Board Meeting Minutes

Pandemic Model for Hospital Staffing Assistance

To help address nurse staffing/patient care challenges around the COVID-19 pandemic, the following options are suggested as agreements between clinical site organizations and BSN/ADN nursing programs in West Virginia:

1. Clinical site organizations employment of nursing faculty to take a patient assignment within the unit of specified need and in return for the worked hours, the nursing program employer would provide comp time or workload release. Also, the faculty may choose to be paid directly by the organization as a per diem employee.
2. Junior and Senior level nursing students may volunteer outside of school hours to be employed by a clinical site organization to work under supervision of one or two licensed RN's employed by the clinical site organization to assist within the scope of mutually identified competencies based on their level of progression in the nursing program.
3. Faculty teaching a clinical group in a clinical site may be paid by the organization to teach half of a clinical group (no more than 4) to provide patient care in unit assigned by the clinical site based on need. This would count as clinical hours programmatically. The other half of the clinical group will be individually assigned to clinical site organizational RN employees in a preceptor model, again working within the scope of mutually identified competencies based on their level of progression in the nursing program.

**A list of approved tasks for students at each level of education will be in writing and agreed upon by nursing program and hospital.*

**Clinical site employed "preceptors" may be either ADN or BSN prepared Registered Nurses.*

Note: To promote this at a statewide level will need RN Board of Nursing approval that may be considered at an emergency meeting of the board.
