COMMENTS: Cabell County it seems has been put in a position to which we stand to lose at least one representative of our current six. Policies, both local and state, have caused a cascade effect of both business and people leaving Huntington and Cabell County. The problem specifically with the population is this particular area has an amount of people who left the immediate area but still live close for work purposes. On a daily basis two other states and several counties have a great many people in this area. Huntington itself is spread into Wayne County. Our legislative districts cover Cabell, and parts of Wayne and Lincoln Counties. Furthermore, Huntington has Marshall University whose students range between nine thousand and up to twelve thousand depending on enrollment. Huntington also has a very large transient population that cannot be counted effectively. Every law that is passed and every legislator who passes a law for this area does affect these individuals.
