native county, Ritchie, and recruited the Tenth Virginia Infantry and was made its lieutenant colonel. After somewhat limited and scattered service in north central (West) Virginia he was made a colonel.

In 1864 Colonel Harris with his command was called to the Valley of Virginia and placed with the Army of West Virginia under General George Crook. Several important engagements followed in which Colonel Harris was most active. The engagement at Cedar Mountain, fought October 19, 1864, brought about the death of Colonel Joseph Thoburn, and Colonel Harris was given command of the First Division of the Army of West Virginia.

In displaying brilliancy in maneuvering his command and for showing much gallantry Colonel Harris won a promotion and was made brigadier general. Swift military movements and actions brought Brigadier General Harris and his Army into close cooperation with General U. S. Grant on the James River at City Point, and his command was changed to that of an entire division. Strong determination, sturdy leadership, and stubborn fighting won for him a victory over the Confederates at Petersburg and his reward came in the form of a commission as major general. At Appomattox he was instrumental in bringing the last resisting Confederates to the point of surrender.

Interesting to note and much to the credit of General Harris is that together with Generals Lew Wallace and David Hunter he made up a military commission which tried the assassins of President Abraham Lincoln. In 1892 he published a manuscript that contained much first hand information entitled "Assassination of Lincoln, A History of the Great Conspiracy, and Trial of the Conspirators by a Military Commission," and for which he also received much attention.

He served in the West Virginia Legislature in 1867 and was state adjutant general from 1869 to 1871. The next four years found him as a pension agent for the Federal Government located at Wheeling. In 1875 he returned to Ritchie County and continued to practice his profession until his death, September 30, 1906.

MAJOR GENERAL BENJAMIN FRANKLIN KELLEY. Benjamin Franklin Kelley was born in New Hampton, N. H., in April, 1807, and later moved to (West) Virginia and settled at West Liberty, in Ohio County. His education and training was in the Partridge Military Academy, Norwich, Vt., of which he was a graduate. In Ohio County he engaged in the mercantile business, becoming a partner of John Goshorn.

On the eve of the Civil War, Kelley returned from Philadelphia, where he had been employed as an agent by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, to Wheeling and was made colonel of the First Virginia Infantry. He was ordered on May 25, 1861, to assume command of all Federal troops in (West) Virginia at that time. The First (West) Virginia Infantry was organized by Kelley and he was commissioned brigadier general on May 16, 1861, at which time he was also assigned to command the (West) Virginia military department.

As a small Confederate force was near Grafton and endangering the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Kelley moved swiftly, reaching Grafton on June 1, 1861. Confederate forces, under Colonel Charles A. Porterfield, retired to Philippi before Kelley. At Philippi, June 3, 1861, the Union and Confederate forces, under Kelley and Porterfield respectively, engaged in a lively contest that has been considered the first important inland military engagement of the Civil War. The Union forces were victorious and for conspicuous service Kelley was commended by his superior officer, General George B. McClellan. In this battle he was wounded and the effects still lingered until his death in 1891.

After a few weeks of convalescence Kelley was assigned the Herculean task of protecting the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad from Cumberland to Grafton. On October 27, 1861, he captured Romney and immediately received the Army Headquarters' compliments from Washington, D. C. Until January, 1862, Kelley remained at Romney to block any move that might be made by "Stonewall" Jackson. However, becoming dissatisfied he requested to be relieved of his command which was in order granted. General F. W. Lander succeeded him but served only two months until the time of his death; at this time Kelley took command of the Federal troops at Harpers Ferry.

The mid-year of 1862 saw General Kelley again in command of the mountain department with headquarters located at Clarksburg. As before his main task was protecting and keeping open the Third Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The movement of Federal troops around Kelley's department necessitated his aid from time to time. This help was given the main Union forces around Gettysburg, and later the Averell Raid was carried out under his command. His reward for faithful service was a commission as major general. Near the end of the War he, together with General George Crook, was taken prisoner by the Confederates and placed in Libby Prison, but was eventually paroled after spending a short time there.

After the War General Kelley was stationed at Hot Springs, Arkansas, for several years. The termination of his services here freed him for other activities. His remaining days, which were imperiled by the wound received in the Battle of Philippi, were spent around Washington, D. C., and on his farm at Swan Meadows, Maryland. At an old age he passed away on June 16, 1891, and, as requested by him, was buried in Arlington.

GENERAL JOSEPH A. J. LIGHTBURN. Joseph A. J. Lightburn was born of Scotch parentage near West Newton in Westmoreland County, Pa., on September 21, 1824. Humbly he lived with his parents while attending the elementary schools in his home county. At the age of 16 his parents moved to (West) Virginia and during the following year located a permanent home on Broad Run, near Weston, in Lewis County. Here he became a close friend and associate of Thomas J. Jackson.

When the Mexican War opened Jackson, who had received military training at West Point, visited his home town before going to Mexico, and Lightburn followed his friend into the army, enlisting as a private in the United States Army to serve a five-year enlistment. Returning in 1851 he resumed his farming and mill work.

Lightburn was chosen a delegate to the Second Wheeling Convention from Weston, and at the end of the convention Governor Pierpont gave him command as colonel of the Fourth Virginia Infantry on August 14, 1861. He immediately became active throughout the Kanawha Valley, and when General Jacob D. Cox was called to help defend Washington the command of the Union forces devolved upon him in August, 1862.

The withdrawal of General Cox and his Army from the Kanawha Valley gave the Confederates under General W. W. Loring an opportunity to regain the salt and saltpeter supply located along the Kanawha River and in Greenbrier County. September 12, 1862, witnessed General Loring moving upon Lightburn's positions. The latter began his retreat in face of a superior force and continued until September 16, by which time he had fallen back to Point Pleasant, a distance of nearly 100 miles. Much criticism has been directed at Lightburn for his retreat, while his defenders contend his was the best strategy to adopt under the circumstances. In 1863 General Lightburn joined Grant on the Mississippi and aided in capturing Vicksburg. Later he was active in the battles of Jackson and Chickamauga, and marched to Atlanta with Sherman. In the final stages of the War he was engaged in various phases of different campaigns in the Shenandoah Valley.

Upon returning home from the War General Lightburn served one term, 1867, in the State Legislature as a representative from Lewis County. In 1868 he was ordained a minister by the Broad Run Baptist Association and he served there until his death on May 17, 1901.

MAJOR GENERAL JESSE LEE RENO. In Ohio County at Wheeling, (West) Va., Jesse Lee Reno was born on June 20, 1823, of French parentage. His early years were spent in the usual way and in attending the public schools. His environment was changed in 1839 when his parents moved to Franklin, Pa. Here his school work progressed rapidly and on July 1, 1842, he entered the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.

Four years after entering the Military Academy he was graduated and immediately entered the Mexican War. However, his services in this War were not of extreme importance. A good record at West Point and his subsequent experience in the War won for him a position as assistant professor of mathematics at the United States Military Academy.

Later he became secretary of the Military Board on heavy artillery. During 1851-1852 he was engaged as assistant to the Federal Ordnance Board. Following this service he was placed in the United States Coastal and Border service in which he served at various places. When the Civil War opened he was in command of the Federal Arsenal at Mount Vernon, Alabama. Almost immediately the post was captured by the Confederates and Reno was transferred to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

The trend of the War necessitated his presence and services in the East and he was ordered to join General A. E. Burnside in North Carolina. In the eastern theatre of war he saw active service in the first Battle of Bull Run (or Manassas). The days following this battle were most hectic for the Union Forces and gave the Confederate Armies time to maneuver into better positions.

Among the first Confederate generals to realize this was General Thomas J. ("Stonewall") Jackson, a lifelong friend of Major General Reno. Utilizing this splendid opportunity General Jackson began a rapid march northward which brought him upon Maryland soil. Union leaders became alarmed and ordered Reno to pursue him with the greatest possible speed and at all costs. After a series of forced marches he came upon Jackson near South Mountain and the Battle that resulted has since been known by that name. Here Major General Reno was killed on the field of action, September 14, 1862, but not before he had slowed the northward advance of the Confederate Army. His place of repose is at Trinity Church, Boston, Mass.

CIVIL WAR—CONFEDERATE

GENERAL JOHN ECHOLS. Born at Lynchburg, Va., on March 20, 1823, John Echols was surrounded with splendid opportunities for a formal school education. These fingertip opportunities were quickly realized and energetically grasped by him and while yet a young man he was graduated with honors from Washington College, now Washington and Lee University, and from there proceeded to Harvard University where he entered the Law School. Upon his return to Virginia he taught school for a short period, and was eventually admitted to the bar in Rockingham County, Virginia, in 1843, where he began his first law practice. Subsequent to his admission to the Virginia bar he moved to Union, Monroe County, (West) Va., to establish a more permanent private law practice. This he continued until early in 1861, at which time he became a member of the Virginia Convention.

Unsettled conditions preceding the Civil War found Echols strongly favoring the Confederacy, and as a member of the Virginia Convention of 1861 he voted in favor of the Secession Ordinance. Upon adoption of the Secession Ordinance he resigned from the Convention and was nominated colonel of a group of Virginia volunteers. With the volunteer group as a nucleus he organized a company, and as its commander saw front-line service at the First Battle of Bull Run (or Manassas) with the Twenty-seventh Virginia Regiment. Shortly thereafter he was deprived of active military duty for some time due to a wound received in the battle of Kernstown. His activities, after recuperating and re-joining his command, were centered in Western Virginia, or the mountain region. In 1862 Echols replaced General W. W. Loring as Confederate leader in the famous Kanawha Valley Campaigns. He was also engaged in the battle of Cloyd Mountain, where General Albert Gallatin Jenkins was mortally wounded; aided General Jubal A. Early on various raids, the greatest being in the South Branch Valley; and fought side-by-side with General Lee at Appomattox where the Confederacy laid down its arms. After aiding President Jefferson Davis in his escape from Richmond, Echols returned to Greensboro, N. C., and surrendered himself to Federal officials but was soon after paroled.

At the end of the War General Echols left the warborn state of West Virginia, but continued to have a great interest in the economic and industrial development of both Virginia and West Virginia. His last few years were spent as a member of the Board of Visitors of Virginia Military Institute, and he also served as such for Washington and Lee University. He died May 24, 1896.

LIEUTENANT GENERAL THOMAS J. JACKSON. Few persons have been born and reared within the present borders of West Virginia possessing the remarkable characteristics and personality of Thomas J. Jackson. Jonathan Jackson and wife, Julia Beckwith (Neale) Jackson, were residing in Clarksburg, (West) Va., where the former was engaged in law practice, when on January 21, 1824, their son Thomas Jonathan Jackson was born.

In 1830 the Jacksons moved to a homestead near Weston, (West) Va., which has since been called Jackson's Mill. Here in the sparsely settled region of Western Virginia young Jackson grew into early manhood. His formal schooling was almost nil, and like others of his day and age was taught by experience, until his appointment to West Point.

At the early age of 17 he was appointed a constable in Lewis County. While serving in his official capacity he became greatly interested in the military profession. Following shortly thereafter he received a "conditional" appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point, New York. On July 1, 1842, he entered the Academy and on June 30, 1846, almost four years to the day, he was graduated after much "hard" studying with brevet rank of second lieutenant of artillery.

During his last year in the Academy the diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico became critical and subsequent events eventually led to the Mexican War. Jackson was immediately called upon, together with others of his rank, to proceed to Mexico with General Scott's army. After his arrival on March 9, 1847, little time was wasted, and at the end of the War he had seen active service in the siege of Vera Cruz and in the battles of Chapultepec and Contreras. Outstanding performances won for him a commission as breveted captain and later that of major.

Returning to the United States in 1848 he was active in military affairs until 1852 at which time he resigned from the army and accepted a professorship of artillery tactics and philosophy at the Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va. In this capacity he served his country admirably from 1852 until April, 1861.

Actual military life was practically non-existent during his professorial years at the Military Institute except for the commanding of a cadet corps at the execution of John Brown. Jackson was most vituperous toward Abolitionists and decided as early as 1855 that it would be better "to be on the opposite side" in any controversy with such persons.

The approaching Civil War saw Jackson as colonel given command of the Virginia volunteers in April, 1861, and the following June was assigned to the command of the First Brigade. His first engagement was a mere skirmish at Falling Waters on July 2, 1861. Within a month of this display of hostilities he was commissioned a brigadier general and led the First Brigade in the first Battle of Bull Run (or Manassas). The firm stand taken by him and his Brigade won for him the epithet "Stonewall" which has become immortal throughout the entire civilized world.

The following October he was commissioned a major general and given command of the Shenandoah Valley. After many minor engagements with Federal troops in the Upper Shenandoah Valley and along the Potomac River he launched what has since been known as his "Valley Campaign." In this campaign that lasted approximately one month Jackson with his "Stonewall Brigade" marched four hundred miles, fought five pitched battles, defeated and routed five Federal Armies, and claimed capture of vast military stores and several thousand prisoners. His own small army of some 15,000 men suffered comparatively less than the Federal Armies which numbered in some instances as many as 60,000.

To further prove his ability as a military strategist and executor of tactics he won much for the Confederacy in the Seven Days battles, Second Bull Run (or Manassas), Maryland campaign, and the capture of Harpers Ferry. His distinctive services merited notice from his superiors who on October 11, 1862, commissioned him a lieutenant general and gave him command of the Second Corps.

As commander of the Second Corps he opposed the Federal Army under General Hooker in the Battle of Chancellorsville, May 1, 1863, and after routing the right wing of the Federals he was mortally wounded by his own men by mistake and died from the effects May 10, 1863.

BRIGADIER GENERAL WILLIAM LOWTHER JACKSON, JR. A grandson of George Jackson, who was a great uncle of Thomas Jonathan Jackson, William Lowther Jackson, Jr., was possessed with the remarkable characteristics of unbounded energy, intellectual ability, and an invincible courage which brought him into public life as a statesman and military leader. In both fields of endeavor Jackson equaled many of his relatives of past generations, those of his generation as contemporaries, and several in the succeeding generation. At Clarksburg, (West) Va., on February 6, 1825, William Lowther Jackson, Jr., was born, and while spending his boyhood days in this vicinity acquired a common school education from the available public and private institutions.

Jackson's desire for an education led him into law school where he learned the many intricacies of the law profession and upon graduation was admitted to the bar. Soon after his admission to the bar he was chosen prosecuting attorney, in which office he served faithfully until elected a member of the Virginia Assembly. From 1854 to 1857 Jackson rendered unequalled service to the Commonwealth of Virginia as second auditor. In 1857 he was appointed lieutenant governor of Virginia and in this capacity automatically became president of the State Senate where he held office for one year. During 1858 he was elected a circuit court judge, and for the three years following, until 1861, he interpreted the law for the people in a manner as equitable as any preceding judge, if not to a superior degree. His reliability as a judge and versatile educational qualities won for him the enduring praise and admiration of the people.

The Secession Ordinance passed by Virginia in April, 1861, brought a response from Judge Jackson by his vacating the circuit court bench and enlisting in the Virginia Confederate Forces as a private. Although a private he nevertheless contributed greatly to the organization of the Thirty-first Virginia Infantry. His ability as an organizer and leader of men was utilized by his superior officers and consequently Private Jackson was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel, then to that of colonel and as such commanded the Thirty-first Virginia Infantry. Early campaigns throughout the mountain region of (West) Virginia occupied his time for the remaining months of 1861. However, he soon became aide to General "Stonewall" Jackson and merits much of the glory and fame won by the "Stonewall Brigade" in the victorious Valley Campaigns. These campaigns by no means exhausted Colonel Jackson's military service with General "Stonewall" Jackson. Several phases of the War fought in the well-known Valley Campaigns and along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad were executed under the leadership of Colonel W. L. Jackson, Jr.

After the death of Thomas J. "Stonewall" Jackson, Colonel W. L. Jackson, Jr., returned to recruiting and organizing troops. In the year of 1863 he organized and commanded as colonel the Nineteenth Virginia Cavalry under General Sam Jones in (West) Virginia. While in the mountain theatre of war he commanded a large force at the battle of Droop Mountain, and continued to hold important commands in the Confederate Armies in major operations in western Virginia, Maryland, and eastern Virginia. His courageous leadership, together with other indispensable qualities, won for him a commission as brigadier general which was assigned in September, 1864. As a brigadier general his activities grew to greater proportions and his presence in the Confederate Forces was well known and felt by the inhabitants and the Federal Army in (West) Virginia continuously until the War closed in April, 1865.

Shortly after the termination of the War, General Jackson, Jr., moved to Louisville, Ky., and served several terms as an elected circuit court judge. His death occurred at Louisville, Ky., on March 26, 1890.

GENERAL JOHN McCausland. Born of Irish ancestry in St. Louis, Mo., September 13, 1836, John McCausland grew to be a man of invincible determination and proved to be quite a problem to the Union Armies as a Confederate military leader. He was left an orphan at the age of eight, and was then sent to Virginia to make his home with an uncle, Alexander McCausland, living near the present town of Point Pleasant.

Unusual but very fortunate was McCausland in that he was heir to a large estate in St. Louis and the income from this gave him ample support and paid his private tutors during his early years and training. Later he entered the Old Buffalo Academy which was located in Putnam County, (West) Virginia. In 1857 he was graduated from The Virginia Military Institute at the head of his class. After attending the University of Virginia for one term he was chosen assistant professor of mathematics at The Virginia Military Institute. He, along with Thomas J. ("Stonewall") Jackson, commanded a cadet corps at the execution of John Brown.

As the Civil War became an actuality McCausland joined the Confederacy and spent much time recruiting troops in the Valley of Virginia, and from there went into the Kanawha Valley to organize a regiment of those men favoring the Confederate cause. At the latter place he succeeded in organizing the Thirty-sixth Virginia Regiment and commanded it under General John B. Floyd for several months. McCausland was then transferred to General Johnston's command in Kentucky. At the siege of Fort Donelson he effected a remarkable escape for himself and his entire brigade while the remaining officers and men were being taken prisoners. From 1862 to 1864 his operations were confined mainly to the mountainous section of western Virginia which included present West Virginia so as to protect the vitally important Virginia and Tennessee Railroad in southwestern Virginia and the salt and saltpeter industry in West Virginia. The many raids made by General McCausland were so destructive that almost complete desolation was left in his wake.

As the War was drawing to a close General McCausland was placed in command of cavalry regiments and gave a good account of himself by harassing the Federal troops and in waging a kind of guerilla warfare. Outstanding among his movements as a cavalry leader was the checking of General David Hunter's advance upon Lynchburg, Va., his success in completely routing General Wallace at Monocacy, the subsequent advance that brought him into the outskirts of Washington, D. C., and above all his raid into Pennsylvania and burning of Chambersburg under the orders of General Early. Minor skirmishes delayed him for sometime but he eventually joined General Lee's Army at Appomattox. General McCausland was present at Lee's surrender but definitely refused to be part of a conquered army and therefore directed his brigade to cut its way through the Union lines, which it did without hesitation.

General McCausland returned to his home in Mason County, but because of anti-Confederate feeling in the post-bellum days he fled to Canada, thence to England. Fearing extradition he continued his flight and went to France and then returned to America and remained in Mexico for a few months. Believing that the anti-Confederate feeling had subsided sufficiently he came to West Virginia and with the income from his St. Louis property purchased several thousand acres of land in the Kanawha Valley. Much of his land was located in present Putnam County, W. Va. At his home near Pliny, Putnam County, he died January 21, 1927.

BRIGADIER GENERAL ALBERT GALLATIN JENKINS. In the old Jenkins home on the Ohio River in Cabell County, W. Va., called "Green Bottom," Albert Gallatin Jenkins was born November 10, 1830, the son of Captain William Jenkins. His father was a business man of no little means and still greater ingenuity. Fortunate enough to have been reared in a home of plenty he was able to attend school and was graduated from Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Pa., in the class of 1848. In 1850 he was honored as a graduate of Harvard Law School, and after admission to the bar established a private practice in Charleston, (West) Va.

Like other lawyers he soon became interested in the political phase of public activities. After serving as a delegate to the Democratic National Nominating Convention of 1856 he was elected a representative in Congress, and served until the Secession Ordinance was adopted by Virginia in 1861. On April 21, 1861, after much consideration of the Secession Ordinance and of States-rights, he resigned his seat as representative in Congress and proceeded to join the Virginia military organization.

Irrespective of the fact that Jenkins was without military training or experience he was nevertheless chosen captain of a cavalry company. Leading this swiftly moving Confederate command throughout Western Virginia against military objectives he succeeded in inflicting damaging blows against the Federal Army. In this raiding "party" Jenkins was promoted to the rank of brigadier general. He rendered indispensable service under General Floyd in the Kanawha Valley Campaigns, and still greater aid was given in leading an advanced guard into Pennsylvania to help prepare for Lee's invasion. In this foray General Jenkins burned Chambersburg and then marched to Harrisburg. From here he moved to Gettysburg and gave substantial service to Lee. After the battle of Gettysburg, in which he was wounded, he returned to his mountain theatre of operations in Western Virginia, and on May 9, 1864, engaged General George Crook in the battle of Cloyd Mountain. This proved to be his last engagement for in the midst of battle he was severely wounded and on May 21, 1864, died from the effects of the wound.

SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR

REAR ADMIRAL FRENCH ENSOR CHADWICK. West Virginia proudly presents an outstanding individual of military importance in the person of Rear Admiral French Ensor Chadwick. Chadwick was born in Morgantown, Monongalia County, (West) Va., on February 29, 1844, and completed his elementary schooling and training in the local public schools. Accepting an appointment to the United States Naval Academy he enrolled and graduated four years later in 1864.

The months following his graduation found him serving with the United States fleet in the South Atlantic, and in order he was transferred to the Pacific Unit, thence to the West Indies, and from there to the European Station. In 1882 he was again sent abroad as naval attache under general orders that covered most of the continent of Europe and he remained there until 1889. His official headquarters were located in England and were attached to the London legation. Upon his recall from England, Chadwick was placed in command of the warship "Yorktown" during 1889-91, and early in 1892 became Chief Intelligence Officer. He was appointed Chief of the Bureau of Equipment in the Navy Department the latter part of 1892.

In 1897 Chadwick was promoted to the rank of captain and commanded the battleship "New York" as flagship of the North Atlantic squadron during the Spanish-American War. His services here also included duties as Chief of Staff to Admiral Sampson. The briefness of the war failed to hinder Captain Chadwick in winning five promotions for outstanding and conspicuous service in battle.

At the close of the War Captain Chadwick became president of The Naval War College and served from 1900-03, then was promoted to the rank of Rear Admiral in 1903 and in 1904 was commander-in-chief of the South Atlantic squadron. In 1906 he retired from active military duty because of age limit. He was a member of the Newport Representative Council and the American and National Geographical societies. Several of his literary contributions are considered to be of great value, and are, in order of publication, "Temperament, Disease and Health," "An Unsolved Problem," "Causes of the Civil War," "Relations of the United States and Spain," "Diplomacy and War," and "The American Navy." He died in New York on January 27, 1919.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL ANDREW SUMMERS ROWAN. Few West Virginians have won the recognition and respect of so many people and nations as has Andrew Summers Rowan. He was born at Gap Mills in Monroe County, (West) Va., in 1857, and attended the public schools there. As he grew older and became more widely experienced he developed a great interest in military literature. Through friends he was able to secure an appointment to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland, where he attended for a few months and then applied for a transfer to the Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., which was granted without question. From here he graduated in 1881.

Like others in the military profession Rowan entered the United States Military service shortly after graduation in 1881. His military record shows that from 1881 until 1890 he served on the frontier, and then was assigned to an official army surveying party in Central America. However, when the War with Spain began Rowan was in the front seat and eager to respond whenever his command should be called into actual service.

As the War progressed President McKinley needed to contact and convey vital information to the Cuban forces under the leadership of General Garcia who had been completely surrounded by the Spanish Army. In this matter Rowan was selected and volunteered his personal services to the President. In a small open boat he sailed for Cuba and landed during the nocturnal hours near Turquino Peak. Skillfully evading and eluding the coastal patrols, the Spanish army posts, and fighting his way through a dense jungle he reached General Garcia and delivered President McKinley's message. He was given a reply containing information regarding the insurgent army, and without wasting precious time set out upon his return trip. This he accomplished within a few days by his safe arrival at the British Isle of Nassau. For this distinguished service he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel. At the close of the War he remained in the armed forces and was stationed from 1899-1902 in the Viscayas Group, Philippine Islands. Colonel Rowan returned to America and was professor of military science and tactics at Kansas State Agriculture College for the term of 1902-03. His next six years of military duty were uneventful, and in 1909 he retired from active service.

Much praise has been given Colonel Rowan for performing such a feat as carrying the message to Garcia, and in 1922 Congress awarded him the Distinguished Service Medal. He, himself, wrote narratives entitled "The Island of Cuba," and "How I Carried The Message to Garcia," and both have been read and acclaimed by millions. At the time of this writing he is living a very active life in San Francisco, Calif.

Elbert Hubbard, a writer, made this great occasion the subject of a story entitled "A Message to Garcia." The publication has had an unusually wide circulation, having been translated into many foreign languages.

WORLD WAR I

The list of West Virginians who distinguished themselves in the first World War is a long one, for out of the ranks of the thousands from this State who fought on foreign soil in that conflict came the names of many whose heroic deeds won for them recognition not only in this country but in the capitals of our Allies across the Atlantic.

Perhaps the most complete record was assembled in 1940 when the Military Board of West Virginia recommended 62 West Virginians to receive the Distinguished Service Medal. Practically all of those men earned their medals on the battlefields of France—at St. Mihiel, in the Meuse-Argonne and the other famous battles of that war. On the breasts of those men repose practically every decoration awarded to the heroes of the Allied forces. Out of the 62, one was a civilian, War-time Governor John J. Cornwell, and another was Colonel Andrew S. Rowan of Spanish-American War fame. The other 60, who appear in the list on this page, saw service in World War I.

As in the other wars of our history, West Virginia did furnish its share of leaders, men who were prominent in the direction of the war effort, and their biographies follow the list of those who received the West Virginia Distinguished Service Medal.

SECRETARY NEWTON DIEHL BAKER. Although not a military leader or hero, Newton Diehl Baker nevertheless served in the capacity of a statesman under President Woodrow Wilson as Secretary of War during the period of the first World War. He was born on December 3, 1871, at Martinsburg, West Virginia, and received his early education in the public schools. As a student he entered Johns Hopkins University and graduated with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in 1892. Two years later, in 1894, he was granted a Bachelor of Law Degree from Washington and Lee University.

During 1896-97 Baker filled a position as private secretary to Postmaster-General Wilson. At the termination of his official duties as private secretary he returned to Martinsburg and began a private law practice in 1897. He continued his law practice until the inception of the century and then moved to Cleveland, Ohio. Here he held office as City Solicitor from 1902 to 1912, and then was elected to the office of mayor for the City of Cleveland and served two terms, the first from 1912 to 1914, and the second from 1914 to 1916.

It was while serving as Mayor of Cleveland that President Woodrow Wilson appointed him Secretary of War on March 7, 1916. Baker continued in office for a full term which expired on March 4, 1921. While in office and serving as Secretary of War his services were most commendable and almost invaluable to the favorable prosecution of the War. After leaving the Cabinet position he was appointed by President Coolidge a member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague in 1928. While president of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation he was appointed a member of the Law Enforcement Commission by President Hoover in 1929, and subsequently became a member of the Advisory Council of The Natural Economy League.

In 1921 he became a commanding colonel in the Officers' Reserve Corps, and later, in 1929, was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. The National Institute of Social Science awarded him a medal in 1933 "for services to humanity."

Newton Diehl Baker became affiliated with the law firm of Baker, Hostetler, Sidlo & Patterson in 1936-37 in the City of Cleveland. He is at present director of The Cleveland Trust Company, and is directly connected with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, Radio Corporation of America, and The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company in the capacity of a director. His home is in Cleveland.

MAJOR GENERAL JOHN LEONARD HINES. Most conspicuous among West Virginia's military leaders stands John Leonard Hines. He was born at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., on May 21, 1868. His education and training was acquired in the public schools in his home town, and in 1887 he entered the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., and graduated in 1891. Immediately he was placed in command of an infantry regiment and stationed at Fort Omaha, Neb., where he remained until 1896. He was subsequently transferred to Tampa, Fla., where he served as quartermaster of the Second Infantry, and when the Spanish-American conflict opened his headquarters were moved to Santiago, Cuba, in 1898; the next year he was stationed at Cienfuegos, Cuba, and remained there until 1901.

When the Philippine campaign began after the Spanish-American War had ended Hines was detailed to the Philippine Islands in 1901, and again in 1903 and served there until 1905. In 1907 he was chief quartermaster in the camp of United States Troops at the Exposition. From there he proceeded to the Department of Missouri where he served as assistant to the chief quartermaster during 1908-09. In 1910 Hines was sent to Nagasaki, Japan, as a military attache, returning in 1911. He also served in the Punitive Expedition in Mexico early in 1916 and 1917.

Preparation for the First World War found Hines holding rank as major, and in May, 1917, embarked for France with the A. E. F. as assistant adjutant general which he retained until October of the same year. On November 1, 1917, he became colonel of the Sixteenth Infantry and discharged the duties as such until May 4, 1918, at which time he was appointed commander of the First Brigade of Infantry, First Division, of the A. E. F., as brigadier general after having been promoted to this rank on April 12, 1918. On August 8 of the same year he was temporarily promoted to the rank of major general, and on August 25th was assigned to the Fourth Division of the A. E. F. One month before the Armistice was signed Hines was appointed commander of the Third Army Corps where he served until the War ended. While in the War he served in several major battles such as Montdidier-Noyon, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, and the Meuse-Argonne.

In November of the year following the termination of World War I General Hines was placed in command of the Fourth Division of the United States Army. On September 25, 1920, he was given command of the Fifth Division; was assigned to command the Second Division on July 11, 1921; and on October 6, 1921, was chosen commander of the Eighth Corps Area. He became deputy chief of staff of the United States army in 1922 and served until September 13, 1924, at which time he was made chief of staff succeeding General Pershing and continued in this capacity until 1926.

General Hines was appointed commander of the Ninth Corps Area on December 31, 1926, after vacating the office of chief of staff, and held this command until October 2, 1930, when he was appointed commander of the Philippine Department. Here he rendered invaluable service for the next two years until the time of his retirement on May 31, 1932.

For outstanding service in Cuba in 1898 Hines received the Silver Star Medal. In 1919 he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal "for services as regimental, brigadier, division, and corps commander," and also received the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary service in the Soissons drive of the World War.

He is commander of a number of military legions and organizations. His home is still in West Virginia at White Sulphur Springs, Greenbrier County. At present he is employed by the War Department in Washington, D. C., in a civilian capacity.

REAR ADMIRAL JULIAN LANE LATIMER. Unknown to many West Virginians and kept in seclusion by present day authors, Julian Lane Latimer, born at Shepherdstown, W. Va., on October 10, 1868, deserves and merits recognition equaling that given other naval and military leaders from West Virginia. Latimer studied in the public schools that were accessible in his home town, and in 1886 he entered the United States Naval Academy at the age of 18 and graduated four years later. He received a commission as ensign on July 1, 1892, and as such was assigned to active duty with the fleet where he spent the ensuing six years studying navigation.

At the inception of the Spanish-American War in 1898 Latimer was serving on the "Winslow" and continued there until shortly after the War terminated. In 1903 he was assigned to the Bureau of Ordnance, Navy Department, where he served three years. After the expiration of his three years of land duty he was transferred to the battleship "Virginia" for one year, 1906-07, then placed in command of the warship "Vesuvius" and finally was designated executive officer and navigator on the "Montgomery" from 1907 to 1909. During the following years he was assigned to various places and given a number of commands, and in order they were: Inspector of Ordnance and in charge of the Naval Magazine at Hingham, Massachusetts, from 1909 to 1911; commander of the naval vessel "Culgon," 1911-12; executive officer on the battleship "Vermont," 1912-13; commander of the "Alabama," 1913-14; inspector of engineering material, Massachusetts District, Naval Department, from 1914 to 1916; and commander of the battleship "Rhode Island" from 1916 to 1919 throughout the entire period of the First World War.

He returned to land duty early in 1919 and spent the following year in the War College at Washington, D. C., and was returned to active duty during 1920 and continued through 1921 as commandant of the Seventh Naval District and Naval Station at Key West, Fla. Latimer's continued and widely recognized naval service won for him the position of Judge Advocate General of the Navy in 1921, and receiving a promotion on November 13, 1923, to the rank of rear admiral, he continued to serve as judge advocate until 1925.

Expanding naval units necessitated supervision and commanding from experienced naval men and Rear Admiral Latimer was called upon to command a Special Service Squadron from 1925 to 1927. The remaining years of his service were spent at Philadelphia, Pa., as commandant of the Fourth Naval District and Navy Yard. He retired from active duty in 1930, taking up his residence at Clearwater, Fla.

MAJOR GENERAL MASON MATHEWS PATRICK. This stalwart citizen of the Mountain State was born at Lewisburg, Greenbrier County, on December 13, 1863, and while attending the local public schools there prepared himself for the United States Military Academy which he entered and four years later was graduated in 1886. After an assignment to active duty for two years as a second lieutenant in the Engineer Corps he entered the Engineering School of Application in 1889 where he made a remarkable record as a student of engineering.

After his graduation from the Engineering School he became assistant instructor in practical military engineering at the United States Military Academy and taught from 1892 to 1895. In 1897-98 he was placed in charge of the first and second districts of the Mississippi River Improvement Area. The following two years were spent at various military posts in the United States, and in 1901 he was assigned to office duty in Washington for three years. At the end of his three years of service in Washington he was placed in the Military Academy as instructor and also as Commander of the United States Military Academy Detachment of Engineers from 1904 to 1906.

During the two years from 1907 to 1909 Patrick was appointed and served as Chief Army Engineer of the Cuban Pacification. Immediately thereafter he became engaged in many other minor military activities, and pursuant to War Department orders he was stationed at Norfolk, Va., as supervisor of River and Harbor work. Under this category of duties was listed the salvaging of the USS Maine. At the end of 1912 he was detailed for active duty in the Great Lakes Improvement program conducted by the Army Engineer Corps. While at his official headquarters in Detroit, Mich., he was commissioned a colonel on March 24, 1916, and placed in command of the First Regiment of Engineers. He was also assigned as commandant of the Engineering School, Washington Barracks, Washington, D. C., where he continued throughout 1916-17.

On August 5, 1917, he was given the rank of brigadier general and in the following month was sent to France with the A. E. F. as Chief Engineer of lines communication, construction, and forestry operations. He remained in this branch of the armed service until May, 1918, was then promoted to Chief of Air Service in the A. E. F., and after being commissioned a major general on June 26, 1918, served until July, 1919, in this capacity.

At the end of the War he returned to the United States and was stationed in the United States Army Engineering Division, Gulf Division, at New Orleans, La., during 1919-20, and from 1920 to 1921 held office as Chief of Army Engineers.

From July to October, 1921, General Patrick was commandant of the Engineering School at Camp Humphrey, Va., was subsequently transferred from here to the Air Corps by an assignment as Chief of Air Service, and after serving a four year period was reappointed in 1925. On December 13, 1927, after serving two years of his reappointment to the Air Corps Command he retired from active military duty.

However, General Patrick's retirement from military duty did not prevent him from serving his country in a civilian office and was in order appointed by President Hoover to the Public Utilities Commission of Washington, D. C., in June, 1929; and in September, 1933, after four years service he resigned as chairman.

General Patrick was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his long and meritorious military service. He has been elected commander of several military legions, and is also a member of the Army and Navy Club. He is still serving in the United States War Department, Washington, D. C., in a civilian capacity.

WORLD WAR II

As noted in the introduction to this article, the present conflict undoubtedly will bring into the spotlight a greater number of West Virginians than any war of the past has ever produced. At this writing, in the summer of 1942, it is most likely that many sons of this State, in addition to the ones we mention, already have achieved prominence that has not yet been publicly recognized, and fame lies ahead for countless others in a war that has "only started" so far as America is concerned.

The few we do mention here are men who stood out during the first few months of the war—four of them holding high and responsible rank in the Army and Navy, one serving on important diplomatic missions and one who rose through the Naval ranks to command a submarine and subsequently to direct that submarine in one of the most daring and devastating assaults recorded in the annals of sea warfare.

CAPTAIN T. DEWITT CARR. No native son of West Virginia has stamped his mark upon the pages of military history and left so great an impression as Captain T. DeWitt Carr has done during the three preceding decades. Carr was born on December 8, 1893, in Huntington. A formal education was acquired by attending the public schools in his home city where he proved his ability and amazed his teachers with his high mental calibre and intellectual capacity. In 1912 he was appointed to the United States Naval Academy from the Fifth District of West Virginia. Four years later he graduated from the Naval Academy with a scholastic record that is in itself unique, and ranks among the highest.

In 1916 after his graduation from Annapolis he was assigned to the battleship "Wyoming," and served with the British Grand Fleet for one year during World War I while stationed at the important naval base at Scapa Flow. During this time British and German naval engagements were frequent, and in the mighty struggles Carr won for himself much glory, was complimented by his superior officers, and later cited for bravery under fire. After the War ended he was assigned to the submarine "Fulton" for instructions in submarine navigation, warfare, and commanding. Quickly he learned his new tasks and in 1920 was in command of the O-10 submarine, and in 1921 of the R-22. Rising rapidly in the United States Navy Department, Carr was in order placed with the Bureau of Navigation for two years, and additional duties assigned made him Naval Aide to the White House. More of an honor than of military importance and significance was his services as commander of the "Mayflower," which was at that time the President's yacht.

After a few months on the "Mayflower," he was transferred to, and became aide and flag lieutenant of the Commander Battle Fleet. Similar duties were performed by him on the staff of the Commander Scouting Fleet. In 1929, Carr returned to the Bureau of Navigation, and during 1930 was stationed on the USS West Virginia. After an appointment as aide to the Assistant Secretary of the Navy in 1931 he continued with the USS West Virginia until 1935, when he left upon orders and returned to the Naval Academy. His distinctive services here soon won for him a promotion to the rank of commander. This continuous, if somewhat scattered, service added immensely to his excellent record.

Holding rank as commander at the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Carr served as supervisor of the Engineering Department from 1935 to 1938. Early in 1939 he was placed in command of the newly commissioned destroyer, the USS Davis. Surrounded by success and still possessed with a tremendous amount of self-assurance and determination, Commander Carr made his bid for a position that promised to bestow upon him everlasting fame. Undauntedly he assumed command of a squadron of destroyers in the Pacific Unit of the United States Fleet stationed at an Hawaiian Island base.

The ingenuous Commander Carr was soon found to be a man of no little accomplishment, and the Navy Department transferred him from the Hawaiian Island Naval base to the United States Great Lakes Naval Training Station in Illinois on June 2, 1941. Since that time Carr has been promoted to the rank of Captain and is serving as USN Chief Executive Officer under Rear Admiral John Downes, USN Commanding Officer.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL DELOS CARLETON EMMONS. A beacon for every West Virginian in these early stages of World War II is Lieutenant-General Delos Carleton Emmons, a high ranking Army officer commanding the Hawaiian Department of the United States Army, standing on the Pacific stepping-stone to the Orient.

This West Virginian of truly sterling quality was born in Huntington, January 17, 1888, and educated in the public grade schools and graduated from Oley High School. Through Congressman James Hughes he received an appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., in 1905. While in school there Emmons compiled an above-average scholastic record. He was a versatile young man and in addition to being a scholar was also an athlete, having been a member of the West Point track teams and a middle-weight boxing champion. In 1909 Emmons graduated from West Point and was assigned as Second Lieutenant to the Thirty-first Infantry. Here the young officer served at a number of military posts, among them San Francisco, Alaska, Plattsburg Barracks, and on the Mexican border under General John J. Pershing.

In 1917, during World War I, Emmons was transferred to the Aviation Branch, Signal Corps and served as aeronautical officer of the Western Department at San Francisco, until his assignment in Washington, D. C., in December, 1917. While at Washington he was on active duty under the Chief Signal Officer until June, 1918, at which time he was given command of Mather Field at Sacramento, Calif. In succession the brilliant Emmons rendered admirable service at McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio, as business and military executive, and later as assistant chief, engineering division. In his 33rd year and holding the rank of major he entered the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration in 1920 and graduated in 1921.

From Harvard he returned to McCook Field and served as production engineering chief, and while here he was given his first combat command in 1924 and placed in charge of Crissy Field at San Francisco. He commanded the Eleventh Observation Squadron. Four years later he returned to Washington to serve as executive officer for the Chief of the Air Corps, and during the following year, 1929, became executive in the office of the Assistant Secretary of War for Aviation. Closely following these duties Emmons attended the Air Corps Tactical School at Maxwell Field, Ala., and then enrolled in the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., where he attained additional recognition as a leading military man.

In 1934 Emmons emerged from a decade of hard studying and training, and in 1935 was placed in command as lieutenant-colonel of the Hawaiian Air Corps Department and stationed at Fort Shafter, Hawaiian Islands. There he was the commanding officer of the Eighteenth Composite Wing (Army Air Wing is comparable to an Army Regiment) of the United States Air Corps. Two years later, in 1936, he became a brigadier general while acting as Wing Commander of GHQ, Air Force at March Field, California; three years later, March, 1939, he rose to the rank of major general and was placed in charge of the entire GHQ Air Force, with headquarters at Langley Field, Va.

While stationed at Langley Field, Va., General Emmons was sent to England three times to study present war conditions there with emphasis upon aerial warfare due to the many "Blitzkriegs" on the British Isles. After his return from his last trip to England he was commissioned as lieutenant general in October, the highest rank ever attained by an Army Air Corps officer. It was also General Emmons who led the goodwill expedition of flying fortresses to Brazil, South America, before the United States entered World War II.

Appropriate at this time is the statement that Marshall College conferred upon General Emmons the Degree of Doctor of Laws, at the 1941 June commencement.

When conditions became critical and the westernmost possessions of the United States were attacked by Japan, General Emmons was chosen to command the military forces in the Hawaiian Islands. During the latter part of December, 1941, he arrived in Hawaii and replaced General Walter C. Short as Army Commander and Military Governor of the Hawaiian Department and Islands. Since that time General Emmons has not only worked miracles in the defense of the islands but has stepped to the forefront in recent military engagements with the Japanese. The famous Midway Battle, fought with the Japanese during June, 1942, was won by the American forces due largely to Emmons' ingenuity and careful planning. President Roosevelt has made him permanent major-general for his outstanding accomplishments. At present he is still Military Governor and Commander of the Armed Forces in the Hawaiian Department.

LOUIS ARTHUR JOHNSON. Louis Arthur Johnson received world-wide notice during the Spring of 1942 when he was chosen by President Roosevelt as a special envoy to India in an effort to promote an agreement for a more stable defense of India between Mahatma Gandhi as Indian leader and Sir Stafford Cripps, England's plenipotentiary. This soldier-diplomat was born at Roanoke, Va., on January 10, 1891, and after acquiring a grade and high school education entered the University of Virginia where he received a Bachelor of Law Degree in 1912.

During the year of 1912 Johnson moved to West Virginia and established his residence at Clarksburg, where he began the practice of his profession. He was serving in the House of Representatives in 1917 when the United States entered the first World War. As a Representative he was chairman of the Judiciary Committee and majority floor leader, but active participation in the War by the United States drew him, after the expiration of his term, along with others into the armed forces. Here he served as captain in the infantry in overseas duty for one year. After the War he became a lieutenant-colonel in the Infantry Reserve.

Johnson was chosen a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1924. In 1932-33 he was National Commander of the American Legion, the first West Virginian to be accorded such an honor.

At present he is a member of the West Virginia State and Harrison County bar associations, and is a member of the Steptoe & Johnson law firm in Clarksburg and Charleston. Until 1933 he was serving as Director of The Union National Bank and Community Savings Loan Company at Clarksburg, at which time he became civilian aide to the Secretary of War, State of West Virginia. Shortly thereafter he was appointed a member of the Federal Advisory Council of the United States Employment Service under the Department of Labor. On June 28, 1937, President Roosevelt appointed him Assistant Secretary of War, a position he filled until 1940.

Along with his other duties he is serving as vice chairman of the State Council of Defense, by appointment of Governor Neely.

REAR ADMIRAL CLAUD ASHTON JONES. Conspicuous among the men of mark in the Navy is Rear Admiral Claud Ashton Jones, born at Fire Creek, near Fayetteville in Fayette County, on October 7, 1885, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Jones. As a part of his rearing and training he attended the public schools at Fayetteville and Charleston. He was appointed by the Honorable Joseph H. Gaines to the United States Naval Academy, entering on June 29, 1903. On September 13, 1907 he was graduated from the Academy with honor in the first section of the class of 1907.

Immediately following his graduation Jones was assigned to active duty at sea on the USS Indiana and the USS New Jersey where he continued until 1911, at which time he was ordered to post-graduate engineering work at the United States Naval Academy. During this period of sea duty he participated in the Fleet's cruise around the world and also served as a member of the Navy's Rifle Teams. Jones was awarded the Cuban Pacification Medal for services on the USS Indiana in Cuba in 1906.

During 1912-13 Jones studied at Harvard University, completing a post-graduate course in electrical engineering. Assignment to sea service followed his schooling at Harvard, and he served in all of the various grades of naval officers at sea and ashore. While stationed on board the USS New York he was awarded the Mexican Service Medal for outstanding accomplishments and services at Vera Cruz. Later he also received the Dominican Campaign Medal while serving on board the USS Memphis in Santo Domingo. On August 29, 1916, the USS Memphis was lost at Santo Domingo, and on January 13, 1917, Jones received a letter of commendation from the Secretary of the Navy for his gallant services on the ship at the time of its loss.

In 1917, Jones was appointed to the specialist branch of Engineering Duty Only in the Navy. His duty was closely connected with the design and construction of naval vessels. For approximately four years he served as Head of Design Division of the Bureau of Engineering and one year as Assistant Chief of the same bureau. In order he then served as Staff Engineer, Battleships Division, Battle Force, and later as Staff Engineer of the Battle Force. His services here were invaluable to the Navy during the first World War and consequently he was awarded the Victory Medal for his meritorious and personal contributions.

Outstanding accomplishments in the field of engineering won for him much recognition as Engineer Officer, USS Tennessee, which contributed to the ship's high standing in engineering competition in 1921-22.

Varied assignments to duty found him as Assistant Naval Attache for Engineering at the American Embassy at London, with additional duty at Berlin, Paris, Rome, and The Hague. In the present emergency he has served as Head of the Shipbuilding Division, Bureau of Ships, and is now Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Ships with special responsibility in connection with the expanded shipbuilding program.

The Congressional Medal of Honor was awarded Rear Admiral Jones by the President of the United States on August 24, 1932, for extraordinary and unusual services in connection with the USS Memphis at the time of its casualty and subsequent loss. Other awards include the Expert Team Rifleman's Medal; Expert Rifleman's Medal with bars, and the National Team Rifleman's Medal. He is past president and member of the American Society of Naval Engineers, member United States Naval Institute, member Newcomen Society, and is now Vice President and member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers.

On May 18, 1942, Rear Admiral Jones received for his distinguished career the Degree of Doctor of Science from West Virginia University.

MAJOR GENERAL RICHARD KERENS SUTHERLAND. World War I was the proving field for this brilliant figure of World War II, Richard Kerens Sutherland, who has been in the limelight since December 7, 1941. Born in a rural area near Hancock, Md., on November 27, 1893, his parents moved to Elkins, Randolph County, a few months after his birth and established permanent residence there. Educated in the public schools at Elkins, he left Andover Academy in Massachusetts, which had been a preparatory course for college, and entered Yale University in 1911. This, however, was somewhat different from the type of education for which he had worked, hoped, and planned. His desire was to enter the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., or the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., but persuasion from his parents changed his plans.

Although suffering many reverses while at Yale University he did not become discouraged, and during his senior year he joined the R. O. T. C. Yale Battalion which was being promoted by General Leonard Wood. Here he came into actual military practice which had been a burning desire since early boyhood. Sutherland graduated from Yale, in June, 1916, and on July 10 enlisted as a private in the Connecticut National Guard. After intensive training at Tobyhanna, Pa., where he won a commission as second lieutenant in the National Guard through a competitive examination, he became active in Federal service as an artillery private on the Mexican Border until the results of the competitive examination were made known, then served as second lieutenant. While here he was notified by army officials that he had been accepted for the regular United States Army as a result of another examination taken after his training in Pennsylvania. On November 28 he joined the infantry as a second lieutenant but was commissioned a first lieutenant the same day. As a first lieutenant he was ordered to report to Fort Leavenworth, Kans., to begin training in the Army Service Schools; there he remained until March 30, 1917.

Three days before the United States declared war on the Central Powers Lieutenant Sutherland joined the Eleventh Infantry at Douglas, Ariz., on April 3, 1917, and was transferred with this regiment to Camp Forest, Ga., on May 29. After a period of four months intensive training he was promoted to the rank of captain and in command of a company of military police was transferred to Camp Merritt, N. J. In January, 1918, he embarked for France and during the following months served in the Somme-Dieu sector and in the Aisne defensive at Chateau Thierry. He volunteered for tank corps service and was sent to England for training, and before long was again in France for active service but the Armistice halted the war on November 11, 1918. After the Armistice was signed Sutherland remained in Europe and was sent to Southern France where he spent several months before returning to the United States. At the end of the war he was still a military police officer, which actually had never been to his liking.

Back in America after the war ended he was stationed at a number of military posts in the continental United States. From this type of service he entered the Infantry School at Fort Benning to pursue his studies in military science and tactics, and as a result was chosen professor of Military Science and Tactics at the Shattuck School, Fiarbault, Minn., in 1923, and continued as professor until 1927. During 1928 he studied at the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Like many other military men he wished to study at the famous Ecole Superieure de Guerre in Paris, which had a reputation of being one of the finest military schools on the Continent of Europe. To undertake such a business as this required a knowledge of the French language which he acquired during 1926-27 while professor at Shattuck School in Minnesota. Feeling equipped for the undertaking he traveled to France after leaving the Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and spent two years at the War School in Paris where he studied in detail many important battles of World War I. Captain Sutherland returned to the United States in 1930 and served the following two years with the Twenty-ninth Infantry at Fort Benning. From here he enrolled in the Army War College, Washington, D. C., for an advanced course which lasted approximately one year.

The intervening four years from 1933 to 1937 saw Captain Sutherland serving at various places in the United States Army. His desire for more active duty came early in 1937, and as commander of the Fifteenth Infantry was sent to Tientsin, China. Here he remained, engaged in minor activities, and the following year, 1938, he was ordered to Manila in the Philippine Islands as adviser on budgetary and procurement affairs, and while there he became MacArthur's chief of staff. In this capacity his unbounded energy and indomitable efforts were utilized by MacArthur in building and training a Philippine Army and mapping defense strategy for the Islands.

After serving as captain for 21 years Sutherland was now to receive his long-awaited opportunity—that of rising higher in the army command. In order he was promoted to the rank of major on March 24, 1938; to lieutenant colonel on July 1, 1938; to brigadier general on August 19, 1941, and eventually to his present rank, that of major general on December 18, 1941. The following months in the Philippine Island struggle found Major General Sutherland living up to the confidence placed in him. On February 22, 1942, President Manuel Quenzon of the Philippines, upon recommendation from General Douglas MacArthur, awarded the Distinguished Service Star of The Philippines to Major General Sutherland, chief of staff, and also to Brigadier General Richard J. Marshall. This is the highest military decoration awarded by the Philippine Government.

When the Philippine Island fortresses fell General Douglas MacArthur was ordered by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to proceed to Australia and establish his headquarters there. On March 17, 1942, MacArthur, accompanied by his wife and son, Chief of Staff Sutherland, Philippino President Manuel Quenzon, and a few other officers left for Australia. There Major General Sutherland is rendering service to General MacArthur in planning an offensive to overcome enemy opposition in the entire Pacific War area. Such a colossal task as this will find Sutherland contributing no little help in bringing it to a successful completion.

LIEUTENANT-COMMANDER FREDERICK BURDETT WARDER. The great naval battle fought off the Isle of Java during the last days of February and the early part of March, 1942, between the Japanese and Allied Navies brought to the forefront an American submarine commander who claims West Virginia as his home. This young underseas craft commander, Lieutenant-Commander Frederick Burdett Warder, was born in Taylor County at Grafton, on March 18, 1904, and was educated in the parochial grade and the public high schools from which he graduated in 1921. As an appointee to the United States Naval Academy he passed his entrance examinations and entered the Academy in 1921, and four years later was graduated with a commission as ensign.

Assignment to active sea duty followed Warder's graduation and brought him action in the Nicaraguan campaign during the latter part of the decade following the first World War. His duty there was ephemeral, having been made so by a transfer to the New London Submarine School in Connecticut. Preceding his transfer from Nicaragua to the Submarine School, he was advanced in rank to lieutenant, junior grade. Upon completion of his underseas' course in Connecticut, he was sent to the Panama Canal Zone as second officer in charge of a submarine. Warder quickly learned the essentials of submarine commanding and while still detailed to duty in the Canal Zone was given command of the U. S. S. S. 17 and 18; receiving for his faithful and competent service as a submarine commander the full rank of lieutenant.

From his Canal Zone station, Commander Warder returned to Annapolis and entered the Navy War College where he majored in the study of Diesel engines. He became active with the Asiatic Fleet of the United States Navy after his study at the War College and served in China for a brief period preceding his assignment to land duty at Portsmouth, N. H. While here he helped supervise the construction of the now famous United States submarine "Seawolf," which he at present commands in the Pacific Fleet.

Before assignment to active sea duty again, Warder entered the University of California where he completed work in engineering and received a master's degree. He was then in succession placed in command of the U. S. S. S. 47 and 48 as a part of the Asiatic Fleet. He has been commander of the "Seawolf" since the craft was commissioned and as such has given a splendid account of himself. In the naval engagement near the Java Isle, Warder and his crew on the "Seawolf" sank three Japanese warships and seriously damaged four others.

Since the Java naval battle Commander Warder, a "two and a half stripes" commander, has been active in various engagements in the Pacific struggle. For his outstanding accomplishments and heroism he has been awarded the Navy Cross. Governor M. M. Neely of West Virginia appointed him an honorary colonel after his activities in the Pacific were made known. The citizens of Grafton, his home town, have observed "Frederick Warder Day" in his honor.
