

The Walter Rollins Scholars Program

&

The Robert W. Burk, Jr., Student Intern Program

The Walter Rollins Scholars Program and the Robert W. Burk, Jr., Student Intern Program, offered by the West Virginia Legislature, provide exceptional educational experiences to graduate students attending West Virginia's colleges and universities. Through these programs, graduate students suited for placement in legislative offices gain an understanding of the state Legislature and its role in the making of public policy.

Each year, the Walter Rollins Scholars Program selects up to two graduate students to serve as legislative interns. Rollins Scholars study and work with those officials of the Senate and House of Delegates in the highest positions of leadership. Throughout their placement in these leader's offices, Rollins Scholars participate in the development of legislation affecting West Virginia's citizenry, conduct independent research within or about the legislative process and assist leaders with decision-making preparations during the legislative session.

The Robert W. Burk, Jr., Student Intern Program selects up to four graduate students each year for placement in the offices of committee chairpersons and other leaders in the Senate and House of Delegates. Burk Interns observe the making of public policy, analyze policy considerations, conduct research pertinent to the issues of the session, study how legislative structure bears upon the manner in which decisions are made and gain insight into the inner workings of the political process.

These two educational programs, the Walter Rollins Scholars Program and the Robert W. Burk, Jr., Student Intern Program, are the Legislature's most prestigious internships.

Graduate students honored by the successful completion of these programs bring to their lives a unique insight into West Virginia's state government - an insight few people ever have the opportunity to acquire. Undeniably, this insight will help shape each participant's personal future - and perhaps the future of the State of West Virginia.

Eligible Applicants:

The Walter Rollins Scholars Program and the Robert W. Burk, Jr., Student Intern Program are open to students accepted to and currently enrolled in graduate degree programs at accredited public or private West Virginia colleges and universities. Applicants must be in good standing. No specific major or prerequisite course work is required, but applicants should be interested in state government, legal research and/or policy analysis. Interested students in all academic disciplines are encouraged to apply.

Available Positions:

Up to two Rollins positions and up to four Burk positions are filled each year.

Length of Program:

Both programs run from January 3rd to April 24th, 2013.

Stipend:

Each Rollins Scholar receives a stipend of $1,400 per month ($5,600 total).
Each Burk Intern receives a stipend of $1,400 per month ($5,600 total).

Tuition and Fees:

Payment of tuition and fees for the academic term is the responsibility of the student. (Please note: In past years, some colleges and universities have made tuition waivers available to certain legislative interns. For more information about the possibility of obtaining a tuition waiver, please contact your graduate dean.)

Academic Credit Hours:

Upon successful completion of either of the legislative internship programs, each graduate student will receive at least six (6) credit hours toward his or her degree. Rollins Scholars and Burk Interns are prohibited from enrolling in any additional classes during the semester of the internship unless the classes do not interfere with the successful completion of the internship in any way. (For example, while independent study courses, readings courses and courses of that nature are allowed, attendance at classes that meet even as infrequently as one evening per week is prohibited due to the scheduling flexibility required of interns during the legislative session).

Orientation:

Each year, Rollins Scholars and Burk Interns participate in a comprehensive legislative orientation at the start of the internship.

Some orientation activities are general in nature and therefore have been combined for legislative interns participating in all five of the Legislature's internship programs. Basic activities include tours of the Capitol and legislative offices; meetings with key legislators and legislative staff; introductions to bill drafting, the committee system, the Code of State Laws, legislative research, parliamentary procedure, the legislative computer system, etc.

Additional orientation activities are geared specifically toward graduate students and are provided to Rollins Scholars and Burk Interns only. Upon completion of the orientation, graduate student interns report to their assigned placements for the remainder of the internship program.

Legislative Placement:

Rollins Scholars may be placed with the President or the Majority Leader in the Senate, the Speaker or the Majority Leader in the House of Delegates, the Chairperson of one of the four major standing committees in the Senate or House (Finance, Judiciary, Government Organization, Education) or other high-ranking leaders in the Senate or House.

Burk Intern placements in the Senate or the House may include: Chairperson of a major standing committee (listed above), Chairperson of a minor standing committee (Health & Human Resources, Banking & Insurance, Agriculture & Natural Resources, Roads & Transportation, Constitutional Revision, Veteran's Affairs, etc.) or other legislative leader.

Please note: If an intern has significant background expertise in or expresses particularly strong educational interest in a specific issue area OR if the Legislature is in need of extra assistance for a specific legislative leader or committee, an intern's placement may be tailored accordingly.

Daily Schedules:

Graduate student interns are required to keep daily schedules per the instruction of the legislative leader to whom they are assigned. Please note: Historically, during the first several weeks of the session, typical days run from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. However, during the mid-to-latter weeks of the session, interns may be required to report to the Capitol early in the mornings, to stay late into the evenings and/or to work weekends. The pace increases dramatically as the session nears completion. While certain absences may be unavoidable and therefore are excused, frequent missed work hours may result in removal from the internship program.

Weekly Academic Seminar:

Rollins Scholars and Burk Interns are required to participate in academic seminars held one afternoon per week at the State Capitol. These seminars are led by the internship academic director (a professor at an area university). During these seminars, graduate student interns meet to discuss legislative process, their research papers and other related topics.

Research Paper:

Each graduate student intern is required to submit a completed research paper at the end of the internship program. The topic is to be agreed upon by the intern, the intern's academic advisor at his/her college or university and the internship academic director by no later than the 30th day of the 60-day regular session. Upon completion, each intern must provide copies of the paper to his/her academic advisor on campus and to the internship academic director. Please note: Often, this research paper (which the Legislature's Internship Committee requires) will fulfill the credit requirements set forth by the intern's college or university. However, in the event the completion of this research paper does not fulfill the college's or university's requirements for credit, the college's or university's requirements for credit must be completed in addition to the research paper.

Accommodations and Transportation:

Housing, meals and daily transportation to and from the State Capitol are the responsibilities of the graduate student interns.

Please note: Furnished and unfurnished apartments usually are available for short-term rental in the "Historic East End" of Charleston, located within walking distance of the Capitol. Should an intern so desire, the committee will make available to him or her a list of other legislative interns who are seeking "roommates" with whom to share an apartment during their stay in Charleston. (In past years, most legislative interns have roomed together and managed to cut down on their living expenses quite successfully.) Charleston maintains frequent bus service for those without automobiles who choose to reside in areas of the city not within walking distance of the Capitol. Also, in past years, most interns have developed among themselves an informal "intern car pool" system. While some interns chose to commute from home if they resided within an hour or so from Charleston, please be aware that finding empty parking spaces near the Capitol Complex is extremely difficult at best. The state does provide a free "trolley" service to and from paid public parking lots and from a paid public parking building located approximately ½ mile from the Capitol, but these parking spaces tend to fill fast. As for food, the Capitol maintains a cafeteria (open for breakfast and lunch), two snack bars (open until mid-afternoon) and a few vending machines.

Application & Selection

For the Graduate Student Internship Programs:

Students interested in the Walter Rollins Scholars Program and the *Robert W.
